Barrett taunts Social Credit

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

DUNCAN — It was standing room only for Premier Barrett in Ladysmith and Duncan Monday.

Moving into country which has been NDP since 1952, he pulled standing-room-only crowds in excess of 700 in Duncan and 250 in the smaller centre of Ladysmith.

Staying basically with a theme made familiar during the past month of touring the province, Barrett again taunted Social Credit to "show the people their program."

He warned that if Social Credit leader William Bennett made good his threat to wipe out the B.C. Land Commission and Bill 42, the land-freeze legislation, "he will destroy what the people of this province demand be preserved, our farm land."

In Surrey Friday, Bennett said that if the Socreds formed the next government of B.C. he would "strip the powers of the land commission" but he did not say that he would eliminate it.

In both Island centres the crowds were enthusiastic, with the Duncan audience, jammed into Eagles Hall, giving the premier two standing ovations and constant applause.

In Duncan Barrett issued a personal challenge to whoever wins the Social Credit nomination in Victoria tonight.

"I challenge them to say within the next few days that they will sell the Princess Marguerite and abandon the crown corporation that runs her," he said. "They won't. They dare not."

In recent days Bennett has said that a Socred government would eliminate some crown corporations but has not mentioned the corporation operating the Marguerite.

Barrett also told the Duncan audience that he was still looking at the performance of the Canadian Pacific Railway on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway. And he warned again that "what the crown has given, the crown can take away."

As in the past, he declined to qualify the statement.

He also took a brief slap at Agnes Kripps, an old-time Socred who failed to win the nomination for Vancouver South Sunday night.

After losing, she said she was now wondering if it was true that big business had

Serious fighting flares between Laos, Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Communist gunners from Laos sank a Thai gunboat on the Mekong River border Monday, touching off the most serious fighting between the two countries in recent years.

A fierce exchange of fire across the sensitive river line continued after dark, involving tanks, artillery and helicopters.

Mackasey stays firm

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-general Bryce Mackasey Monday night rejected appointment of a special mediator in the national postal strike, telling strikers they were "dreaming in technicolor" if they expected the government to change its final wage offer.

"The trouble with this (union negotiating) team is that they don't know when they've got a good bargain," he said during a special Commons debate on the month-long nation-wide strike.

Negotiators for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, headed by union vice-president Jean-Claude Parrot, watched intently from a Commons gallery as the minister spoke.

Under no circumstances would the government change its final wage offer of a $1.70-an-hour increase with a 40-hour work week over a 30-month contract, Mackasey said.

"If they think they can get more . . . they're dreaming in technicolor . . . if the strike lasts a day, a week, a month or a year."

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Pary leader, called earlier in the debate for a special mediator with a three-day mandate to attempt to break the impasse between the government and the union.

Mackasey said it would be ridiculous to "introduce a mediator at this stage." A better idea would be to ask rank-and-file members whether they supported the union negotiating committee.

Time bill given second reading

OTTAWA (CP) — As debate in the Commons headed towards an abrupt end by government-imposed closure Monday, Time Canada Ltd. appealed "in fairness and justice" for a delay in enacting tax legislation affecting the magazine's future in the country.

In a telegram to all MPs, Time Canada president Stephen S. LaRue of Toronto said the Jan. 1 implementation date comes only nine weeks after Revenue Minister Bud Cullen's announcement that the Canadian edition of the magazine must be 80 per cent different in content from foreign editions to qualify as Canadian for tax purposes.

The telegrams arrived as House leaders from all parties agreed to ring the division bells at 9:30 p.m. for a vote to end second reading and to send the legislation to the Commons broadcasting committee for detailed study.

The Liberal majority in the Commons pushed through a closure motion last week that gave the MPs until shortly after 6 p.m. Monday to complete a prolonged second reading debate.

The Commons voted 123 to 80 to give the bill second reading—approval in principle—and send it to the broadcasting committee for further study.

The Liberals, supported by the New Democratic Party, outnumbered opposition from the Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit party.

Five MPs broke party ranks on the vote. Liberals Jacques Trudel (Montreal Bourassa) and Joe Flynn (Kitchener) voted against the bill while Progressive Conservatives Flora MacDonald (Kingston and the Islands) and David MacDonald (Egmont) and Social Credit MP Leonel (Beaudoin Richmond) voted for it.

LaRue said that prior to this announcement Time was given to understand from discussions with revenue department officials that at least half, or 51 per cent, content difference would be sufficient.

If the measure is not delayed it will effectively destroy Time Canada's attempts to qualify as a Canadian publication, the telegram said.

Besides the telegrams to all MPs, LaRue also sent a strongly-worded eight-page letter to Faulkner charging that his chief interest was in "kicking us out" of Canada.

During the final stages of second-reading debate in the

Britain, Iceland angrily halt fishing talks

REYKJAVIK, (UPI) — Britain and Iceland angrily broke off talks on fishing rights Monday.

As Iceland vowed to enforce its new 200-mile fishing limit "by all possible methods," Britain warned it would protect its fishing trawlers "if protection is necessary."

The breakdown in negotiations raised fears of another full-scale "cod war" reminiscent of the 1972 dispute in which Icelandic gunboats rammed the sides of British vessels.

"There was too much of a gap between us and the British delegation," Iceland Foreign Minister Einar Augustsson said after a 40-minute session with British minister of state Roy Hattersley.

Hattersley said the British proposed to decrease fishing inside the 200-mile limit, "but the Icelandic government did not agree to our offer. Our trawlers will certainly be protected if protection is necessary."

Augustsson said his country "will protect our fishing limits by all possible methods. I am not forecasting a war, but the future will show what will happen."

The offer from Britain was to fish 110,000 tons a year in the newly-proclaimed Icelandic waters, a reduction of 20,000 tons a year from an agreement which just expired. Iceland's offer was to allow the British 65,000 tons a year.

In September, 1972, Iceland extended its fishing limits from 12 to 50 miles, and last summer increased that to 200 miles effective Oct. 15. It did not impose the restrictions until last week, however, when all fishing agreements with foreign nations expired.

New storm erupts on prison releases

OTTAWA (CP) — At least six men imprisoned as "dangerous sexual offenders" are being released by prison officials for varying lengths of time in violation of federal prison regulations, John Reynolds (PC-Burnaby-Delta-Richmond) said Monday.

Reynolds said the information was contained in the Canadian Penitentiaries Service's monthly bulletin to police on prisoners given temporary absences by prison officials or day parole by parole officials.

"It's about six inches thick," Reynolds said. "So far I've found six dangerous sexual offenders getting temporary absences and I've only got through about an inch."

Earlier in the Commons, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand reaffirmed that prison officials were not supposed to give such prisoners temporary absences — usually a few days of freedom for a specific reason — and told Reynolds his office was checking on one name given him by the B.C. member.

Reynolds said West Coast police had given him the bulletin after Allmand said Nov. 7 that dangerous sexual offenders were not getting such leaves.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Reynolds said in an interview.

He suggested that disciplinary action be taken against officials who gave temporary leaves to dangerous sexual offenders imprisoned on indefinite sentence.

He also asked whether the director and senior security director of Pittsburgh prison, about 90 miles south of Ottawa in the Kingston area, were suspended "for allowing people out on temporary absences who should not be out."

Allmand replied that two officials had been suspended, but not for giving passes to dangerous sexual offenders. The two are appealing.

An earlier report said the two were suspended for giving prisoners lengthy passes that enabled several to run a body rub shop in Toronto.

Public servants stiffen resolve

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiators for three unions representing Quebec public service employees Monday requested all 187,000 workers involved to take part in a province-wide strike by February.

Other pressure tactics approved at a weekend meeting ranged from work slowdowns to unannounced one-day work stoppages. The common front is seeking an increase in minimum weekly salary for public servants to $165 from $114.

Cargo of lifeboats of no use to crew

BORDEAUX, France (Reuter) — The body of a crew member from the abandoned West German cargo ship Rudolf S was found in a storm-tossed dinghy about 180 miles off the French coast Monday night, maritime authorities said.

Two of the 12 crew of the 999-ton vessel were rescued earlier in the day in the same area in the Bay of Biscay.

The survivors told rescuers aboard the cargo ship Amsterdam that seven of the nine crew members still missing were in one lifeboat presumed to be in the vicinity.

Strong winds and heavy seas have been hampering rescue attempts since the Rudolph S was abandoned early Thursday after her cargo shifted in a violent storm.

A French naval aircraft earlier spotted two empty lifeboats, but coast guard officials said the ship had been carrying a cargo of lifeboats and those spotted were probably not the two used by the crew.

Troops, dogs scour Queen E2 for arms

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 has been used for years to run arms and explosives to Irish Republican Army (IRA) members in Southampton from sympathizers in New York, police said Monday as troops and dogs scoured the ship for the evidence.

"We are not looking for a bomb," a police spokesman said. "The search is part of antiterrorist investigations."

A search of the 65,863-ton liner began after the announcement Sunday that 400 pounds of explosives had been found in an Irish family's apartment overlooking the docks. It was the second cache of explosives found in the city in 11 months. Forty-two persons — 30 of them Irish — were detained for interrogation.

Ashore, police searched all

Pollen's candidacy starts controversy

No sooner did Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen declare himself in the race Monday for the Social Credit nomination, than he found himself embroiled in a controversy.

Accusations of broken promises and political opportunism were hurled at Pollen just hours after he announced that he will seek the Socred nomination tonight for one of the two Victoria seats in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The most bitter attack came from Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace who claimed that both Pollen and Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf, also seeking the Socred nomination in Victoria, had given him a positive commitment to seek election on the Conservative ticket.

"They gave me that solemn

500 Fund

Up until about two years ago, Joe was a happy man.

He had a job — not a great professional job, by any means. He worked hard at an unskilled job, but the pay was adequate, and he was young and strong.

He also had a family. There was his wife Liz, and baby daughter Tammy, and another baby on the way.

Life was good for Joe, and as he was also a man with a conscience, you would find his name well up on the list of donors to various community funds.

Then came the accident.

In the split second of an automobile accident he lost an arm as well as suffering other injuries which kept him in hospital for months.

After hospital came rehabilitation, but an unskilled man with one arm does not have employers lining up for his services, especially in times of high unemployment.

Now the family subsists below the poverty line, and any Christmas joy for the youngsters will have to come from others in the community who have their health, their strength, and jobs.

Once again the Colonist will be passing on the donations to 500 of Victoria's needy families, but because of the mail strike money will have to be dropped off at one of the following locations:

ANDY CAPP

Mackasey stands firm

He suggested that the members would overrule their leaders and support a conciliation report made earlier in the dispute.

Applauded by Liberal and many Progressive Conservative MPs, Mackasey said the public had adjusted remarkably well to the loss of postal service.

Of 3,00 telegrams to his office, only 50 had complained. The attitude seemed to be: "Let's have one good strike and get it over . . . that's my feeling," said the minister.

He said the final government offer actually improved on settlement terms proposed by the conciliation board, and the union should accept it.

"Perhaps our mistake was trying to improve on that."

He mentioned a variety of contentious clauses, including one to protect workers against undue repercussions from automation in the post office.

The union organized a boycott and claimed to have defeated automation, he said. "They're sitting up there; they'll tell you," he added in reference to negotiators in the gallery.

He said he had been painted as a reactionary for his handling of the dispute, despite improvements he had agreed to.

But not one job had been lost to automation, he argued. At the same time, 3,500-man-years had been lost by illegal postal walkoouts over the last five years.

He said negotiators adopted an unreasonable stand from the outset by demanding a raise before negotiations began.

Broadbent denied approval of a Commons motion calling for a secret vote among postal workers on the government's last contract offer.

MPs were just about to vote on the motion, proposed by James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) when Broadbent said he had not given his consent.

Under parliamentary procedure, MPs must give unanimous consent for a vote on emergency motions raised under rule 43.

The union announced Monday it will begin paying its members $40 a week in strike pay beginning Friday.

Union officials, in making the announcement, declined to disclose the source of the funds or the amount other than to say "the strike pay will continue until a negotiated settlemen is achieved."

"It's not a great deal," says CUPW director of information, Paul Mitchell. "It's grocery money."

He said total payments will be about $800,000 a week.

It is the first time in the union's history — it was formed in 1968 — that strike pay has been given members. There have been three strikes — in 1968, 1970 and 1974.

Mitchell said that the money would be paid to each member regardless of marital status, family size or if the member is a full or part-time worker.

Meanwhile, the post office reported that about 1,600 employees had crossed picket lines and returned to their jobs Monday, allowing operations to resume in 136 post offices across the country.

A spokesman said that old-age pensions, being sorted this week by inside workers and supervisory personnel, are scheduled to be delivered by letter carriers on Thursday.

The cheques already have been distributed by the department of supply and services to various regional centres across the country for sorting.

Skirmishes were reported on the picket lines in Ottawa and Moncton, N.B., Monday but elsewhere conditions were reported quiet. Two inside postal workers in Ottawa were charged with obstruction. There were no reports of injuries in Ottawa or Moncton.

assurance at a meeting held on Nov. 5," Wallace said.

"The time was around 4 p.m. and it was such a firm commitment that we agreed to change the date of our nomination meeting to accommodate Balwf who wanted to take a few days holiday," Wallace said.

"The following day, on the radio, he (Bawlf) announced that he would be seeking the Social Credit nomination," he added.

Wallace said Pollen continued to be interested in the Tory ticket and discussions were held to try to find a suitable running mate in the Victoria riding. Those discussions, according to Wallace, ended with Pollen deciding not to run.

That Bawlf and Pollen could break promises within 24 hours of giving them, Wallace said, should indicate to the people that "this isn't the kind of behavior we look for in public representatives.

"I just want it clearly understood by the voters in the Victoria area what the promises of these men mean," he said.

"I suppose some will call it sour grapes on my part, but it isn't. I think that since the whole matter of political integrity is under scrutiny, the matter of promises made and broken even before the campaign really gets underway is a matter of grave concern," Wallace said.

Pollen as well as Bawlf, he said, had, at the Nov. 5 meeting, been "bitter in their denunciation of the Social Credit party and its leadership, with Pollen terming Socreds Neanderthals with a weak leader."

In an interview later Monday, Pollen launched a counter-attack on Wallace accusing the Tory leader of acting like a "jilted lover."

Pollen admitted that he had met Wallace and expressed "serious interest in seeking the Tory nomination," but he denied that he ever gave his unqualified commitment.

"I discovered that instead of being a small "c" Conservative, Dr. Wallace is a man obsessed with a hatred for Social Credit and I said to myself, that's not for me," Pollen said.

"It's rather incredible, his comments are more vicious than productive. He has such a hatred for the Socreds that he finds it difficult to surround himself with people," Pollen added.

He said Liberal leader David Anderson had asked him to run, and so did the Saanich and the Island NDP constituency association.

To discuss with the leaders of parties what they stand for, in my opinion, isn't indicative of political opportunism," Pollen said.

Gordon Hanson, NDP candidate in Victoria, also fired a broadside at Pollen.

"I think Peter Pollen's intention to seek the Social Credit nomination is the most distasteful display of political opportunism I have ever witnessed," Hanson said in a press release.

"However, erratic behavior is characteristic of Pollen and I expect it will continue throughout the campaign," he added.

Charles Barber, the other NDP candidate in the two-seat Victoria riding, said he was talking to Bawlf about six weeks ago.

At that time, Barber said, Bawlf told him he would never under any circumstances run on the same ticket as Pollen because he considered him too "erratic and unpredictable."

Bawlf was not available for comment Monday.

Asked why he was seeking the Socred nomination, Pollen said he felt that he could contribute something to provincial politics.

He said he had received "many, many phone calls" during the weekend, asking him to run in the provincial election.

Reminded that he criticized the Socreds not long ago as being the party "to the right of Genghis Khan;" Pollen replied that many things had changed since and that Social Credit has acquired a new image.

"She discovered last night what I discovered years ago," Barrett said. "Welcome to reality, Agnes."

Barbara Wallace, the NDP candidate for Cowichan-Malahat, spoke briefly at both meetings but said on both occasions that she would leave the major announcements to Barrett.

"I just want you to get a look at me tonight and to tell you that I have always stood for justice and fair play and will continue to stand for those qualities if I am elected. Just remember that a vote for Barbara is also a vote for Barrett, and that a vote for Barbara is also a vote for Wallace."

She also promised if elected she would open a constituency office in the Duncan area with toll-free phone lines to other parts of the constituency.

Boxers edge to win

Steve Kishkan was outstanding in goal Monday but the Western Homes Buckaroos still dropped a 3-2 decision to first-place London Boxing Club in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

Kishkan made 40 saves but Al McLaren broke a 2-2 draw with a goal midway through the third period.

Brian Hamilton and Bob Martin scored the other Boxing Club goals and George Fuller scored twice for the Buckaroos, who managed 20 shots at Geoff Ward in the Boxing Club goal.

19 tower blocks of apartments owned by the city. Southampton's housing chief, Dennis Speake, said the latest explosives find "indicates we are in the front line of IRA activity."

The outlawed IRA is battling to oust the British from Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and link the province with the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish Republic.

The cache Sunday was sufficient to make 80 bombs of the type that has killed six persons in London and wounded 167 in the last three months, authorities said. The attacks have been blamed on Irish terrorists.

A crew member who came ashore from the ship said: "They are searching every locker, every storeroom and every concealed space."

A police officer said 70 policemen, 30 Royal Engineers troops and six dogs trained to sniff out explosives were searching through 2,600 passenger cabins, crew quarters, work areas and storage spaces.

Only three of the liner's 13 decks had been covered by Monday. Cunard Chairman Victor Mathews said the Queen Elizabeth 2 will sail on schedule at noon Thursday for New York, "even if the searchers have to stay aboard."

There are 1,200 passengers booked for the trans-Atlantic crossing, which starts a five-month round of cruises, mostly in the Caribbean.

One crew member said: "It would be quite easy to smuggle explosives in if you were a crew member and wanted to."

Another crew member said that when searchers found lockers or storage space for which no keys could quickly be located, they used small explosive charges to blow them open.

The dockland area was sealed off Monday and everyone coming or going was questioned by police. Reporters were barred from the liner.

Robertson leads Clippers to win

Geordie Robertson scored four goals Sunday in leading Nanaimo Clippers to a 9-5 win over Merritt Centennials in the highlight of weekend play in the British Columbia junior hockey league.

Is other games, Langley Lords defeated the visiting Chilliwack Bruins 9-3 while Penticton Vees downed Maple Ridge Blazers 7-3 in Penticton.

Three of Robertson's goals came on the power play while Bob Burgoyne added two goals, in the game played in Nanaimo. Other Nanaimo goals were scored by Gar Lupul, George Fritz and Bob Smith.

The Merritt goals were scored by Darrell Zelinski, Neil Robinson, Bob Wasson, Dean Wray and Dan Rota.

Commons, Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said Reader's Digest should be spared while Liberal backbencher Jim Fleming (York West), parliamentary secretary to the vacant communications minister's portfolio, said the measures will help rescue the domestic broadcasting industry from worsening financial problems.

Your Good Health

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor says I have Raynaud's disease. It is just like I am allergic to cold. I am 51 years old, and female. My hands and feet are affected and hurt. I don't think I can stand another winter.

Can you give me any advice on what I can do?—Mrs. N.W.

This is a disorder of the nervous system's control of the tone of small blood vessels and it usually affects the hands and feet. Chilling weather usually places further burden on the already impaired circulation, and often there is a darkening of the skin.

Sensitivity to certain substances can be a cause, with tobacco and arsenic prime offenders. Emotional upset can prompt attacks, also. Some have found that simply giving up tobacco provides marked relief, and if you are a smoker, this would be well worth a try.

Often a glandular deficiency can be at the root of the problem, so this should be investigated. However, once the nervous system's control of the blood vessels has become deficient, treatment of the underlying problem will not always provide relief.

Raynaud's disease, or Raynaud's syndrome as it is sometimes called, can be symptomatic of so many disorders that you should have a complete physical in an attempt to determine just what is causing the problem with your extremities.

Warm socks and gloves may be your only answer.

More Hope

One of the largest diamonds in the U.S. — the blue-white Hope Diamond — was examined by Gemologist Robert Limon at Washington's Smithsonian Institution Monday and found to be even bigger than has long been thought — on reweighting it was 45½ carats, one carat more than it says in the record books. Since the stone was donated to the institution in 1958, it has been seen by more than 50 million people.

Economic summit

New trade effort pledged by Six

RAMBOUILLET, France (CP) — Leaders of the six biggest non-Communist industrial nations pledged Monday to stimulate world trade and reduce unemployment, following a three-day summit that also helped overcome a French-American monetary split.

In a declaration of aims, the six leaders said they would speed tariff-cutting negotiations, seek co-operation with oil-producing countries, avoid trade protectionism and ensure that economic recovery does not falter.

U.S. President Ford said as a result of the three-day talks in this community 30 miles southwest of Paris, "the people of our countries can look forward to more jobs and less inflation and a greater sense of economic security."

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who opposed seating Canada at the meeting, hailed what he described as the spirit of Rambouillet.

The other leaders were West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Prime Ministers Harold Wilson of Britain, Aldo Moro of Italy and Takeo Miki of Japan.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in a French television interview Sunday that France opposed Canada's presence, fearing this would lead to seating requests from other countries, thereby destroying the summit's intimacy.

However, there has been speculation that Giscard d'Estaing feared Trudeau would support Ford on the exchange-rate issue which has marred French-American co-operation in the past. The U.S. and Canada support a free-floating exchange rate for U.S. and Canadian dollars; France wanted rigid adherence to a fixed exchange rate.

As a result of a compromise, Giscard d'Estaing told a news conference Monday, France and the U.S. signed an agreement binding U.S. monetary authorities to intervene in world markets to prevent erratic fluctuations in the U.S. dollar rate.

William Simon, U.S. treasury secretary, emphasized later that the U.S. had not committed itself to defend a fixed rate and had not agreed to any international system of controlled exchange rates.

The 15-point summit declaration took note of the "rapproachement" between the U.S. and France, saying it will facilitate agreement at the next meeting of the International Monetary Fund International Monetary Fund's interim committee in Jamaica next January.

This committee has been established to recommend a major blueprint for world monetary reform. It was headed by John Turner before he resigned as Canadian finance minister.

Private groups see it first

'Peace and security' still surprise package

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Monday some proposals in the federal "peace and security" policy package would be discussed with private groups before being made public.

This means that announcement of the package, hoped for this week, will come shortly before Christmas at the earliest.

Allmand said it became apparent after meetings with provincial attorneys-general last week that more work was needed on details of the package.

He also said it had been decided to discuss some of the details with private groups that would presumably be affected by them.

The policy package will be followed early in 1976 by legislation, including a bill to abolish capital punishment, as well as a number of administrative measures to keep violent offenders off the streets.

Allmand was asked in the Commons by James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) whether the package would include steps to keep violent programs off television or to relegate such programs to late time slots.

Allmand replied that such proposals might be included in the "peace and security" package, but added later that he could not go beyond making recommendations to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, an independent agency.

U.S. cynical—Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon says the United States is a "compromised country" that deeply needs to restore its pride in itself.

He adds the U.S. is "so cynical, so disbelieving" it might take a war to "regain our sense of belief in our country . . ."

His remarks — his most extensive public statement since resigning during the Watergate scandal — are in a copyright interview in the December issue of the Ladies Home Journal conducted by author-businessman William Fine. There are no remarks about Watergate.

A spokesman for the magazine said Nixon was not paid for the interview, which was conducted in May.

Nixon, interviewed in his home in San Clemente, Calif., said:

"We are so cynical, so disbelieving — it may take the shock of an invasion — in Korea or in Thailand. If American lives are threatened, we may regain our sense of belief in our country and our need for strength. "The Communist countries don't need troops or military acts right now. They can just keep adding pressure points and take strategic advantage in the Far East and Middle East."

On himself, Nixon said: "Yes. I know all the things that were and still are being said about me. Do you think the mood of the people is changing?"

On his successor, President Ford, he said: "He's okay. Right now, he is too accessible. A congress or a parliament can paralyse leadership. You can't get caught up in absurdities."

Franco passes another crisis

MADRID (UPI) — Gen. Francisco Franco suffered a new attack of internal bleeding early Tuesday, setting off a small alarm at La Paz Hospital.

The hospital said the hemorrhaging affected the 82-year-old Franco early in the 32nd day of his struggle to survive.

Franco's three top aides and the Duke of Cadiz, the husband of the generals favorite granddaughter, rushed to La Paz, but left an hour later.

Severe internal bleeding has been the major reason for three operations doctors have performed on Franco during his illness.

Two of Franco's 32 doctors also arrived at La Paz hospital and attendants said Dr. Hidalgo Huerto, who had performed three operations on Franco, was also in La Paz.

A dash by the three aides to La Paz six days ago signalled the beginning of a new series of hemorrhage attacks that ended with a two-hour operation on Franco last Friday.

Soviet mental hospitals 'like prisons'—Amnesty

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International charged Monday that "at least 10,000 political and religious prisoners" were being held in Soviet prisons, all of them mistreated.

The Soviet Union meanwhile accused the West German government of "massive and legalized" violations of human rights for refusing to hire known radicals.

London-based Amnesty International, an unofficial group concerned with the rights of political prisoners in all countries, said in a report, "There are at least 10,000 political and religious prisoners in the U.S.S.R. today," many in mental wards, under conditions which "violate international standards for the treatment of prisoners."

"There has never in Amnesty International's experience ben an acquittal of a political defendant in the U.S.S.R.," the report said.

It said Soviet prisoners were "kept in constant hunger," made "vulnerable to illness and injury" and forced to "work at hard physical tasks . . . (that are) often unhealthy or dangerous."

Soviet mental hospitals, the report charged, were "more like prisons than hospitals" as a result of the practice of incarcerating dissidents in such institutions.

PLO will make a point of going to Vancouver

OTTAWA (CP) — A representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization Monday rejected charges that he and his organization were terrorists.

Shakif Al-Hout, vice-chairman of the PLO delegation at the UN, also said his organization would be certain to send a delegation to the UN Habitat conference in Vancouver in June because of Canadian hostility toward the PLO.

Game over

WHEN HE TALKS about the Post Office strike continuing until next Easter, and perhaps longer, Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey is playing a game that should be terminated here and now.

He's made his point. He's succeeded in frightening some of the staff into going back to work. And there are greater rumblings among those still on the picket lines for a secret ballot on the government's final pay offer.

Mr. Mackasey may feel encouraged to continue the long-strike narrative. Leaders of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers appear to be worried. National president Joe Davidson pleaded on the weekend for a closing of ranks when he spoke to members of the Winnipeg local of the union which, he said: "is fighting for its very survival and I don't want you to forget it."

But, after all, only an estimated 1,500 of the 22,000 CUPW membership has defied the executive orders to remain off the job. The number is small, but it is understandable that Mr. Davidson is upset. Even a minor revolt is disturbing.

It would appear to have been cut off, though. At least the rate of return of sorters and clerks to work is likely to be slowed with the union borrowing for a strike fund to pay picketers. It could also quieten the call for another vote on the 38 per cent pay increase offered.

Mr. Mackasey's tactics have made the union look a little sick, but he's gone about as far as he can go and the time has arrived for him to change his ways.

This is not to suggest that he should give in to the 51 per cent pay demand. This he cannot do. And this he has no intention of doing. He has made it quite clear he means it when he says "not one penny more."

He doesn't mean it when he speaks about the tie-up lasting as long as Easter, though. By the same token, he cannot. The strike already is damaging the economy and causing severe hardship to individuals as well as businesses.

He knows this as well as anyone, and now should blow the whistle on the verbal sparring that has been going on since summer, and restore to the people a government service that is as essential as any, moreso than many.

The only way to call the game off, of course, is to legislate the postal workers back to their mail racks and remove the right to strike.

To do otherwise is an invitation to more of the same. And the paying public has had enough which, in this case, is too much.

Fading out

THE TWO-DOLLAR BILL is to re-appear in the United States next spring after a long absence, and Americans who are suspicious of Canadian twos will have their own to worry about again. They didn't like them when they had them earlier.

But then, The Christian Science Monitor comments, a $1 bill would buy almost as much only 17 years ago as a $2 bill would buy today. The U.S. government will save as much as $7 million a year in printing costs by having to turn out fewer bills, but "don't forget that works out to not much more than $4 million by the standards of a decade ago."

Indeed, "It was just about a century ago that the U.S. Mint stopped issuing the half-cent. The way things are going in the inflation charts, the country may celebrate its tricentennial by doing away with the $1 bill."

This brings to mind that, in both countries, there is a candidate for far earlier extinction: the cent. Sometimes it seems the day has almost come.

Promises and prices

FINANCE MINISTER David Stupich shows signs of bringing something new to election campaigning: price-tagged promise-shopping. So far, it looks like a good idea.

There was his own indication, which we looked at as a revived promise, that school taxation would be removed from family farms. Whoa, says Mr. Stupich, that's not a promise yet. And sure enough, he said in the first place that his staff was working on it and he hoped to have the cost of the possible tax removal calculated soon, and that "if I can come up with a recommendation that is what Dave wants to hear, I think the cabinet will accept it."

Likewise the finance minister wants a price put on something else before it is offered as a promise: Premier David Barrett's hinted establishment of a portable pension plan in which housewives could participate. Hold on, says Mr. Stupich, wait for it: "We have a paper being prepared which will give us an idea of the cost. After we receive that it will be translated into legislation hopefully for introduction next spring if we are still in office." But for the time being, no promise.

As for the removal of school taxation from residential property, promised by the NDP in the 1972 election campaign but not nailed down as a plank in this year's platform, the cost of this, says the minister, would be $40 million, according to estimates.

And the removal of the provincial sales tax from building materials?

"I don't think the people who are suggesting that have thought it through. It would cost us around $60 million a year."

In this last instance Mr. Stupich has put a price-tag on a Social Credit promise, which is obliging. But before we make comparisons, we do need the tags on those not-yet-promises. And the time before the election is becoming short.

Washington Calling

The Sadat snubbing in New York

By MARQUIS CHILDS

Whether the City of New York or the deeply divided world parliament of the United Nations will be the first to expire is an open question. The antagonism in Congress and the country is directed in almost the same degree at the UN and New York, which happens to be the site of an institution that began with such bright hope and now seems hopelessly mired in the conflict setting the Third World against the developed West.

If nothing else, this proves once again the tragic error in choosing this site. In a polygot city pressure groups have tried repeatedly by mass demonstrations, to thwart the objectives of the UN. Only by massive police force, at a considerable cost to the city, has violence been prevented in past episodes.

Whether in view of the deep hostility in the Middle East and notably in the Arab world there could ever have been a propitious time for President Anwar Sadat to visit the United States is doubtful.

But in all honesty it must be said that it would be hard to imagine a worse time than the present.

Sadat had the courage—and it took a great deal of courage in light of the animosity of Syria and other Arab states—to sign a disengagement agreement with Israel.

He had the courage to expel the 20,000 Russian military advisers who had tried to dominate his own military forces. He put an end to his dependence on Soviet weaponry.

But even as his trip was being planned with encouraging portents, the Arab and Third World nations planted a time bomb at the UN. That was the resolution equating Zionism with racism. It was a deliberate insult to Israel and to Jews in America who have supported the Zionist cause with much zeal and so generous an outpouring of money.

The Egyptian delegate was one of the 70 voting in favor of the resolution. To have done otherwise would have made Sadat's position in the Arab world even more uncertain than it is today.

To be sure, Egypt might have abstained as did nearly as many delegates as the 26 voting against the resolution. That would nevertheless have been taken as another black mark to be added to the score totaled up by his Arab enemies beginning with the agreement with Israel.

Within his own country the Egyptian president must contend with forces that see the Israeli agreement as a sellout of the Palestinians and their yearning for a homeland.

The contradictions in all this are amazing to behold. Mayor Abraham Beame has been imploring the Ford administration and the Congress to save New York from bankruptcy and chaos. In turn, the state department had been imploring Beame to give Sadat an official, if not a friendly, welcome to his city.

According to newspaper reports the mayor anguished over this for hours. After all, he was the first Jewish mayor of New York. In the end he said no to Washington's pleas. Gov. Hugh Carey found that his schedule was so crowded he couldn't possibly find half an hour to greet the Egyptian visitor.

The response in Congress to the Zionist resolution was a foregone conclusion. The outcry arose that the United States must cut off or at least drastically curtail support for the UN. This is a serious threat since the American contribution is somewhere between 25 per cent and 30 per cent overall for the UN and its various agencies.

The same threat was made following an attempt to exclude Israel from participation in some of the work of UNESCO. These threats cannot be discounted. They are taken by many both in and out of Congress as the response to a slap at the United States for supporting an ally in the Middle East.

President Sadat is a bold and forthright man who has thus far been able to stand up to his enemies at home and abroad. One positive result of his visit to the United States is to reinforce his friendly relationship with President Ford, initiated when the two met at Salzburg last summer.

But for Sadat to believe that the United States can persuade or coerce Israel into negotiating an agreement with Syria by concessions on the Golan Heights is to indulge in wishful thinking far wide of the realities that lie ahead.

Vegetating

From The Ottawa Journal

The National Research Council reports that a competitor for the potato chip is about ready to be licensed for production — the pea chip. When they can perfect the barbeque spinach chip, the problem of getting children to eat vegetables will have been solved.

It wasn't a great year for corn, but some politicians are trying to make up for the shortage.

Trudeau-Chamberlain analogy

Not really far-fetched

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

Discussing Prime Minister Trudeau's difficulties with marshalling support for his anti-inflation program, an old Liberal senator makes an interesting point.

"Trudeau," he says, "can be no more effective in waging war on inflation than Chamberlain was in waging war on Nazi Germany. You can't lead a crusade standing on your head at the bottom of a credibility hole you yourself have created."

Drawing an historical parallel between Trudeau's and Chamberlain's belated about-face on fighting an obvious menace may seem a bit forced at first, but when you come to think of it, the analogy is basically correct.

In both cases the prime ministers grossly misjudged a vital issue, refused to come to grips with it while it was tractable, and misled their nations into believing that no real danger existed.

While Chamberlain didn't have to fight any serious political challenge to his misconceptions and misjudgments, he did, like Trudeau, exploit electoral reluctance to face unpleasant facts. Like Trudeau, he was for a while the hero of popular self-delusions.

When circumstances eventually forced Chamberlain to declare war on Germany — barely a year after his triumphant return from Munich as savior of peace — his chances of mobilizing and inspiring the type of dedicated effort necessary for waging war were practically nil. He had to be replaced.

Trudeau is now in very much the same discredited and impotent position Chamberlain was after the collapse of appeasement illusions. Actually his credibility rating is even lower because he fought and won an election by resolutely rejecting war on inflation. So he has to be replaced if people are to be convinced that concerted national effort to combat inflation is necessary and has a chance to succeed.

The only question is whether or not our Liberal party has the same sense of responsibility the British Conservative party had when Chamberlain had to be removed.

Given the Liberal party's traditional love of power above everything else, it's virtually certain that narrow partisan considerations and shortsighted calculations will, as always, prevail. If so, our slide into anarchy that cannot but end in dictatorship will be accelerated.

How did we get this far down the slippery slope when, as opinion surveys indicate, most Candians have been aware of the dangers of unchecked inflation for several years, and since mid-1973 close to 80 per cent voters favored some form of price-income controls? How can these findings (confirmed by Trudeau himself in his recent speeches) be squared with the fact that when given a clear-cut choice in the 1974 election campaign, voters endorsed evasion of responsibilities?

The explanation is quite simple. Supposing you are sick and your physician tells you surgery is necessary. Along comes another doctor and tells you there's nothing wrong with you a few pills won't cure. Who would you choose to believe?

By mid-1973 most Canadians realized the country was seriously sick and in need of economic surgery. But when Dr. Trudeau said the operation was unnecessary and his assurances that a few painless pills would cure everything turned the 1974 election into a no-contest win for self-delusions.

Now that Trudeau is forced by the consequences of his irresponsibility to do, belatedly and in far more difficult circumstances, what he ridiculed as useless and stupid last year, his credibility and authority are shattered.

Even if public memory of Trudeau's cleverly misconstrued election campaign arguments against controls could somehow be obliterated, his appeals for fighting inflation now would still sound hollow in light of the MPs' large pay increase after the election and the quite recent huge pay boosts for top-echelon bureaucrats.

The prime minister is not helping matters by trying to misrepresent these outrages. It simply is not true, as he maintains, that the salary increase of up to $6,500 granted to the already-overpayed top mandarins, is within his inflation-fighting guidelines.

It is true that the latest feathering of the cozy bureaucratic nest does not exceed the general 10 per cent pay hike limit, but it's way above the $2,400 maximum. And since it comes on top of salaries that in some cases exceed $60,000, it's a provocation, even though formal approval of it came before the announcement of price-income controls.

Anyone so insensitive to public sentiment and capable of such hypocrisy when, as has been pointed out, the total income of some 40 per cent of taxpayers is less than the salary increase for top bureaucrats, does not have a snowball's chance in hell to lead a crusade against inflation and should be removed.

How true, Mr. Riesman

By MELVIN MADDOCKS

"It seems to me that the fundamental problem of American industrial and organizational life might be put in terms of this distinction between the need to accomplish something and the need to appear as if one had accomplished something." — David Riesman, interviewed in Human Behavior magazine.

I. A. Cheeve, president of Tweedledee, Tweedledum Toy Company, Inc., was sticking out his lower lip in a way that his first vice-president, Abel Dabbler, didn't like. Didn't like at all.

Dabbler, who had been fired by Cheeve and, fortunately, rehired seven times in the last 10 years, knew all the danger signals. And the pout, as far as he was concerned, was an omen that the Cheeve lips once again were about to pronounce the words: "Dabbler, you're through."

But first there had to be fun-and-games.

"Have you seen this?' Cheeve asked, tossing a rolled magazine in the direction of Dabbler's cashmere vest.

The copy of Human Behavior sprawled open to the Riesman interview, with the key passage underlined in trembling purple by a felt-tip pen.

Dabbler, expecting something far worse—an audit of his September expense account at the least—scanned the four-page interview in 14 seconds flat, showing the eye-swiveling speed he had acquired at the Dynamite Reading Institute.

Then he let the magazine fall to the president's teakwood desk: "Just another Harvard professor, sir. Ivory tower stuff. More Parkinson's law jokes. Haven't we been through all that before?"

Cheeve was barely listening. "What do we do here at Tweedledum, Tweedledee?"

"We make TV-oriented toys," Dabbler answered with excessive patience. "Howard Cosell footballs for boys, Cher dolls for girls."

"And unisex toys too," Cheeve reminded him, "Like the Bonnie-and-Clyde submachine gun."

"Right, sir."

"And what are you up to at Tweedledee, Tweedledum?" Cheeve asked far too sweetly. "What do you, as it were, do or make?"

Dabbler decided to stand on dignity. "If you don't know, sir, I doubt if it's my place to tell you."

"Humor me," said Cheeve, with a rather nasty sneer replacing the pout. "Me and Professor Riesman. Tell us what you really accomplish.'

"If you insist," said Dabbler.

"I think of myself as the Three-C Man, sir. First I create. I dream up projects, originate ideas. Next I co-ordinate. I plan, then I bring the right people together—the designers, the engineers—to execute the plan. Last of all I communicate. I set up a kind of forum for our product, involving everybody from our floor-sweepers to our customers."

It was a speech that had gone exceptionally well when Dabbler delivered it to the graduating class at the Throp-morton School of Business, but . . .

"Let me translate you into Riesmanese," said the president. "You create. That means you cover a small forest's worth of paper with memos about, say, a Walter Cronkite Halloween mask until our duplicators break down and our IN boxes groan. Then you write more memos —'updates'—to report on the nonprogress of the projects you proposed in your first memos.

"And you co-ordinate, eh Dabbler? Meaning, we all have to sit around conference tables, explaining why we haven't answered your memos on the 'Planet of the Apes' wristwatch.

"Then you communicate. Translation: You run up a bigger phone bill talking about toy bazookas than the Pentagon does talking about real ones.

"You are an abstraction, Dabbler. The middle man's middle man. My only question is this. How many of you are on payroll? How much of my money is going to Riesman pseudo-accomplishers?"

"Well, sir," said Dabbler, "I've often thought of myself as a fourth C—consultant. Why don't I form an investigative task force and write a report answering that question for you?"

Today In History

The first operation of standard time in North America began at midnight 92 years ago today — in 1883 — in eastern Nova Scotia. Scottish-born Sir Sandford Fleming, who came to Canada in 1845, probably had more to do with the introduction of standard time around the world than anyone else. He first publicly proposed the international standard time measurement at Toronto in 1879.

1776 — U.S. Confederate army retreated from Fort Lee, N.J.

1913 — Lincoln Beachy put first aircraft through a loop-the-loop manoeuvre at San Diego, Calif.

1929 — A 15-foot tidal wave struck part of Newfoundland's southwest coast, killing 27 persons and causing $1 million damage.

1936 — Toronto Globe bought the rival Mail and Empire and merged the two papers as The Globe and Mail.

1963 — Army coup overthrew government of Iran.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In your opinion...

'A rare act of courage'

On a recest television news broadcast, I witnessed a rare act of courage: a young man bold enough to charge his way through a wall of picketers after tearing up his union card in defiance of those who tried to exert their will on him.

Here was a young man with guts, who wanted to work and was not brainwashed by his so-called leaders.

I sincerely hope this portends a trend that more rank and file workers are starting to think for themselves and refuse to be sold a "bill of goods" by their hierarchy who purportedly are representing the rank and file workers.

Before a strike vote, let the union man ask himself these questions:

● Do these union leaders have to go without their pay cheques during a strike?

● Do I really want my family to suffer the consequent hardships of a strike?

● How much pay do I lose during any protracted strike?

● How long do I have to work to make up for this pay loss and when that time has elapsed will it be time for another strike?

● Do these union leaders work for me or are they governed by their superiors with ulterior and selfish motives?

● What happens to all the union dues and do I get a true financial picture from union financial statements?

● Ask yourself if any union leader has explained the fact that a healthy economy, business and corporate profits automatically lead to expansion, more jobs and less unemployment?

It is sickening to see an unemployment?

It is sickening to see and hear and read Joe Davidson, Len Guy and their ilk spouting irrational and vitriolic outbursts in the news media about corporate profits, big business, etc. etc.

Our jobs, livelihood and affluence in this wonderful Canada of ours are supplied by those very corporations and businesses that Joe Davidson and Len Guy and their cohorts are denouncing in their idiotic outbursts. Who are they trying to kid, and what is their true purpose?

Our governmests have anti-trust and combines laws, excess profits taxes etc., etc.

You rank and file workers can do something — think for yourselves. Don't be brainwashed. Elect reputable men to represent you — men who are broad and knowledgeable and educated enough to really have your interests at heart.

If you don't think for yourself, there will be only one real loser, YOU. Once again, I salute that young man with guts who was thinking for himself.

Waffle Movement stated the true goals of socialism

The NDP campaign of so-called political education appears aimed at convincing the unwary that socialism is concerned only with producing a welfare state. The true goals of socialism were better stated in the resolutions prepared by the Waffle Movement in the NDP for the party's federal convention in 1971.

The resolutions were rejected, not because they did not truly reflect socialist philosophy, but because they were considered too radical for popular consumption in Canada at that time. The following are random quotes from the Waffle Manifesto:

"A socialist extra-parliamentary strategy must reject the liberal concept of participatory democracy, which rests on the illusion of an ultimate community of interests and which denies the reality of class conflict.

"Participation by unions in labor-management committees, for example, is not a sufficient condition to alter the basic relationship of power and control between workers and management. We recognize that worker's control, in it's full sense, can never be realized under capitalism.

"The idea of men and women who are directly involved in production, exercising full control over the management of productive enterprises, is incompatible with the private ownership of those enterprises. The achievement of workers' control awaits the achievement of an independent socialist Canada."

We should stop accepting outmoded 19th century terminology such as "the workers", "the bosses", "class conflict" and "the people", without any clear definition as to just what is meant. Militant labor action is, in most cases today, taken against the masses, not "management". In a true socialist state, this would be regarded as crimes against the people and punished as such.

Who can tell us, before we go to the polls, what socialism really stands for? Perhaps we should ask some of those who signed the Waffle Manifesto, such as Dave Barrett, Eileen Dailly, Gordon Dowding, James Lorimer, Alex Macdonald or Norman Levi.

However, let us be aware that those who aspire to dictate the lives of their fellowmen, believe that the end justifies the means, and thus may not hesitate to reassure us that free enterprise and socialism are compatible.

There is only one real issue in this election, and it is not wage and price controls or whether some NDP sponsored programs are worthwhile.

Wallace bulwark against extremes

Apartment owner calls policy inadequate, unfair

There is a "brainwashing" going on in British Columbia these days, the result of which is a defeatism that should shame any self-respecting voter, namely: "We have to vote Bennett to get rid of Barrett".

Isn't it high time we said: "A pox on both your houses" to the far Left and and the far Right, and asked the best man in the Legislature, an honest, hard-working Scot, to get us out of this mess?

Very well, then — have the courage of your convictions and vote positively — for the Conservative in your riding.

Dr. Scott Wallace might not make it to the top this time round, but we could give him the balance of power to keep the extremes from wrecking this province. I want some responsible government — don't you?

MRS. E. M. COX
2680 Macdonald Drive
Victoria.

The present B.C. government's policy toward apartment owners is totally inadequate and unfair. That is—all apartments except new ones which are exempt.

What if they put controls on all existing bakeries or service stations? Then when heading for a disastrous shortage, lifted controls on all newly-built bakeries or service stations, but kept them on the rest. Would that make sense or would it be fair? Yet, this discrimination is done toward used apartment owners.

How can a government who brags about being fair and humanistic suppress one segment of society? A large percentage of voters do live in apartments. But is it right to acquire votes that way?

It is done to the glory of the poor old pensioner. Only the single pensioner is suffering, as he only receives half of a couple's income and rent is the same for one as for two.

But the assistance should come from profits and high wages. Why should I keep 30 apartments' rent low when I only have two pensioners? Most of the others had wage-increases of 17-27 per cent.

My second mortgage at 10 per cent is now due. The new rate is 15 per cent. This constitutes a 50 per cent increase or $2000 next year which has to be paid by me as the 8 per cent rent increase cannot cover that too.

To replace a first mortgage at 9 per cent to today's rate of 12 per cent equals a 33 1-3 per cent increase. Depending upon the size of the mortgage, an increase from 15-25 per cent on rents would be necessary to offset that alone.

Hydro increased twice in one year totalling 30 per cent. Hydro gas increased 50 per cent. Fuel oil increased also. Tenants who are supplied with heat should pay an extra 2 per cent.

I lost money last year. In all fairness I should at least make a mini-income as I do all repairs and caretaking myself. Last year I sold a house to keep the apartment going. This year I cashed my pension. Yet, being an apartment owner I live under the stigma of being a gouging, unscrupulous landlord.

David Barrett gave himself huge increases. His income is more than most high-rise owners. However, he continually puts forth a picture of a modern-day Robin Hood who is also fair to everybody. Why can't he understand that high interst is a "villain" which should be compensated for?

This attitude and policy toward used apartment owners is not socialistic but communistic. (I am a socialist myself). Quebec's rent controls are adjustable to landlords' expenses. Instead of criticizing Quebec, we should learn from them on this point.

Although there has been short-term gains to tenants by impossing controls, the end result will be a serious disaster to all.

People will be unable to move to other parts of B.C. for fear of not finding suitable accommodation. Houses will continually be out of reach for the lower income group as the shortage effectuates higher prices.

Then I wonder if Dave still will be grinning. But I must cedit him with the knowledge that a quick election is in his best interest.

'War brings out best in people'

Remembrance Day has come and gone. Once again, the Royal Canadian Legion arranged a beautiful ceremony at the Cenotaph in the Legislative precincts commemorating our war dead and those veteterans still hospitalized from injuries.

At a time when Canada so desperately needs everyone to stand up and be counted, what a chance was missed by our two daily newspapers to give leadership and inspiration. Although tributes were paid by a number of advertisers, where, oh where were the editorials?

It is a well known fact that war brings out the best in people. Today, we are sickened by news of escalating crime, pornography, lotteries, and even a drag queen ball in our city.

Canada's pioneers labored, fought and died that we might have a great country. Let us take up the challenge before it is too late.

B.C. oldsters view election from ringside

This election, vital to B.C.'s life, is honing the intellect of youth, satiating the skepticism of the mid-aged and rejuvenating the old.

Youth, pondering capitalism charisma, fear being led into economic depression wherein people laugh to live and cry for sustenance. Laughter and tears wasted on old-line party promises.

The middle-aged, floundering in the economic quicksand of capitalism, seek solid ground for family proviso. Grabbing at "free enterprise" straws to solidify security is demoralizing.

The old are ill-at-heart, yet fighting mad as they sit ringside and hear capitalism strutting as champions of the people. Oldsters have long refereed capitalism's self-centred champions. The old know 10th-round disgust.

B.C. oldsters want B.C.'s youth to speak up as rightful heirs to this bountiful province, and to its perpetuity. The old want the mid-aged to find solidarity and reward for its labor, and to preserve it for its children.

The oldsters want B.C. to vote. Not for petty, political charade, but for the party fighting to perpetuate B.C.'s total resources for all people for all time.

Zionism vote not fatal

Middle East peace move continues

Diplomats analysing the General Assembly vote on Zionism feel that the blow suffered by the United Nations although damaging, was not fatal.

They say the vote, despite dire predictions about the future of the UN and the flood of protests from Jewish groups around the world, has had no detrimental efect on the movement towards a peaceful settlement of Arab-Israeli hostility in the Middle East.

Israeli troops withdrew on Friday from the Ras Sudr oil fields in the Sinai in the first pullback of Israeli military forces under the disengagement agreement signed with Egypt in September.

A Liberian freighter carrying irrigation pipe from Israel to Iran entered the Egyptian-controlled Suez canal without impediment. The freighter carried the second Israeli cargo to transit the canal since Egypt agreed to such shipments in the September pact.

Specialized UN agencies, such as the World Bank and UN assistance programs for underdeveloped countries, still are going about their business, unaffected by the assembly vote.

Seeking to put the vote in its proper perspective, diplomats said the Arab-sponsored resolution, which sought to equate Zionism with racism, received support from only 72 of the 143 member-states in the UN, which is just a little above a majority of the total number of votes available.

The final count was 72 votes for the resolution, 35 against, 32 abstentions and three members absent.

The bulk of the votes in favor of the resolution came from Arab Middle East states, Moslem countries outside of the Arab world and members of the Eastern European Communist block.

The negative votes encompassed the Western European and North American democracies, including Canada, and a host of smaller countries generally allied with the West.

Among the 32 abstainees were a number of smaller under-developed African countries which were put in a delicate position when the Arab bloc pressed the issue.

All need Arab oil and, at the same time, depend heavily on the West for moral and economic support. Some had received general technical aid from Israel. When the vote came, they chose to stand aside.

Last time it happened it led to Hitler and war

By HARVEY B. SCHECHTER

Have you ever had the eerie feeling that something you are witnessing has happened before? For the past year that is precisely they way I have felt as I watched events unfold in the United Nations.

In October, 1974, I had the strange impression that "I had seen this all before" when the UN General Assembly voted 105 to 4 to permit an address by Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation organization.

That feeling returned last week when the same General Assembly approved, by a vote of 72 to 35 (32 nations abstained and three were absent), the anti-Israel resolution declaring Zionism to be a "form of racism and racial discrimination."

A year ago, when the United Nations voted to permit Arafat to speak to the assembly (which then gave him a standing ovation), my thoughts went back to 1936 when a small man named Haile Selassie appeared before the old League of Nations in Geneva.

His homeland, Ethiopia, had been invaded by the Italian fascists, and Selassie apealed to the nations of the world to do something about it. The league, however, turned its back on him, whereupon the Lion of Judah warned those nations that they, too, might well suffer the fate which had befallen his own country.

It took only three short years for the emperor's frightening prediction to come true. In September, 1939, the Nazi armies invaded Poland — and the Second World War was under way. Six years later, when the guns finally fell silent, approximately 35 million men, women and children were dead.

Last week, it seemed as if it were 1935 all over again, but this time is was Israel to which the nations of the world turned a deaf ear. Indeed, in its way, last week's episode was far more damning than what occurred in Geneva 40 years ago. Then, the League of Nations merely elected to sit passively while fascists raped a helpless Ethiopia. At the United Nations last week, an absolute majority of the world's sovereign countries actively joined in the attack on Israel.

What, after all, is Zionism? What makes it so dangerous that is must be condemned as a "form of racism and racial discrimination?" Zionism is nothing more than the dream, the hope, the commitment that there be a Jwish state, a piece of soil to which Jews can emigrate — whether out of religious or ideological conviction or for simple physical survival. That is all Zionism has ever been. That is all it is today.

To declare this movement "a form of racism" is to resurrect Hitler's "big lie," the propaganda technique whereby an outrageous and monstrous falsehood is repeated until people start believing it must be true.

It was exactly 40 years ago that Nazi Germany passed the infamous Nuremberg Laws which gave anti-Jewish edicts the color of legality and the cloak of legitimacy and respectability. We may very well be witnessing the first tentative steps toward an international version of those infamous laws. Jews who are citizens of those nations voting for the resolution on Zionism may be in physical danger.

If Zionism is "a form of racism and racial discrimination," are persons who believe in the basic notion of a Jewish homeland not themselves guilty of "racism and racial discrimination?" Are such persons to be subjected to whatever laws prohibiting "racism and racial discrimination" may exist on the statute books of countries that approved the resolution? Will those countries currently without such laws now put them on the books and apply them to their Jewish citizens?

Today, Israel, a tiny democracy in a sea of despotic and totalitarian states, sticks like a bone in tyranny's collective throat. But just as Hitler's war against the Jews was only a prelude to his war against all nations which opposed him, the Communist-Arab-Third World War against Israel is, in my judgment, merely a herald of things to come.

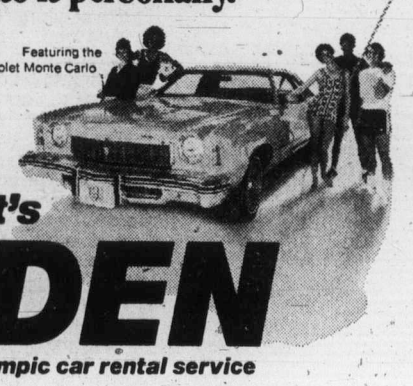

The issue is not really Israel and Zionism. The issue is the survival of democracy. This is an issue that affects Jew and Gentile alike, just as Hitler's campaigns ultimately did.

B.C. Liberal chief seeks sale of crown companies

BURNABY (CP) — The B.C government should sell some of its profitable crown corporations to raise money to reatriate foreign-owned businesses in the province, Liberal leader Gordon Gibson said Sunday.

Gibson, speaking at a Burnaby North nominating meeting, said B.C. residents should have right of first purchase of such crown corporations as CanCel and Plateau Mills.

"What should be done with them is take them out of the hands of the government and for starters put them in the hands of the (government-controlled) B.C. Development Corporation," Gibson said.

"When the market is right, they should be sold off, first to B.C. residents. This would recycle money to be used to repatriate foreign ownership in B.C."

Gibson said later he estimates there is enough money held by B.C. investors, financial institutions and pension funds to make the purchases.

"We can organize this kind of capital is B.C. Why should it all go to the U.S.?

"We could use the money as a revolving fund to keep buying up things. "Then the money would stay in B.C.," the Liberal leader said.

Nominated in Burnaby North to oppose Education Minister Eileen Dailly was Moshe Shillow, a property manager.

Former MLA loses bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The team of Stephen Rogers and Gerry Strongman took the Social Credit party nomination Sunday in the two-seat Vancouver South riding away from former MLA Agnes Kripps.

In a hard-fought constituency nomination for the Dec. 11 provincial election, Rogers and Strongman outpolled Mrs. Kripps nearly two to one in her bid to land either the first or second seat on the Social Credit ticket.

Mrs. Kripps, who represented the Vancouver South riding with former health minister Ralph Loffmark between 1969 and 1972, said in an interview after the meeting that she believed there was sabotage involved in her defeat.

BC75 X

"I want to verify numerous complaints I've received, especially those regarding the disenfranchisement of resident Vancouver South members present at the meeting," said Mrs. Kripps, who also is Vancouver South Social Credit constituency president.

"I will investigate other suspected irregularities," she said. "If my suspicions are correct then it is true that big business has taken control of the party and my loss is welcome because I do not feel at home in the new Social Credit party of big business."

More than 1,500 boisterous constituency members attended the meeting filling a high school auditorium, and spilling into the halls and cafeteria.

Rogers, 33, on leave from his position as an Air Canada overseas pilot, was the first to defeat Mrs. Kripps when he outpolled her 567 to 352 in the race for first spot on the Social Credit ticket.

Gerry Strongman, 39, a paint company president, held off Mrs. Kripps' bid for the second nomination by a vote of 547 to 320.

Mrs. Kripps, who outpoled Loffmark by 48 votes when the two were defeated in 1972, won her legislative claim to fame with her "B.O.L.T" speech.

In 1970, she advocated to the Legislature a sex education program for the province's high schools, but because of the connotations of the word sex, she urged that her program should be called B.O.L.T.—biology on life today.

"We will face B.O.L.T. education with a fresh open mind," she said.

Rent review pledged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two NDP members of the last Legislature said Sunday that an NDP governmest would set up some form of rent review to stop landlords from automatically raising rents the full legal limit unless they justify the increase.

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk and Emery Barnes, both members for Vancouver Centre, made the statement at an all-candidates meeting. Both are seeking re-election in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Present ceiling is 10.6 per cent, and Attorney - General Alex Macdonald said last month that next year a limit of about 8 per cent would be imposed.

Lauk said a review system would also allow landlords higher increases in some cases and "the onus has to be on landlords to show where costs have increased."

He also said the NDP would bring in an amendment to the Landlord and Tenant Act to protect permanent residents of rooming houses and hotels from large and uncontrolled rent increases. Rooming house and hotel rental increases are a major issue in the east end.

Barnes said the government also was working on the problem of landlords raising food costs in room-and-board situations in order to get around rent controls.

Malcolm Wright, the Vancouver Centre Conservative candidate, said he would retain rent controls, although he wouldn't have introduced them in the first place. Immediate scrapping of controls would lead to much hardship for tenants, he said.

Helen Boyce, a Vancouver alderman who said she hopes to be nominated by the Liberals for Vancouver-Centre on Wednesday, told the meeting that mothers should be encouraged to stay at home with their children to avoid the "impersonal environment of day-care centres."

The Social Credit party was not represented.

Brother opposes Lorimer election

BURNABY (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer has encountered political opposition from within his own family in his bid to gain re-election in the Burnaby-Willingdon constituency in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

"It's nothing personal," Lorimer's brother Malcolm told a Social Credit nominating meeting in the riding Sunday, "but I want you to return my brother to the practice of law and me to the business of mining."

"The means returning the candidate to Victoria to support a government that believes in a private enterprise system that works instead of a socialist system that has been a dismal failure," Malcolm Lorimer, a mining engineer, told the convention.

He made the comments in a speech on the effects of the New Democratic Party government's mining legislation on the industry, and said that the government's controversial Mineral Royalties Act has done the most to discourage mining in this province.

Wage controls and you, the consumer: the truth.

The fact is, wage and price controls aren't going to help you cope with the cost of living.

Because controls won't work against the corporations who set prices.

For instance, the government says it's "not feasible" to control mortgage interest rates. So housing costs are going to keep going up.

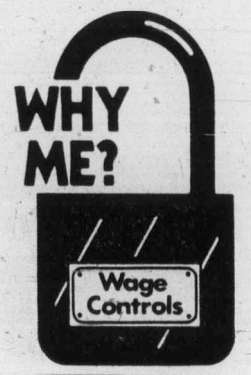

They've also said they'll let the price of energy continue rising.

And food... how are they going to control an industry that increased its profits by nearly 50% during the worst inflationary years (1971 to 1974)?

The cost of living will keep going up because profits will keep going up. The corporations can find enough loopholes in the regulations to ensure that.

And, in the meantime, wage controls will keep your income down. That can be controlled.

Ask yourself—and maybe you should ask your government—"Why me?"

Provincial COURT

Passing of 13 worthless cheques for a total of $1,374.66 drew an 18-year-old Victoria woman nine months in prison and a three-year probation term Monday in Victoria provincial court.

Judge Harold Alder imposed concurrent sentences of the same duration on all charges and also ordered her to attend a drug treatment centre as another requirement to her probation.

The offences all took place between June and August of this year.

Eighteen-year-old Clifford Lennox Coombs of Victoria received a three-month term for escaping lawful custody. He appeared in the court section of Judge William Ostler.

Coombs walked away from Jordan River prison camp June 18 and was arrested Oct. 22 in Victoria.

Defence lawyer William McElmolyle told Ostler, before the sentencing, that Coombs felt considerable pressure at Jordan River and also felt he was assaulted on a couple of occasions. McElmoyle also noted that Christopher Ward Engels, who walked away from the prison at the same time, was given a five-day sentence by Judge Douglas Campbell in Victoria Provincial Couurt.

Ostler noted, however, that Engels was at large only three days.

McElmoyle also said that Coombs went to Prince George to visit his foster father, who had suffered a heart attack.

Richard John Dobbyn, 19, of 610 Gorge, received a 14-day sentence after pleading guilty to breach of a probation order between Jan. 3 and Sept. 10 of this year.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang told Ostler that Dobbyn failed to report to the probation officer as directed, did not notify the offficer of a change of address and failed to comply with an order to attend a community diversion centre program, which Ostler had ordered on Jan. 3 after suspending sentence on two charges of fraudulently obtaining lodgings.

"I think this has gone far enough, the charge is dismissed," Ostler said in the case of David George Sebastian.

A mixup resulted in the crown prosecutor not being able to determine if the charge was breach of probation or mischief in connection with an Aug. 10 incident in Prince Rupert.

Ostler asked how many times the accused man had appeared in court and the answer was three, at which point Ostler made his decision to throw out the case.

Olympics

Outlook not all gloomy

It's not all black for the plague-ridden 1976 Montrea. Olympics.

No problems are expected in finding accommodation for the 200,000 expected spectators at the summer games, Michel Langlois, a director of an Air Canada subsidiary involved in finding rooms-at-the-inn for Olympic fans, said in Victoria Monday.

Canaplan, an Air Canada company involved in tours, is one of six companies involved with the Quebec Lodging Bureau, which is responsible for policing private-home accommodation.

Montreal-area hotels and motels will have only about 10,000 available rooms per day and the other 90,000 rooms required during the games will be supplied by families willing to turn their homes into temporary hostelries.

As of last week, about 20,000 rooms have been approved by the bureau, which is setting maximum room rates and inspecting all accommodation to ensure it meets the required standards, he said.

Langlois said he does not expect the same problems with private-home accommodation as those encountered during Expo 67, when there was no control on quality and price.

Pact 'amazes' Victoria police

The Victoria police arbitration award handed down Monday may be binding on both the city and the police union, but that doesn't mean the police have to like it.

Under the arbitration report, first-class constables in the city will receive $10 a month more than their counterparts in Saanich, but corporals and sergeants will receive less.

Union president Sgt. Pat Braiden said Monday night he was "totally amazed" by the report, adding that arbitrator Guy Barclay did not accept an agreement already worked out by the city and the union on the indexing system fixing wages for higher ranks.

Braiden said the city had agreed to follow the same index used by Saanich in setting rates for corporals and sergeants.

In the one-year contract set in the arbitration, a first class constable will earn $1,360 a month, an increase of $256, while corporals will make $1,428 and sergeants $1,564. Corporals in Saanich receive $133 more and sergeants $56 more.

The report also contains minor improvements in vacations and boot and clothing allowances.

Braiden said the union's lawyer will attempt to meet with the city's solicitor to iron out the problems.

In Oak Bay, Mayor Brian Smith told council Monday night that the muunicipality is bound to accept the same wage package for its police force, but changes can be made in fringe benefits.

Victoria mayor-elect Ald. Mike Young said that personally he would not want to see changes made in the arbitration report.

Teachers, boards set terms

Eighteen basic agreements between teacher associations and school boards in the province have been settled, Bill Broadley, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, announced on the weekend in Vancouver.

Of the 18, three are what are called satellite agreements, that is, they are key to settlements in adjacent districts.

Two were reached before the federal wage and price guidelines — in Lillooet where the increase in pay will be 22 per cent, and Nechako where the payroll will go up 16.7 per cent.

Ten of the 18 basic agreements are estimated at close to the guidelines, or around 11 to 12 per cent.

This leaves some 60 school districts which will now go to arbitration, Broadley said, involving 46 arbitration boards. Friday midnight was the deadline for agreements without resort to arbitration.

Alberni and Campbell River are believed the only school districts on Vancouver Island where agreement has been reached.

Saskatchewan liquor men back

REGINA (CP) — A six-week strike by employees of the Saskatchewan Liquor Board ended Monday night under the leadership of provincial mediator Stan Williams.

The strike had dried up liquor supplies in the province almost completely. All outlets in the province were expected to be open by 11 a.m. today.

Postal officials apply for picket injunction

VANCOUVER (CP) — A B.C. supreme court judge adjourned until today an application filed by federal postal officials for an injunction against pickets.

The Post Offide applied Monday for an exparte injunction against the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, but Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson declined to grant such an injunction.

Anderson ruled that Vancouver union officials as well as some of the pickets must be served with notices of the injunction application, and set a hearing for today.

Postal officials said in court Monday that violence and obstruction on the picket line at the main downtown office began the first day of the strike and had increased since then.

Gerald Donegan, appearing for the federal department of justice, said the post office does not seek to stop lawful picketing.

Spectrum defeat end of idea?

The defeat of Spectrum Community school's auditorium at Saanich polls Saturday may also mean the end of the community school idea at Spectrum, teacher Milt Wright said Monday.

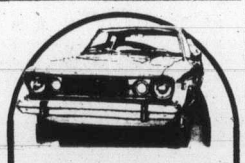

The auditorium was to provide space for a variety of community activities, he said. A community theatre group, rehearsing its first production now, would have been one of the users. The group's premiere may also be its finale, he added.

Greater Victoria School Board will hold a special meeting Wednesday night in the school's library to discuss Spectrum's situation.

Wright, head of the school's auditorium project, said his comments are only conjecture at the moment, but he thinks Spectrum without the auditorium will have to operate as a conventional school.

Wet 'n' dry

The flavour of a great gin must be subtle, yet individual enough to blend perfectly with your favourite mix. It must stand alone, with the merest hint of vermouth, for a perfect dry Martini.

Melchers Maxi-Dry is, quite simply, a first class gin—and one of the most popular of all dry gins. Whether you're a mixer or a loner, try it. No other gin is quite as good, wet or dry.

Wage controls and you, the worker: the truth.

Wage and price controls are supposed to protect you from inflation.

But, in practice, wage controls will keep your income down, while price controls are virtually unworkable—even the Prime Minister concedes that.

You didn't cause inflation. You're the victim of it. But you'll end up paying for it.

"Why me?", you might ask.

Because it's easier for the government to crack down on wage claims. They're out in the open. But corporations will find all kinds of loopholes in the regulations. The government admits as much. Prices and profits are going to keep rising.

It's easy to see who causes inflation. Average incomes of working Canadians went up 25% from 1971 to 1974.

But corporate profits more than doubled—up 111%.

Someone's going to suffer for all this.

Ask yourself—and maybe you should ask your government—"Why me?"

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The industrial index rose more than a point on the Toronto stock market Monday, sustaining its longest rally since early January.

Analysts said investors were encouraged by rising prices in New York. They said the current rally in Toronto appeared quite strong and it was significant that little profit-taking occurred.

Trading resumed in shares of Melton Real Estate and the issue closed down 25 cents at $3.75. Trading was halted Friday when the company announced it was negotiating the sale of its brokerage real estate division.

Agra Industries, which reported it has obtained an option to purchase all stocks of Coast Steel Fabricators Ltd., closed down 10 cents at $4.90.

Camflo mines, which reported lower third-quarter earnings, was down ⅜ at $8⅝.

Among industrials, Moore Corp. rose 1 to $49½, Riverside Yarns A 65 cents to $4.60 and Toronto Dominion Bank ⅝ to $43. Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas fell ¾ to $35½ and Crown Life Insurance ½ to $56½.

In mines, Hollinger A was up 1 to $28½ and Denison ½ to $52. Kerr Addison A was off ⅜ at $9½ and United Asbestos 25 cents at $4.10.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for a solution to New York City's money problems started a mild advance in the stock market Monday and nudged the Dow Jones industrial average up to its highest close in nearly four months.

With President Ford in Paris for an economic summit meeting, there were few new signs during the session of the administration's feelings on the idea of federal help for New York City. Analysts gave a good share of the credit for last week's 17.87-point gain in the Dow belief that White House opposition to such aid was softening.

But the absence of new evidence did not seem to deter the market.

"The New York situation still has the market treading cautiously," said Saul Smerling at Standard and Poor's Corp. "But every day there seem to be more people edging over nto the optimistic camp."

Aside from the New York question, analysts also pointed out that the economic news remained largely favorable.

California's BankAmerica Corp., parent holding company of the largest U.S. bank, said in its third-quarter report that the pickup showing up now in economic activity suggested a generally favorable business climate in 1976.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index posted a .49 gain to 91.46 and the NYSE's composite of more than 1,500 common issues rose .24 to 48.40.

British firm finds oil in Pakistan

ISLAMABAD (Reuter) — A British-owned company has discovered oil in Pakistan that will save the country between $5-6 million a year in foreign exchange, the Pakistani government announced Monday.

Yusuf Khattak, the minister for fuel, power and natural resources, said the Attock Oil Co. had struck oil at Meyal, 70 miles north of Islamabad. The find was estimated at about 2,000 barrels a day.

The minister said more strikes were likely.

Economic bottom not hit yet

Europe still sliding

GENEVA (Reuter) — Business indicators and order books suggest the economic recessions in most European countries have not yet bottomed out, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe said Monday.

In a survey of recent changes in European trade, the ECE said Italy, Britain, Austria, Belgium, Denmark and Switzerland appeared to be still heading lower in their business cycles.

All West European countries except Norway and Sweden are likely to cut imports in 1975, and it is possible that no country will export as much as in 1974, the survey showed.

But West Germany should expect some recovery in the closing months of the year, and France is probably on the way to regaining ground, the ECE said.

It added that a fall in the prices of imported primary commodities is partly responsible for a slowdown of the increase in domestic prices.

But the report said: "Hardly any progress has so far been achieved in reconciling a sustained growth rate of output with an only moderate rate of inflation."

Recovery programs announced in a number of countries should allow for an increase in gross national product — the total value of goods and services produced by a country — of about 4.5 per cent in France, 4 per cent in West Germany and 3.7 per cent in the Netherlands, the ECE said.

Most other countries can expect an expansion of between 1 and 2 per cent, it added.

The spread of recession among West European economies is not surprising in view of their interdependence, the ECE reported.

The report said the unemployment pattern is unusual. It reached its highest levels since 1945 this summer with 4.2 million people officially registered as jobless, compared with 2.5 million one year before.

Several countries had 4 per cent unemployment rates and Ireland had 8 per cent.

"These are disturbingly high rates, but might appear rather low in comparison with the large fall in output," the ECE said.

Bad year for livestock

REGINA (CP) — The 12 months ended July 31 were the most disastrous that Saskatchewan livestock producers have ever experienced, the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool's board of directors said Monday.

Reporting on operations of the livestock division at the 51st annual meeting, the directors said a high build-up of cattle with soaring costs "left almost every feedlot . . . empty, dropped prices of feeder cattle sharply and made finding a market for cattle almost impossible." The division's loss was $685,632 on the year.

Tobacco auctions shut

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — Ontario flue-cured tobacco growers protested Monday against what they described as a month of low prices for their crops by shutting down indefinitely the auctions at Tillsonburg, Delhi and Aylmer.

Stan Smith, director of the tobacco growers' marketing board, in commenting on the action by the growers, said offers by tobacco buyers in the first month of selling have averaged a little more than 87 cents a hundredweight, compared with more than 92.4 cents at the same time last year.

Smith said farmers will be unable to repay bank loans if the situation continues.

The growers decided to walk out after two hours at the auctions Monday convinced them prices had not gone up.

Buyers decided this year to guarantee growers a minimum average price for the entire crop of 94 cents.

Speech flays press

MONTREAL (CP) — Anthony Hampson, Canada Development Corp. president, criticized Canada's financial journalists Monday for being superficial, poorly educated and suffering from "the sheep syndrome."

Many financial journalists are superficial in that they skate over the surface of news, neglecting to place events in a national context, said Hampson of Vancouver in an address in French to a seminar billed "the crises of the growth of economic information in Quebec."

News articles on economic matters appear superficial because too many journalists do not have a proper grounding in the world of finance, he said. He suggested journalists follow courses to enhance their knowledge of the affairs they are reporting.

Hampson criticized the financial press for not daring to be innovative. The press was guilty of "the sheep syndrome," he said.

Hampson's views were shared by several other speakers from government and business who attended the one day seminar sponsored by the Quebec Association of Economic Journalists.

Most of the journalists participating in the seminar criticized governemnt and business officials for being too tight-lipped.

Sales tax urged 'Canada—wide'

OTTAWA (CP) — Executive Nathan Starr called Monday for a nation-wide retail sales tax rather than a wholesale tax to ensure equal treatment of competing goods.

Starr, executive vice-president of Acklands Ltd., said in a brief to the federal government the wholesale tax as proposed last June 23 would make some improvement but only a retail sales tax "will bring fairness to the system."

Ottawa's proposal is to move the federal 12 per cent sales tax to the wholesale from the manufacturer's level.

"At least 70 per cent of all domestic product sales do not involve a wholesaler," Starr said. "The problem with a wholesale tax is that national values will have to be established by tax authorities for hundreds of thousands of transactions which will not actually take place at the wholesale level."

He said both manufacturer's and wholesale taxes are marked up as a product moves through the distribution system.

"This wouldn't happen with a tax at a retail level, so the over-all price impact should be less," he said.

"The only way to achieve complete neutrality is a retail tax because it is added on after all other costs, no matter how the product is marketed. And you don't have to assume fictitious values as with a wholesale tax."

Acklands is Canada's largest wholesaler of automotive parts and accessories.

Castro lures tourist dollar

HAVANA (Reuter) — Premier Fidel Castro's government, which cautiously reopened Cuban beaches to Western tourists last year, has permitted a foreign organization to operate a vacation centre on the island.

The French-owned Club Mediterranee, which runs tourist centres in such places as Martinique, Hawaii and Tahiti, will manage a holiday village at Bacurano, a small palm-fringed beach 10 miles east of here. If the venture proves successful, the club will build a 100-bed village in picturesque Varadero, 90 miles further east.

Alain Bahuet, the club's manager, said the first group of tourists from Europe will fly here later this week. He said he expects about 1,000 tourists on the island during the current season which ends next April 30.

Canadians should make up about 30 per cent of the club's clientele after Air Canada opens the Ottawa-Havana route early next year.

New skin developed

PEKING (Reuter) — Chinese army doctors have developed artifical human skin, the People's Daily reports.

It is said the skin had been used successfully in 403 out of 506 cases and had a "grafting afficiancy" of 86.2 per cant.

It said its advantages were that it could be made in large quantities and stored easily in plastic bags, and had no irritant effect.

$5,000 protection asked

By PAULINE COUTURE

MONTREAL (CP) — Three witnesses — two of them under police protection — came forward Monday to testify about strong-arm practices as the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime resumed public hearings.

In the next five weeks, commission counsel said, the public will be given evidence of more than 350 incidents of intimidation, extortion, protection, conspiracy, drug trafficking, usury underworld "settling of accounts," theft and reception of stolen goods, false passports and gambling.

The hearings, scheduled to last until Dec. 19, resumed Monday after a series of closed-door sessions.

Among objectives fixed by the three-man commission is to inform the public of the "people who live from crime at the public's expense" and to bring to light connections between the Montreal underworld and organized crime in the United States and Italy.

Chief inquiry lawyer Rejean Paul said in opening remarks that the RCMP, the Quebec provincial police and Montreal police had co-operated with law enforcement agencies in both countries to prepare evidence for the hearings.

The inquiry heard from Joseph Petrozza, 41, owner of a suburban pizzeria, that in February, 1974, he was visited by two men who told him he must pay them $5,000 for protection. He was told "there would be trouble" if he did not pay.

The afternoon session dealt mostly with testimony about attempts by Pierre Gagnon, a construction worker, and Pierre Begin, who describes himself as an "advertising representative," to settle an overdue amount owed by Harry Engelstein, owner of a construction company, to Luigi Salvatore, a contractor in brick.

But despite prodding from the commissioners and their counsel, the testimony from witnesses Gagnon, Begin and Salvatore included frequent assertions that they could not remember details or that they did not remember events in the same way as they had apparently described them earlier in closed-door sessions with commission counsel.

Gunman kills big cats at Calgary game farm

CALGARY (CP) — RCMP said a gunman shot and killed two Siberian tigers, a jaguar and a cougar at the Wildlife Unlimited game reserve 45 miles west of the city at the weekend. The animals were worth up to $12,000.

Antoher cougar, a female jaguar and a third tiger were wounded. RCMP said the caged animals were shot in the head with a .22-calibre pistol.

The gunman cut through barbed wire fences and climbed a nine-foot wall to get in. Owner Mickey Bailey had notified RCMP earlier of three separate sniping attempts.

Judge calls two-day halt in Lynette Fromme trial

UPI

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme may be acquitted of attempting to assassinate President Ford because the prosecution withheld evidence that could aid her.

U.S. district court judge Thomas J. MacBride said he was "quite concerned" over a defence motion calling for a mistrial and ordered a two-day recess Monday.

Attorney John Virga, defending Miss Fromme on a charge of attempting to assassinate Ford with a pistol Sept 5, moved for a mistrial or dismissal of the government's case.

MacBride, who met with Virga and the Manson cultist defendant in his chambers, recessed the case until Wednesday and took the motions under submission as the trial started its third week.

In open court, MacBride said of Virga's arguments, "I'm plenty worried. I'm quite concerned."

Virga insisted the prosecution had suppressed a statement to investigators by a witness, James Damir, who said he heard Miss Fromme, 27, say shortly after she thrust her .45-calibre pistol at the president, "it's not loaded anyway, it's not loaded anyway."

The gun contained four rounds in the ammunition clip and none in the firing chamber. MacBride said that "one of the main issues" in the trial was whether Miss Fromme knew the chamber was empty or intended it to contain a bullet.

"That's what the case is all about," the judge said.

Virga noted that MacBride had ordered prosecutors at the outset to turn over to the defence all "exculpatory evidence" to give him the opportunity to make maximum use of evidence that would tend to clear the defendant.

"I certainly would look on that (Damir's statement) as exculpatory evidence," MacBride said, criticizing assistant U.S. attorney Donald Heller for failing to turn over the statement promptly.

Heller said Damir had repudiated the remark and had testified before the grand jury which indicted Miss Fromme that he heard her say, "It didn't go off anyway, what are you worrying about."

Moore ruled sane

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sara Jane Moore, accused of the attempted assassination of President Ford, was found mentally competent Monday and ordered to stand trial Dec. 15.

After hearing a unanimous report from psychiatrists and psychologists, U.S. district judge Samuel Conti ruled she was competent and refused to delay the trial past the previously scheduled date.

Conti noted that one psychiatric report found that Miss Moore, a onetime FBI informant and mother of a 9-year-old boy, had "intellectual abilities above average." She is accused of firing a shot at Ford outside the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco Sept. 22.

Company officials had decided Saturday to lock out members of the Canadian Aluminum, Smelting and Allied Workers Union, but agreed later to postpone the shutdown and discuss the situation with King.

Scorpions split series

Scorpions were close to ending their Saturday-win, Sunday-lose syndrome on the weekend when a violent foul and a brothers' concern intervened.

The defending Dogwood Senior "A" Men's Basketball League champions have developed a habit of winning Saturday night and losing Sunday afternoon on the Mainland, and this past weekend was no exception. But there were extenuating circumstances.

Scorpions bounced the Vancouver A's 110-97, Saturday at Winston Churchill but dropped a 112-103 decision Sunday.

Scorpions played Vancouver to a 52-52 draw in the first half Sunday and were ahead by five points in the third quarter when Don Burrows went in clear on a layup. He was in midair when Vancouver's Blake Iverson pushed him from behind and Burrows went crashing into the wall, approximately three feet from the end of the court.

Bob Burrows, the Scorpions leading scorer, and Don's older brother was incensed by the foul and went after Iverson, knocking the former UBC Thunderbird to the floor.

Bob Burrows was ejected from the game and although Don recovered and continued to play, his shoulder and arm were stiff.

Vancouver rallied after the incident and took an 82-78 lead into the fourth quarter and Iverson came back into the game and scored six points in the final quarter.

Bob Burrows, who scored 34 points against the A's Saturday, scored 14 points, while Brian MacKenzie topped the Scorpions with 19.

Top thoroughbred destroyed Sunday

KENNETT SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — Prince Thou Art, the three-year-old colt whose broken ankle was mended in emergency surgery last week, was destroyed Sunday after he accidentally shattered another bone in the same leg.

Doctors at the New Bolton Centre of the University of Pennsylvania's veterinary school said the horse, the winner of the Florida Derby, was destroyed an hour after he broke the bone below his left front leg while getting up in his stall.

"The situation was so complex and the prognosis so grave that further treatment was unjustifiable," said Dr. James Roberts.

The horse, insured for $1 million by owner John Galbreth, broke his left front fetlock Nov. 8 in a routine workout at Belmont Park.

The colt's original injury, which made his foot wobble from side to side, was said to be worse then that sustained by filly Ruffian, who had to be destroyed in July after snapping her right front ankle in a much-publicized match race.

Doctors said the horse had been recovering well, despite a digestive upset that weakened him late in the week.

Flyers move up

Doug Lafleur's late goal enabled Fuller Lake Flyers to take sole possession of third place in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League Sunday.

Lafleur scored with a little more than a minute remaining to give the Flyers a 5-5 tie with Juan de Fuca Metro Toyota Gulls at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Fuller Lake moved one point ahead of Victoria Ray's Red Wings but the Red Wings have three games in hand.

Tracy Sherwood, Doug Simpson, Phil Cowley and Greg Chadwick scored the other Flyers goals while Don Walushka scored twice and Kevin Kellington, Barry McLachland and Ron Hope scored once each for Juan de Fuca.

WESTERN MINES LIMITED

INTERIM REPORT NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 30, 1975

To The Shareholders

EARNINGS

Net earnings for the first nine months of 1975 were $382,288 or 7c per share versus $3,662,930 or 70c per share for the comparable perod in 1974. Lower copper prices, increased operating costs, an effective tax rate of 85% of profits and increased exploration expenditures were primarily responsible for the decline in earnings for the comparable period.

However, net corporate cash flow on a year-to-day basis for the first nine months is $1,475,000 compared to $372,000 budgeted at the beginning of the year. The principal reason for this improvement is the higher price of zinc, which represents 40% of Western's revenues from mine production.

PRODUCTION

64,456 tons were milled in the quarter, down from 76,978 tons milled in the previous quarter. The lower tonnage reflects the voluntary two-week July holiday shutdown, instituted for the first time this year and consistent with the emerging practice in the British Columbia mining industry. The daily operating rate continues at the maximum permitted by the Pollution Control Board.

Employees at our Buttle Lake mine, who are members of the United Steel Workers of America, have overwhelmingly voted in favour of a two-year agreement.

Lateral and vertical development of 1,654 feet and 1,011 feet respectively was completed during the quarter at the Buttle Lake property. Based on a new interpretation of a section of the Myra Creek Mine, a cross cut is presently being driven towards a block of ground where high grade ore has been indicated. Intersection of the projected position of this inferred high grade zone should take place in the latter part of December.

EXPLORATION

Metal Mining

Twelve exploratory holes totalling 3,367 feet, were drilled on the Mount Freegold prospect in the Yukon Territory between May and July. This examination indicated an extensive copper-molybdenite porphyry deposit of sub-economic grade and Western's interest in this prospect was terminated.

At the beginning of the year exploration targets, compatible with the skills and experience of the Company's geologists, were identified as lead zinc ores in carbonate environments and ores in volcanogenic environments similar to those at the Myra Creek property.

As part of the lead zinc program, 1,300 claims were staked in the Pine Point area on our Great Slave project and preliminary winter work has commenced there.

A reconnaissance of volcanogenic ores in the U.S.A. has led us to the detailed investigation of two metal mining properties in Northern California. Geochemical surveys have yielded encouraging anomalies on an adjacent rhyolite horizon. It is hoped that drill targets will be identified by mid-year 1976.

Coal

Total recoverable reserves on Pounding Mill Coal Company's leases in Kentucky were calculated at 8,057,000 tons, principally of metallurgical quality. A cash flow analysis of a 500,000 ton per year clean coal operation on the property indicated that the project would not yield an acceptable rate of return under the terms and conditions negotiated in the option agreement, which was therefore terminated at the end of August.

We are continuing our search for well located coal reserves which have the potential to yield cash flow and earnings to Western within a one to two-year framework.

Policy

In both the hard rock and the coal program, it is our intention to seek partners on all projects, thereby greatly enlarging our exploration exposure. The coal program is specifically directed towards improving your Company's earnings position within a two-year time frame whilst the hard rock program is directed towards those projects located in proximity to know mineralization.

DIVIDEND

The Board of Directors has declared a dividend of forty cents per share payable December 17, 1975 to shareholders of record as of December 10, 1975. If you are not a registered shareholder we urge you to register your shares at any office of our transfer agent, Canada Permanent Trust Company, in order to ensure prompt receipt of this dividend.

SPECIAL MEETING

An Extraordinary General Meeting of Shareholders has been called for January 13, 1976 to vote on certain shareholder proposals. Your Board of Directors and management unanimously recommend a vote against these proposals as not being in the best interest of the Company and all its shareholders.

CONCLUSION

The present industry-wide problems of stringent regulation, confiscatory taxation, soaring inflation and irreversibly rising costs of operation have impacted harshly on Western Mines as a single mine operator in one province of Canada. While undertaking all practical cost reducing measures, the existing conditions under which Western is forced to operate do not allow us to be optimistic about any improvement in operating results for the fourth quarter.

Fortunately, however, we are in a unique position to move forward. Western Mines, with your investment in it, can become a major company in the resource industry but only if its geographical and product diversification plans continue to proceed. We have set these goals for Western Mines and make them our commitment to you.

National lacrosse coach visits Victoria

National lacrosse coach Ron Pither of Oshawa visited Victoria on Monday to meet with junior players and executives. He discussed objectives of national program with junior players Norm Baker, rear, Steve Hepburn, Mike Hardy, Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool. Sponsored by the O'Keefe Foundation, Pither has been touring Canada to meet with provincial organizations and get views on what they feel is need to improve the coaching and playing standards. He will be initiating national and provincial coaching clinics and hopes to organize intensive training camps for players in five areas of Canada.

Lack of pass defence leaves O. J. in arrears

A team with O. J. Simpson and no pass defence is exciting, but it makes every game a tossup.

And that's the way it is for Buffalo Bills, who were exciting enough in the Monday night National Football League show but wound up at 5-4 for the season when Cincinnati Bengals outscored them, 33-24.

Simpson was great. He broke loose for 58 and 44-yard runs in the first half, started the third quarter with 154 yards in nine carries, and then got little chance to set another National Football League record because the Bills were behind and fighting the clock — a combination which called for Joe Ferguson to do a lot of passing.

The reason Bills were trailers was the lack of a pass defence. Seldom having to hurry, Cincinnati-quarterback Ken Anderson set a personal high in completing 30 of 46 passes for 447 yards.

Two of Anderson's throws, one each to Lenvil Elliott and Charlie Joiner, were for touchdowns, and he set up two short touchdown bursts by rookie Stan Fritts.

Simpson, who moved closer to an NFL record by rushing for both Buffalo touchdowns, wound up with 197 yards for 17 carries. Needing only three yards to become the first NFL player with five 200-yard games, Simpson didn't get the ball except for a pass in the Bills' last sequence. He now has 1425 yards for the season, and five games remaining in which to surpass the pre-season high of 2003 yards he set in 1973.

Also within reach this season is Lenny Moore's record of rushing for touchdowns in 11 consecutive games. Simpson has now scored at least one touchdown on the ground in nine consecutive games.

Defeat almost certainly knocked the Bills out of the playoffs. At 5-4 with a tough schedule remaining, they are two games behind Miami Dolphins in their division and tied with the amazingly-improved Baltimore Colts for second place. And with the Bengals and Pittsburgh Steelers both 8-1 and Houston Oilers 7-2 in the American Conference's Central Division, the wild-card playoff spot also seems out of reach.

Play Sunday was featured by four last-seconds victories, and the feature of features was the 20-17 win pulled out against Washington Redskins by St. Louis Cardinals.

The game was decided in overtime, but the tying points came in the last 25 seconds on a play which will bring argument for years each time it is brought up.

Only 25 seconds remained and the Cardinals were in close on a fourth-and-goal situation. Jim Hart passed into the end zone and Mel Gray made a leaping catch. But he lost control of the ball before his feet came down, and it took a huddle by game officials before it was decided that he had, in the official view, had control of the ball long enough to count.

Jim Bakken, who has had a tremendous season with his clutch kicking, then tied the score by converting — and seven minutes into the overtime won it with a 37-yard field goal. The Cards won the toss and the Redskins didn't get to scrimmage the ball in the sudden-death extra period.

In Sunday's other frantic finishes, Philadelphia Eagles, who have lost three times in the last seconds, got a 30-yard field goal from Horst Muhlmann with 28 seconds left to nip New York Gaints, 13-10; Errol Mann kicked a 23-yard field goal with 23 seconds left to give Detroit Lions a 13-10 win over Green Bay Packers, and Ronnie Coleman made a tackle-busting seven-yard touchdown run with 71 seconds left to bring Houston Oilers a 20-19 win over the Dolphins.

Wild Royal City hockey now under investigation

By STAN COOPER

Several Western Canada Hockey League governors are concerned with the violent nature of most games at Queen's Park Arena in New Westminster this season and they're attempting to do something about it.

League-president Ed Chynoweth was polling governors Monday to request a meeting later this week in Saskatoon, probably on Thursday.

The latest brawl in the Royal City took place Sunday, when Victoria Cougars dropped a 5-3 decision to the Bruins in a wild affair marked by 34 penalties, totalling 192 minutes. Both teams drew seven majors and Victoria had one misconduct. Five Cougars, two of them getting two, were tagged with game misconducts, and the Bruins drew two game misconducts.

While there were no injuries reported, similar incidents in New Westminster have resulted in injuries to visiting players.

Lethbridge Broncos had four players injured in a recent series with the Bruins and defenceman Darcy Regier suffered a broken jaw. Bronco-manager Bill Burton reportedly has refused to bring his team back to New Westminster until the situation is improved.

And Saskatoon manager Jackie McLeod, who watched his team drop two decisions to the Bruins recently, complained bitterly that his top scoring line was beaten up early in the first game by Bruin players.

Cougar-coach Pat Ginnell said Monday he was in favor of a meeting but didn't know what action the governors could take against the Bruins.

"We're not scared of the Bruins but I understand some of the Eastern Division clubs find it hard to play in New Westminster, particularly the teams with a lot of rookies" Ginnell said.

Cougars levelled 48 shots at Bruin netminder Carey Walker on Sunday but Danny Lucas was the only successful shooter, scoring all three goals.

It was the second loss in as many nights to the Western Division leaders and Cougars are seven points behind the third - place Medicine Hat Tigers.

Dodgers trade Wynn to Braves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers announced Monday a National League baseball trade sending centrefielders Jimmy Wynn and Tom Paciorek plus infielders Lee Lacy and Jerry Royster to Atlanta Braves for centrefielder Dusty Baker and infielder Ed Goodson.

Wynn, 33, a 13-year major league veteran, had provided power for the Dodgers in his first season with them after coming from Houston before the 1974 season. But after a bad elbow hampered him in 1975 and the Dodgers finished 20 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West, Los Angeles went looking for a long-ball hitter again.

Last season the 26-year-old Baker batted .262 with 19 home runs and 72 runs batted in to lead the Braves in both categories. His best season among eight in the majors was 1973 when he had 21 homers, drove in 99 runs and stole 24 bases.

Wynn had 18 homers and hit .248 last season after hitting 32 the year before, when he drove in 108 runs for the Dodgers. But hampered by an elbow that bothered him after surgery during the off-season, he fell to 58 runs batted in during 1975.

Maloney in court

TORONTO (CP) — Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings will appear in court in Toronto Dec. 1 charged with assault causing bodily harm, Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Monday.

McMurtry said outside the legislature that the attorney-general's department has decided to proceed against the hockey player by indictment.

The attorney-general said Maloney was served with a summons when he voluntarily visited Windsor last Tuesday.

Defenceman Brian Glennie of Toronto Maple Leafs and Maloney were involved in an incident during a game Nov. 5 in Toronto.

The maximum penalty on the assault charge under indictment is five years in jail. The attorney-general's department might also have proceeded under summary conviction in which the maximum penalty is two years in jail.

Schools share crown.

Richmond and Fairburn played to a scoreless draw Monday at Windsor Park in the elementary school girls' field hockey championship so the schools will share the title.

Also on Monday, three schools including Richmond and Fairburn were presented with Zone championship awards. Richmond won Zone 1, Fairburn won Zone 2 and Vic West finished first in league play in Zone 3.

Vancouver Island bowlers dominated the B.C. tenpin bowling championships held at Mayfair Lanes on the weekend.

Juniors ambush unbeaten elders

London Boxing Club Juniors pulled the biggest upset of the Victoria senior "B" men's basketball season Monday.

The Juniors played a strong ball-control game and scored a 60-59 win over previously unbeaten Oak Bay in one of two games played at Royal Oak Junior High School.

In the other game, unbeaten London Boxing Club Seniors pulled four points ahead of Oak Bay and the Juniors by thumping Independents, 95-55.

Oak Bay got to wihtin one point of the Juniors with 11 seconds remaining on a basket by Ken Christensen, but Gary Worth restored the three-point lead with four seconds remaining. Christensen connected at the final buzzer to cut the margin of victory to one point.

Tom Hatcher and Corky Jossul led the Bays with 14 points each while Thad Newman scored 12 points for the Juniors. The Seniors were led by Dave Wirtanen, with 22 points, and Jim McKay, with 20. Lance Shannon scored 20 points for Independents.

In a Victoria Women's League game, Leslie Cross scored 12 points and Gail Gummer 10 as First United Unitys downed Senior B II, 51-24, at Vic High. Marilyn Cooper scored six points for the losers.

In Sunday women's games, Victoria Home Lumber trounced London Boxing Club, 93-25, and UVic Jayvees downed Senior B I, 52-26.

Jenkins sent to Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox general manager Dick O'Connell confirmed early today that the American League baseball team has received seven-time 20-game winner Ferguson Jenkins from Texas Rangers.

A statement issued by O'Connell said the Red Sox received Jenkins in a trade for outfielder Juan Beniquez, pitcher Steve Barr, an undisclosed sum of money, plus an minor league prospect to be named later.

The Rangers had been trying to unload the Chatham, Ont., native and his $195,000 salary for several months.

Puck writers demand disciplinary action

NEW YORK (AP) — The Professional Hockey Writers Association has formally protested the alleged Sunday attack on reporter Walter MacPeek with a telegram to National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell Monday.

The telegram, signed by Dan Stoneking, sports editor of the Minneapolis Star and president of the writers' group, said the association was "appalled, disgusted and angered over the incident."

The writers demanded a public apology from Doug Barkley, coach of the Detroit Red Wings, and asked that the NHL take disciplinary action against Barkley in the form of a fine and possible suspension.

Meanwhile, MacPeek, who works for the Newark Star-Ledger, said he would pursue legal action against the Detroit coach. He already has filed formal assault charges with the New York police department.

"I'm going to do whatever needs to be done to emphasize that this kind of behavior has to be stopped," the writer said. "I do my job and the coach does his. There's no need for anybody to be punched."

The incident occurred outside the Detroit dressing room after New York Rangers had blanked the Red Winds, 3-0. MacPeek said he sought to enter the dressing room and get some quotes for his story and to deliver some television tapes to ex-Ranger Ed Giacomin.

League rules permit reporters into dressing rooms 10 minutes after the completion of games.

Barkley asked MacPeek to wait for the club's bags to be cleared out of the small Madison Square Garden dressing room. When the writer asked to enter the room again a few minutes later, the two men exchanged angry words. MacPeek cited the media rule and Barkley was reported to have said "You can shove the rule. Do you want to settle this outside?"

MacPeek replied that he would settle it with the NHL office, and said that Barkley then hit him. The writer suffered a small bruise over one eye.

After writing his story, MacPeek entered a formal complaint with police. When police attempted to find Barkley Sunday night, they discovered that although the team stayed overnight, the coach already had left the city.

The Red Wings are not scheduled to play again in New York City this season, although they will return to the metropolitan are Jan. 13 to play New York Islanders at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y. The complaint could be served on Barkley at that time.

Don Ruck, vice-president of the NHL, said the league would "continue to enforce to the best of our ability the rules governing access to the dressing rooms."

"But there are a lot of rules in this country and from time to time some of them will be broken."

Ruck said he believed Campbell would be in touch with Barkley "if the matter falls within his jurisdiction."

If it is a matter of litigation, however, it would be out of our hands."

Barkley refused comment on the affair.

Sunday's victory boosted Rangers ahead of Atlanta Flames and into third place in the Patrick Division.

In other Sunday games, Philadelphia Flyers spotted Montreal Canadiens the lead and came back to score a 3-1 decision, Boston Bruins continued their drive by knocking off Kansas City Scouts, 4-2, and Baffalo Sabres stretched their lead by handling California Seals 4-1.

Smith tries luck in L.A. Times 500

Roy Smith has had a tremendous auto-racing season and he isn't finished yet.

The racing season is over in this area so the Victoria driver, who dominated the Northwest modified circuit this season, is heading for warmer climes to try his hand on the NASCAR circuit.

Smith left Monday for California where he hopes to qualify for the second annual $120,000 Los Angeles Times 500, which is scheduled for Sunday at Ontario Speedway near Los Angeles.

Smith, who has been driving the open-wheeled modifieds exclusively for the past three years, will be driving a 1975 Chevelle owned by Dick Midgley of Victoria.

Although Smith has little NASCAR experience Midgley's cars have been competing on the circuit for several years and usually with Hershal McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore. behind the wheel.

McGriff drove Midgley's car in the 500 last year but blew an engine in the early going.

Smith's last try at NASCAR competition was three years ago when he drove a Midgley Chevelle in several closed-wheel races including the Riverside 500.

This year in modified competition, Smith won the Washington Racing Association points championship, the International Drivers Challenge series, the Billy Foster Memorial 100 and the Daffodil Cup.

At Ontario he'll be going against North Americas' best, including NASCAR champion Richard Petty, last year's LA 500 winner Bobby Allison and top NASCAR drivers Dave Pearson and Cale Yarborough.

Qualifying for the 40 positions begins Friday with the 10 fastest qualifier over the 2½-mile course earning berths. The final 30 positions will be filled Saturday.

Lancaster, Reed remain undecided

Eskimos earn berth in Grey Cup

JUBILANT Edmonton players, led by Dave Cutler (26) hoist coach Ray Jauch high after winning Western Football Conference championship Sunday.

EDMONTON (CP) — Veterans George Reed and Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders have refused to confirm that their illustrious careers ended in Saskatchewan's 30-18 loss to Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Football Conference fina

Reed said Sunday he would take some time before making any statement about his future and Lancaster, rushing to congratulate the Eskimos and wish them well in the Grey Cup final against Montreal Alouettes, said his options are still open.

"In past years, when I was asked about retirement, I said something would have to happen to make me retire," said Lancaster. "Now I feel something would have to happen to make me play."

Lancaster emphasized that he is not unhappy over his position with the Roughriders — "It's not my contract or my salary or the conditions or anything."

He conceded the door is still open for his return next season, "but it's not open far."

Lancaster, who has passed for more yardage than any quarterback in history, completed 17 of 38 attempts for 212 yards in the sudden-death final. He said simply he had a bad day, but Reed had a different view.

"We had about five passes dropped that could have meant first downs to keep us marching," said Reed. "We weren't sharp. Sometimes it happens that way, but you can't take anything away from the Edmonton defence. They played well against us."

Reed scored one touchdown and rushed for 46 yards, tops in the game, on 18 carries, far below the 100-yard-a-game average that many consider normal for him.

"I've got some things to say," Reed conceded, "but this isn't the time or the place.

Two players who spent much of the season on the sidelines sparked the second-half Edmonton surge which won the right to represent the WFC in the Grey Cup for the third successive year.

Eskimos, who have lost two years in a row in the Canadian Football League final, overcame an 8-18 third-quarter deficit on the passing of Bruce Lemmerman and a 72-yard interception return by Wayne Matherne for the final touchdown.

Edmonton fans — a sell-out crowd of 25,671 — yelled "We're number one" in the final seconds. Their joy was based on a fourth-quarter burst that netted 22 points, including a 13-yard touchdown pass from Lemmerman to George McGowan, and a two-yard plunge by Roy Bell.

Starting-quarterback Tom Wilkinson threw six yards to John Konihowski for the opening touchwon. Dave Cutler kicked four converts and a single and Garry Lefebvre got the final point on a punt.

Ted Dushinski returned a Wilkinson pass 35 yards for the other Saskatchewan touchdown.

Jack Abendschan completed the scoring with a 37-yard field goal, two converts and a single.

Although Lemmerman was instrumental in several Edmonton victories, he has been a second-stringer most of the season behind Wilkinson. Matherne has been on the injured list much of the season. He was cut early in the year when he failed as a cornerback but head coach Ray Jauch made no secret he hoped to use Matherne at a deep inside spot or as a safety.

Wilkinson suggested that he come out at halftime to see if Lemmerman could get the offence running smoothly. The

Braggins out

MONTREAL (CP) — Offensive guard Dave Braggins was placed on the injury reserve list by Montreal Alouettes Monday and the Canadian Football League club replaced him on their 32-man roster with Frank Pomarico.

Braggins, voted the top offensive lineman in the East this season, suffered a broken jaw in Montreal's 20-10 win over Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Conference final last Saturday.

Pomarico has been on the Montreal injury list with a bruised chest. He has not played since Aug. 27 when Montreal downed Toronto Argonauts 33-17.

The Alouettes are due to leave today for Calgary where they meet Edmonton Eskimos in the Grey Cup championship game Sunday afternoon.

Players withdraw racist charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence back Al Marcelin of Ottawa Rough Riders says a lack of communication with the team management and coaches caused an outburst about racism, head coach George Brancato said Monday.

Marcelin, who said in the dressing room after Ottawa's 20-10 loss to Montreal Alouettes Saturday that the coaches were inattentive to black players, was to make a statement later, Brancato said.

Marcelin singled out offensive coach George Dimitroff as creating a hostile attitude towards the black players.

Brancato said that Marcelin met with Riders' owner David Loeb and general-manager Frank Clair.

"They talked it over and Marcelin said there was a lack of communication but no racism."

Marcelin was upset by the release of receiver Rhome Nixon late in the season, Brancato said. It was an outburst caused by the frustration of the loss to the Alouettes who advanced to the Grey Cup Sunday in Calgary.

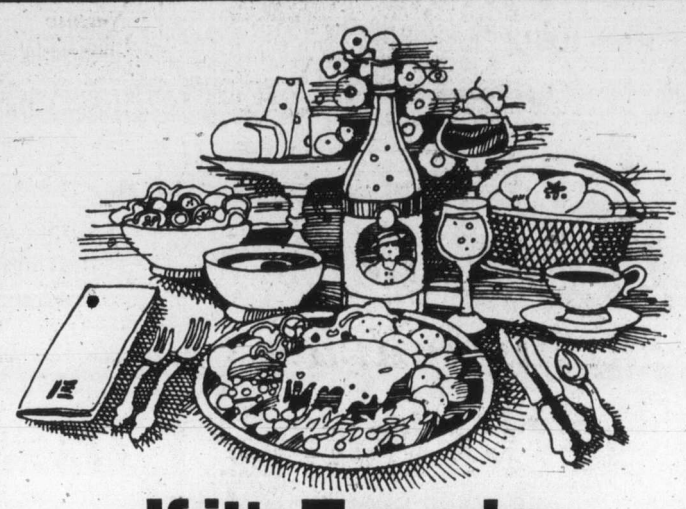

Brancato said Marcelin, who signed a contract late in the season after dropping plans to play out his option and retire, will be back next season.

Marcelin's charges came after defensive end Wayne Smith said for the second straight day that he wanted to be traded because he was not getting the attention he deserved.

Smith, who surprised Ottawa fans Friday with his announcement, said after the game, Saturday that the Riders take black players for granted.

Brancato said the Nixon cut was especially hard on Marcelin because they had played together in California. The release, one week before the end of the season, had ruined Nixon's chandes of being picked up by another team, Marcelin said.

Dimitroff denied he was racist and said he treated white and black players the same to win.

You can go economy first-class. Dodge proves it.

Economy class used to be pretty dull. No frills. No extras. No fun. True, unless you were talking about Dodge Dart, Coronet and Charger.

Dart is the compact Dodge. Coronet and Charger are the mid-size Dodge cars. And all three can be very classy, even though they're very good at minding the budget.

For instance, they give you a choice of either a 318 CID V8 or the famous 225 CID Slant Six as standard economical power

They also give you a handsome model choice. Dart is available in coupes, hardtops and sedans; Coronet offers 4-door sedans and wagons; and Charger comes in a sleek 2-door hardtop.

For the sake of class, you can order your Dart sport coupe or Charger hardtop with a sunroof. And for a real touch of class and comfort, ask about the cool air conditioning option.

For the sake of economy, Dodge Dart models equipped with either of the standard engines can be yours with the new overdrive-4 transmission option. When you're cruising on the highway, the overdrive reduces engine speed by 27% while maintaining highway speed, so understandably you get better fuel economy. There's also the optional Electric Fuel Pacer which helps you drive with optimum economy.

And inside these fine Dodge cars, there are first-class accommodations. Deep, comfortable bench seats. Wood grain instrument panels. Smart interior appointments.

If you're the kind of person who wants to add a few extras, Dart, Coronet and Charger let you have your way with things.

Things like Torqueflite automatic, speed control, vinyl roof, special interior and exterior trim packages—are some of the options you'll like to consider. So, you can be just as classy as you like.

But underneath it all, they still maintain their economy personalities.

The body is welded into a solid, rigid unit. We call it Unibody construction. It'll stay tight and strong for years.

Every Dodge car gets a special seven-stage rustproofing treatment to help keep it looking new.

There's the Electronic Ignition System for fast, sure starts and lower tune-up costs.

The brake system has been improved for more peace of mind. Making a good thing even better.

There's plenty of sound-absorbing materials for good old peace and quiet.

All covered by the Chrysler Warranty: the first year's on us.

We're confident that the Dodge Dart, Coronet or Charger you buy is going to be a good one. So, we're backing them with a one year, unlimited mileage warranty. No matter how far you drive during the first year, if something goes wrong, it's our problem, not yours. (Taxis and police cars excepted.)

. . . disgraceful

Court clowning draws stiff British reaction

LONDON (AP) — Clowning on court by tennis stars Jimmy Connors of the United States and Ilie Nastase of Romania won universal condemnation from British newspapers Monday and a rap over the knuckles from British president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, Derek Hardwick.

The clowning took place in their Dewar Cup Tournament men's doubles final Saturday at the Albert Hall against Poland's Wojtek Fibak and his West German partner, Karl Meiler.

Connors and Nastase, wearing bow ties over their tennis shirts and drinking champagne between changeovers, created laughter at first but ended up being booed, jeered and slow-handclapped by many of the crowd as they lost 6-1, 7-5.

After their defeat they had to be disuaded by Hardwick and tournament referee Mike Gibbson from stalking off the court before the formalities of the presentation.

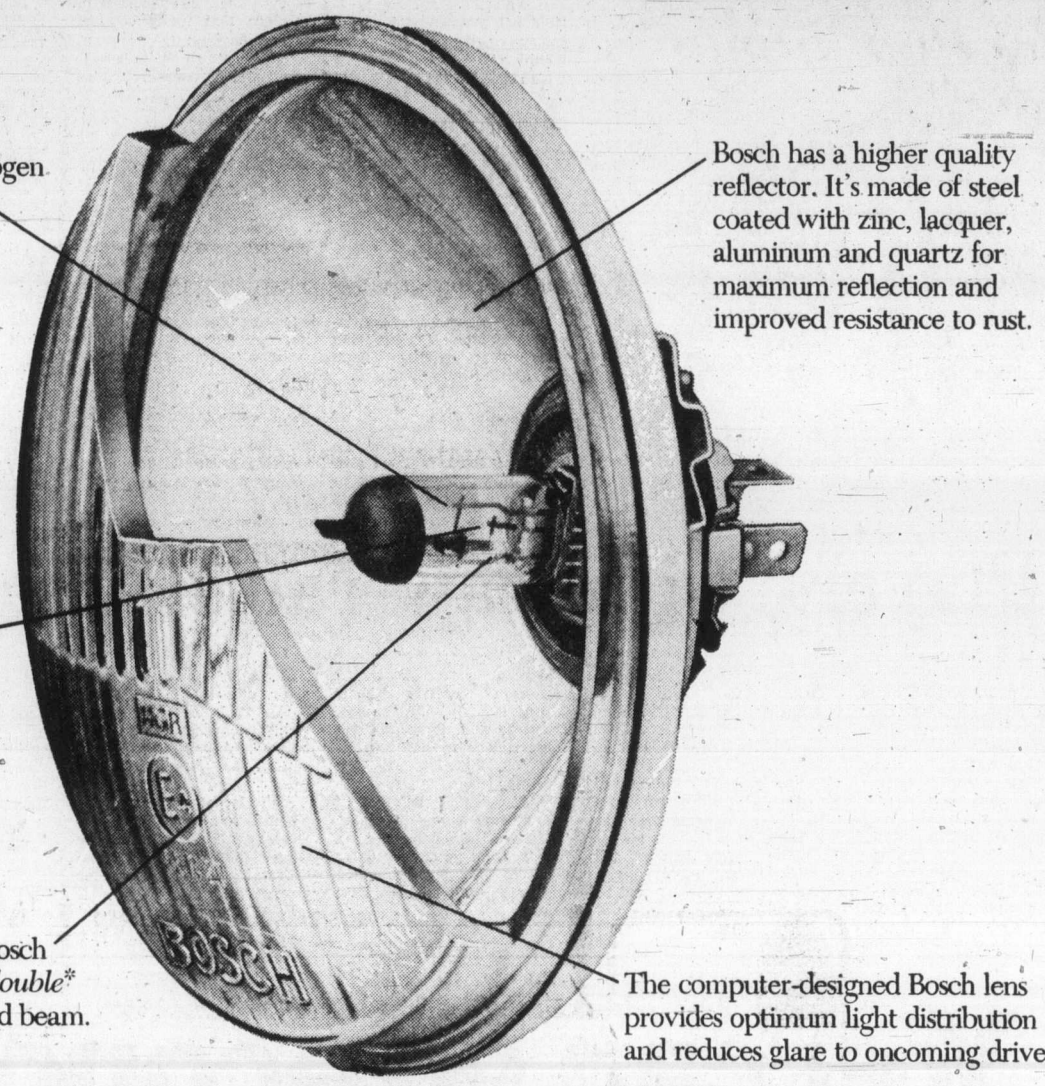

Hardwick was quoted in the mass-circulation tabloid, The Daily Mirror, as saying: "It was disgraceful. Two players had fought their hearts out to win and Connors and Nastase tried to laugh them off court.

"Right now the professional circuit is looking for a code of conduct. Had it been in operation Connors and Nastase would have been heavily fined."

Tennis win

HONG KONG (AP) — Veteran Tom Gorman of the United States beat fellow American Alex Mayer 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 in the men's singles final Sunday and captured the $10,000 first prize in the Citizens tennis tournament.

Unlike sealed beam units, the bulb on Bosch MS Halogen headlamps is replaceable.

Low beam gives you a margin of safety over the stopping distance of your car at highway speeds. High beam lets you see clearly for almost ½ mile.

Light output of the Bosch MS Halogen bulb is *double that of a regular sealed beam.

Bosch has a higher quality reflector. It's made of steel coated with zinc, lacquer, aluminum and quartz for maximum reflection and improved resistance to rust.

The computer-designed Bosch lens provides optimum light distribution and reduces glare to oncoming drivers.

Who gives you 100%* more light at night?

BOSCH

At 50 mph, the average car and driver requires 188 feet to stop safely. That's the approximate distance you can expect to see with ordinary headlights on low beam. But with Bosch MS† Halogens, you get over 380 feet of clear visibility on low beams—the required stopping distance plus a margin of safety.

On high beams, Bosch MS Halogens probe 2400 feet into the night (vs about 1500 feet for sealed beams) giving you plenty of light to spare. You won't need to strain to see what's ahead. You'll have less night driving fatigue. And less panic braking.

And yet, with all this probing light, the design of the Bosch lens actually reduces glare to the oncoming driver. Chances are you're already meeting cars equipped with Bosch headlamps without ever realizing it.

Bosch MS Halogen headlamps fit virtually all North American and imported cars (5¾" and 7" round headlights). Installation is easy—just take out the old and snap in the new. On cars with four headlights, you replace only the two low beam units. Complete aiming and installation instructions come with each conversion kit.

In this demonstration,†† ordinary headlamps on low beam show a portion of the truck ahead at a distance of 188 feet—the safe stopping distance required at 50 mph. The same car was used in both photographs, only the headlamps were changed.

In this photograph, the truck is 381 feet ahead—the stopping distance required at 70 mph. Yet the Bosch headlamps reveal just as much of the truck as regular sealed beams show at 188 feet. The difference—193 feet—is the Bosch margin-of-safety.

Where can you buy them? At department stores, automotive accessory stores, new car dealers and at many, many neighbourhood service stations.

Get an extra margin of safety at night. Convert to Bosch MS Halogen headlamps. You'll be a better, more relaxed driver because of it.

Race win too much for snail

GUNDAROO, Australia (Reuter) — To the cheers of 4,000 spectators, a garden snail won the world champion snail race at this tiny village Sunday, and then fell asleep on the finishing line.

The snail, knows only as No. 806 and owned by eight-year-old Tracey Prisk from nearby Canberra, covered the two-yard course in slightly less than 20 minutes to beat 12 rivals.

Tracey won a vacation with her parents on a tropical island off the Australian coast.

Mime group rebuilds its home in Niagara

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Mime Theatre has completed a $310,000 reconstruction of its home theatre, The Royal George, and will open its 1976 season May 31 with a show of vignettes.

The show, titled Old and New Faces, commemorates not only the mime company's work for the last seven years here, but the face-lift it has given the old movie theatre, formerly called the Brock.

The mime company bought the Brock in 1972, believing it could be refurbished with a new facade, lobby, box office, and reception area for about $80,000. Delays and inflation multiplied the cost almost fourfold.

Raymond Wickens, general manager, said that with the theatre's fund-raising efforts, about $110,000 of the cost has been met so far.

Adrian Pecknold, founder and artistic director, said a new mime drama, Here Come the Clowns, will join Old and New Faces in repertory on June 15.

The mime theatre also will produce a new children's show, opening June 16. On Aug. 3, if will produce The World of Mime, which will be a round-the-world tour in the fall of 1976.

The company is scheduled to perform in Australia for 10 weeks and in Singapore for one week. It then will spend a week in Manila, Hong Kong or Bangkok, still to be scheduled, one week in London and one week in Glasgow, before returning to Canada for Christmas.

In the spring of 1976, the company will play the Manitoba Theatre Centre in Winnipeg, and the Guelph, Ont., Spring Festival.

McLaren wins another honor

MONTREAL (CP)—Norman McLaren, pioneer motion picture animator and winner of more than 100 awards for his work, will receive another this week coincident with the publication of a book of his private drawings.

McLaren, 61, a leading artist with the National Film Board since 1941, will receive the Annie Award from the International Animated Film Society in Hollywood on Thursday. Because his health prevents him from going to Hollywood, the award will be accepted for him by Andre Lamy, head of the film board.

Another internationally-known film animator, the late Walt Disney, also is to receive an Annie this year.

McLaren developed the technique of drawing directly on film, frame by frame, to create images and unusual film effects. Whereas Disney's work has been primarily to entertain, McLaren's has been to provoke instruct and arouse.

He won an Academy Award in 1952 for his film Neighbors. Although many National Film Board productions have been nominated for Academy Award Oscars, only one other has won, Churchill's Island, a Second World War production.

Some 500 of McLaren's drawings, done for his own amusement or experimentation, are in the new book, The Drawings of Norman McLaren, published by Tundra Books, Montreal.

Rebel artists launch attack

PARIS (Reuter) — France's top literary award was made Monday under police protection a few hours after a bomb attack, apparently by opponents of the selection method for literary prizes.

A fire bomb damaged the Grasset publishing house here and responsibility for the attack was claimed by an organizaiton calling itself the Group of Revolutionary Artists.

The top award, the Prix Goncourt, went to Emile Ajar, a writer who has always kept his real identity secret and has threatened never to write again if it is revealed. He won the prize for his novel La Vie Devant Soi (Life Before Him).

Another major award the Prix Renaudot, was won by Jean Joubert, whose book L'Homme de Sable (Man of Sand) was published by Gasset.

Police said they were treating the attack, in which there were no injuries, as the latest in a series of violent protests aganist the way winners of French literary prizes are chosen.

Invaders, Chiefs ready for final

Oak Bay Invaders and Cowichan Chiefs scored convincing victories Sunday and earned berths in the Vancouver Island Football League championship game.

Paul Hughes scored two touchdowns and the Invaders downed Saanich Vampires, 30-8, while in the other semi-final Brent Belson scored a touchdown and kicked two converts as the Chiefs defeated Saanich Hornets, 32-7.

The final is scheduled for 6 p.m. Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

One-stroke victory for LPGA veteran

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sandra Haynie knocked in a three-foot putt on the final hole Sunday to beat Sandra Post by one stroke Sunday and win the $7,000 first prize in the $50,000 Jacksonville Open golf tournament.

Miss Haynie started the final round with a four-shot lead over Hollis Stacy and a five-stroke advantage over Miss Post, a native of Oakville, Ont., now living in Florida.

But Miss Haynie lost her strong advantage by closing with a 77 for a 54-hole total 223, seven over par on the 6124-yard Selva Marina Country Club course.

Miss Post, who collected $5,200, shot a 73 in the final round, including a 20-foot birdie putt on the last hole which forced Miss Haynie to sink her three-footer for par or lose the tournament.

It was the third win of the 1975 season for Miss Haynie and the 38th of her Ladies' Professional Golf Association career.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., finished with a 77 for a 229 total and took home $837.50.

The Quiet Man

But Victorians will have a strong determined mayor

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Any assessment of Victoria's mayor-elect Michael Young must be prefaced by the observation that he is a man with a low profile.

Two things must be quickly added: First, Young couldn't care less about his profile; second, he makes up for a lack of charisma with methodic determination.

Young appears to be rather glad that he isn't blessed with Mayor Peter Pollen's explosive nature. His quiet approach to problems might keep him out of unnecessary trouble and give him more time to get things done.

After interviewing Young for the better part of an hour, one comes away with the strong impression that he's going to be more than a caretaker mayor — much more.

He's had good training. During the first year as an alderman, Young was the instrument used by Pollen to turn new zoning policy statements into hard bylaws.

"That year just about killed me," Young says.

So, what about the future? What's Mike Young going to do for the city that hasn't already been done?

He wants to make it clear that any statements in the interview aren't to be taken as ultimate policy decisions.

"I'm just thinking out loud which I normally don't do," he says.

Typical of his approach to problems is his conviction that individual aldermen must be given more responsibility.

Finance and labor relations have been portfolios that were at all times under the strict control of Pollen.

Young says he wants to "achieve a greater measure of responsibility" on those committees. He wants to make them "more meaningful," which is to say that he won't bear down on those committees with his own views.

More emphasis will be placed on intermunicipal and intergovernment relations, aspects that were also dominated by Pollen.

"We can no longer afford to indulge in the lack of co-ordination of those relations," Young says.

The provisional budget, now being prepared, will be looked over very carefully, Young says.

"We'll be taking two looks instead of one," he says. Padding of budgets will be caught long before the budget is a fait accompli.

He also feels that a lot of fat can be trimmed off city hall operations.

"We are finding a lot of skeletons in the cupboards. Some things are being done at great expense in a certain way long after the reason for them has disappeared," he says.

The traffic congestions, described by Young as "this octopus," will be dealt with in this manner:

"We'll have to make it an expensive privilege to park 20 feet of steel downtown all day and we'll have to reroute traffic that doesn't have a downtown destination."

An additional 1,100 covered parking spaces now under construction at three downtown sites, Young says, will help ease traffic congestion.

Surface parking, he believes, must be abolished. "It's an under-utilization of space."

One of his aspirations is the creation of a downtown residential core.

"It won't be for family living, but there is a need for residential accommodation in the downtown area," he says.

Young gave a carefully-worded hint of what might be in store as far as social amenities are concerned.

Saanich voters rejected a recreation bylaw and Young says he is "trying to read that decision very carefully."

When it comes down to a tight-money situation, he says, people are willing to do without the frills.

That analysis may spell doom for the rehabilitation of the old Crystal Garden.

"If we can find a formula that won't be a burden on the taxpayers, fine, but if the city has to finance it out of tax money, we may have to submit the matter to a referendum," he says.

Regarding the increasing demand for social and recreation centres, Young says:

"We must make sure that the people who shout are also the people who vote."

Young expects to have good relations with the provincial government, regardless of what party forms the government after Dec. 11.

"I'll strive to co-operate with any provincial government we may have. I will do so on a non-partisan basis."

Firing a little shot at aldermen Sam Bawlf and Robert Ellis, both of whom are seeking the Social Credit nomination in Victoria, Young notes that "some of the aldermen have chosen not to stay non-partisan."

Despite some confrontations between Pollen and provincial government departments in the past, Young says the city has had good relations with the province.

The only issue that had to be countered with "great concern" on the city's part, Young says, was the danger of a provincial Capital Commission that would have taken over the planning function for the entire city.

"We had to say, no thanks, and I think that danger was averted," Young says.

He'll take office Jan. 1, but Pollen is already slowly handing over the leadership of the city to Young.

Young has planned numerous meetings with the new aldermen. He's already working on the new committee structure. Aldermen-elect Ronald McKenzie and Helen Beirnes, says Young, have expressed an interest to serve on the Group A committee which includes finance and labor relations.

That would leave alderman-elect Robert Wright for Group B committee which is oriented toward housing, zoning and land-use matters.

One thing is not likely to happen with Young steering the ship — the elected representatives won't see their control over city business eroded by the administrative personnel.

Young, despite his low profile, is too strong a man to let that happen, and he has too strong a council at his side.

His views, one suspects, will be every bit as radical and controversial as those of his predecessor but he'll phrase them more carefully, avoiding the rough-and-tumble politics and confrontations that marked the Pollen years.

Mike Young: no explosions

Bankrupt alcoholism centre

Gillain house may be convention site

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

North Saanich council might look kindly at an application to change a bankrupt privately-run alcoholism treatment centre into a "low-key kind of convention centre," Mayor Paul Grieve said Monday night.

However, such an approach would have to include an undertaking that the 100 acres of land housing Gillain Manor would remain intact without further buildings, he said.

Grieve told aldermen it appeared that information he gave them about the creditors of Jay George Holdings Ltd., the company involved in the building, was no longer correct.

He said he had met with representatives of Farmer Construction Ltd. and Saanich Peninsula Savings Credit Union, which had proposed taking over the building and applying for a land-use contract to complete it as a convention centre.

That move, he said, had been designed to close out Jay George Holdings Ltd.

However, the trustee, Terence McMullen, had put a stop to that move by calling for tenders for the property. Tenders close at 4 p.m. Dec. 20, said Grieve.

"In the meantime," he said, "we are owed $30,000 in taxes and the tax sale comes up next year, so we might be owners yet."

Grieve said he had had a visit from "an unpleasant gentleman from Alberta."

The "unpleasant gentleman" claimed to have an interest in the land but it turned out that he did not have an interest.

The man, he said, had told him that the question of rezoning the land so that subdivision could take place depended on the result of the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Grieve said later that he has been approached by four people, three of them landowners, who have told him that if the "right" party is elected next month, the power of the B.C. Land Commission would be restricted, and there would be changes in the municipal act to make rezoning for building easier.

He would not name any of the people concerned.

Grieve said the credit union holds a first mortgage on Gillain of about $500,000, while Farmer Construction has a lien of about $1.2 million. The credit union also has a second mortgage, he said.

He said council has taken the attitude to date that there will be no change in the rural zoning of the 100 acres.

He said under Central Saanich zoning, the building of an "institution" is allowed in a rural zone, although a definition of an institution might be hard to arrive at.

"I think we have reached the point in council where there is some sympathy for a position under which the land would be withheld permanently from subdivision, but the partially-constructed building could be finished for use as a low-profile convention centre or something similar."

Nuclear test number 14

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — The U.S. will conduct its 14th major nuclear test this year when a device with as explosive force of up to a million tons of TNT is detonated 2,680 feet below this remote volcanic plateau at 7:30 a.m. P.S.T. today. U.S. scientists have stepped up tests of high-yield weapons recently because of a proposed limiting treaty with the Soviets.

Fat fire leaves six homeless

A fire badly damaged a small single-storey house at 1739 Bay late Monday, leaving a woman and five children homeless after a pot of fat boiled over on an electric stove.

One of Mrs. Rosemary Laframbroise's children, 12-year-old Michael, was the only person in the house when the fire broke out at 8:20 p.m. as his mother had left for a moment, a fire department spokesman said.

Michael, who was removed by friends of his mother's, had to be taken to hospital for a sedative after the fire.

By the time firemen arrived, flames were "boiling out of the front windows and door." Friends of Mrs. Laframbroise attempted to douse the flames on the stove with baking soda but were too late, the spokesman said.

Firemen were able to save little of the contents. Damage was estimated at $10,000 to the house and more than $5,000 to its contents, both were insured.

The spokesman said "The living room furniture was completely burned up and the rest (of the house) was badly smoke-damaged."

Mrs. Laframbroise and her children spent the night with friends.

B.C. suing mortgage companies

B.C. is instituting a class action lawsuit against two mortgage companies in the Vancouver area, alleging they have been overcharging on interest rates.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday the suit claims that Modern Mortgage and Loan Ltd. and Safeco Mortgage and Loan Ltd. have been calculating interest on the basis of 360 days in a year, not 365.

Mcdonald said the suit is being brought by the province on behalf of 52 mortgagers, seeking a full accounting, return of any money overcharged and unspecified damages.

Shelved again

Oak Bay council once again postponed reconsideration of a controversial land-swap bylaw at Monday's meeting while it waits for a full report from the municipal solicitor, who is still seeking legal advice on the matter.

The bylaw's, legality had been questioned Nov. 3 by a Vancouver lawyer acting for two women who used to own what is now Anderson Hill Park.

Council's intention is to close part of Calvert Crescent and give it to Dr. E. H. W. Elkington, who donated four lots to the municipality last spring which became part of the park.

The Vancouver lawyer argued that council does not have the power to transact land-trade deals.

Man held in murders

A 28-year-old child care worker charged with being an accessory to non-capital murder was remanded in custody in Duncan Monday.

He will appear again Thursday.

Louis Pena, a landed immigrant of Shepard Road, Mill Bay, appeared briefly before Judge Patrick Bowen-Colthurst charged with being an accessory in the deaths of James Frederic Oldfield, 29, and his 22-year-old girlfriend, Pamela Jones, both of Duncan.

A warrant has also been issued for the arrest of Jim Rodriguez, a 25-year-old Puerto Rican, in the same case.

The bodies of Oldfield and Mrs. Jones were found Sunday in a badly-decomposed state, after a 19-day intensive search involving RCMP, dogs and helicopters.

The bodies were found Sunday morning, three miles from the couple's Richards Trail home, over a steep wooded embankment on Mays Road near the North Cowichan municipal dump.

Accessory charge in couple's death

A police spokesman said one body was wrapped in a quilt and blanket, while the other was in a sleeping bag. A carpet had been placed over both bodies and they were covered with debris.

The bodies were taken to Victoria where a pathology report is being prepared.

It was also disclosed that both the victims had been shot a number of times with a small-calibre rifle.

Further investigation on Sunday resulted in the recovery of a .22-calibre single-shot rifle, a .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle, and a pellet gun. The weapons were found in two residences in the Fairfield-Fernwood area of Victoria and one at Pena's home in Mill Bay.

The police spokesman, who wouldn't give the Victoria addresses, said the guns had been dismantled or cut into pieces. One part was so new it still bore the price tag.

Pena, who is of Puerto Rican extraction, is employed as a child care worker at the Cedar Lodge residential centre for neurologically handicapped boys at Cobble Hill.

A friend of Pena's told the Colonist that Rodriguez had been staying at Pena's home for a few days around the time of the couple's disappearance Oct. 24.

Rodriguez had previously lived with Oldfield and Mrs. Jones at their Richards Trail home but the couple had removed his belongings to a nearby shed while he was on a six-week holiday in Europe.

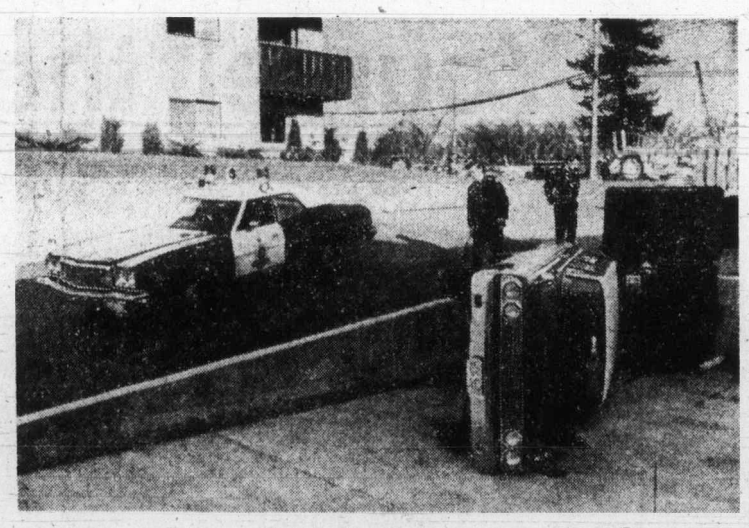

Rodriguez, who disappeared the day after Oldfield and Mrs. Jones were last seen, is believed to have left the country.

Duncan RCMP Cpl. Ted Jones hinted police know where Rodriguez is, and said extradition proceedings will begin as soon as he is definitely located.

Nanaimo lawyer Jim Taylor is representing Pena.

Gas leak cause of Madrid blast

MADRID (AP) — An explosion at the Chrysler Espana automobile plant on the outskirts of Madrid Monday killed at least three workers and injured 11 others, fire brigade sources said. Plant sources said the blast may have been caused by a gas leak.

Up and over

Over ramp and onto its side went this auto in mishap Monday afternoon near Bay and Catherine in Victoria. Driver and sole occupant, Carrol Anton Olson of Victoria, was taken to hospital with minor abrasions, police said. Damage to car was estimated at $300.

Branson changes law firm

The conduct of many federal drug prosecutions in Victoria will move to a new law firm Feb. 1, with senior Victoria lawyer Cecil Branson, a member of the new B.C. Legal Services Commission.

Branson confirmed Monday he will leave the firm of Sullivan, Smith and Bigelow and join the younger law firm of George Jones, Alan Emery and James Carfra, which will be renamed Jones, Branson, Emery and Carfra.

Other comment was declined by Branson but it was learned his contract with Ottawa to conduct federal drug prosecutions will make the move with him.

Gordon Macdonald, a former regular prosecutor at Victoria provincial court and RCMP member before he became a lawyer, has been retained to assist Branson in the handling of drug cases in courts at 633 Fisgard.

Branson is one of two Victorians named earlier this year by the provincial government to a new Legal Services Commission to supervise delivery of all legal services in B.C., including Legal Aid.

The other is UVic political science chairman Walter Young while other members are chairman Donald Jabour, a Kelowna laywer; Peter Manson, a Vancouver lawyer, and Mrs. Helen Jones, a Vancouver area social worker who was on the Berger juvenile-law commission.

Branson is also vice-president of the Victoria Bar Association and a national council member of the Canadian Bar Association.

Mrs. Dawson
. . . contests Esquimalt

Thelma Dawson, a housewife entering politics for the first time, was nominated by acclamation Sunday as Progressive Conservative candidate in Esquimalt in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The selection of Mrs. Dawson leaves only the Cowichan-Malahat riding without a Conservative candidate on Vancouver Island. Already named are party leader Dr. Scott Wallace (Oak Bay), Peter Stanley and Lloyd Burdon (Victoria), Mrs. Dawson (Esquimalt), Irene Block (Saanich and the Islands), Marjorie Moore (Nanaimo), Vic Stephens (Comox) and Bud Schroeder (Alberni).

BC75 X

Spokesmen for the Conservatives in Cowichan-Malahat said Monday no date has been set for a nominating meeting and the likelihood is that there will be no Conservative candidate in that riding.

Mrs. Dawson, who was in Victoria between 1952 and 1954 and returned again in 1971, joined the Esquimalt PCs when an association was formed two years ago and takes over from John Williams, who ran provincially in Esquimalt in 1972 but is returning officer in the riding this year.

More independent candidates have emerged in Victoria.

Richard Owen Kavanagh, 25, of 249 Government Street, and Victoria's lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott, 77, will be entering the contest as independents.

A nurse at Victoria General Hospital and former human resources and construction worker, businessman and university researcher, Kavanagh sees his main platform as the need for adequate hospital facilities.

"When we are sick we have the right to immediate care for quicker, more complete recovery," Kavanagh said. "Our aged deserve full attention when incapacitated to help them retain dignity, security and comfort."

Other issues, he said, were raw sewage disposal, overburdened city taxpayers, traffic-jammed downtown streets and polarized politicians.

Kavanagh came to Victoria in 1970 from Montreal, his birthplace.

Scott, who described himself as "Victoria's outstanding veteran in stupidity," claimed that all parties had abandoned their original codes of moral ethics; "they started out as ego-altruists and ended up as ego-maniacs."

The ego-maniacs were dominating all parties, he said, and this was shown in the case of Agnes Kripps, former Social Credit MLA who charged Monday that the party executive tampered with a nominating convention Sunday which rejected her bid to run again as a Socred in Vancouver South.

"Agnes Kripps is an ego-altruist, one who helps those who cannot help themselves," Scott said "She is an outstanding ego-altruist, and the Socred ego-maniacs have disowned and repudiated her."

Scott said he was campaigning to show that a civilization is no better than its teachers and students. "In my opinion the NDP at present, of which I am a member, is headed by the most wrong-thinking teachers in Canadian history."

Scott, who has previously run twice in provincial elections as an independent, also said that when he asked for nomination papers Monday the office could give him only two — "they'd run out of them."

Pen 'in state of shock'

Daniel Bradley Cain, the young Victorian who pleaded guilty Monday to a 13-count charge resulting from several major 1975 crimes, says the B.C. Penitentiary "is still in a state of shock" from the July hostage incident which saw a woman worker killed.

Defence lawyer Michael Hutchison quoted Cain in an interview shortly before his 20-year-old client pleaded guilty in Victoria County Court. Judge M. L. Drake remanded him to Dec. 22 for pre-setence report and psychological assessmet.

The 13 counts started with escape and being unlawfully at large March 22 from the William Head institution and armed robbery by using a knife at three Victoria area stores March 25 and April 1 and 7 as well as at one store in West Vancouver March 30.

The came four counts arising from the April 8 incidents of hostages, car chase and police search — stealing a car, criminally negligent driving, being unlawfully in the home of Dianne Smith at 1116 Leonard and unlawfully confining Mrs. Smith.

The final counts were escaping July 14 from the Wilkinson Road provincial jail, possession of an unregistered weapon July 15 in a shootout at a home on Summit and escaping July 17 from three deputy sheriffs taking him to a plane to confinement on the B.C. mainland.

Cain had been due for trial on a total of 14 counts. The difference between those and the ones to which he pleaded guilty was that two counts of kidnapping Mrs. Smith and her daughter were reduced to one of unlawfully confining the mother.

No charges resulted from another incident in which Cain slipped away from custody in the Victoria jail and spent several uncomfortable hours on a tiny barred ledge on the outside walls before being talked back inside.

Cain wore light but strong leg irons connected by a single chain and five deputy sheriffs were in court for his brief appearance. He had been brought to Victoria that way from the B.C. Peitentiary in New Westminster and was returned as soon as he left court.

Hutchison told Drake he would not dispute a statement by prosecutor Barry Mah Ming that Cain had a previous record, mostly break-ins. He asked for a lengthy adjournment for a psychological assessment "which might have been taken in the past . . . but never was."

Outside court, Hutchison explained the "state of shock" statement by saying Cain had an ailment in his leg veins but, "in all the time he has been back in the B.C. Pen, he was only able to get treatment last week by writing the director."

Hutchison said Cain received "little or no counselling . . . there were few programs . . . He is talking for the first time about his future and they've got him sewing emblems on canvas bags, imprinting Canada Post Office on them.

"That's what they're doing to rehabilitate him, using a stencil. He hasn't finished his schooling and he wants to finish."

Judge wants report on plea

Prisoner changes his mind

A second Victoria provincial court judge asked Monday that Legal Aid look into the puzzling problem of one-legged Victoria area resident, Robert Daniel Adams, 33, who signed his way into jail and now wants out.

Judge F. S. Green convicted Adams following a trial on a charge of causing a disturbance by using obscene language last July in a Victoria restaurant and remanded the case to Wednesday for sentence.

Adams, known in police, jail and court circles as a difficult person, kept harping on the technical legal problem he first presented last week to Judge William Ostler.

Lawyer Rodney Smith, retained by Legal Aid for Adams on the legal issue, indicated he hoped to appear Wednesday to offer arguments which could solve it.

Meanwhile, Adams sent a lengthy letter to the Colonist telling his life story and complaining of Wilkinson Road jail facilities. And jail officials answered his complaints in an interview.

The story Adams told both judges concerned a court appearance last August when he was fined a total of $250 or 80 days, and given time to pay. When he was in jail later on another matter, he apparently signed a paper agreeing to do the time instead of pay the fine.

Whether he signed it or not, Adams now does not wish to serve the 80 days but wants more time to pay. Ostler said a higher court ruling might allow such a change but nothing could be done at the provincial court level.

Adams gave the same complaint to the Green and got a similar answer, with Green telling lawyer Smith he would consider allowing more time to pay if the lawyer could find a favorable court precedent.

One source said the problem seems to be not that Adams signed the waiver but that he has actually started to serve the 80 days.

Adams' letter to the Colonist described both the Wilkinson Road jail in Saanich and Oakalla in Burnaby as "hellholes" but added "at least at Oakalla the doctor gave me medicine for my nerves and headaches."

Jail director H. R. McGillivray said his staff had brought out a doctor for Adams and "the doctor can find no reason for any medication other than Aspirin."

He said it's difficult to find a place for Adams, who does not wish to be confined in a community correctional centre. McGillivray said the Jordan River camp is a poor place for a one-legged man and the Wilkinson jail is for remand and classification prisoners.

"Our classification officer is having another look at his case," said the jail director.

Adams' letter said he is a Quebec-born steamfitter who has lived on Vancouver Island for 30 years and is "restricted to certain jobs in my trade because of the loss of an eye and a leg."

He wrote of a record in the past two years of jail terms for possession of a small amount of marijuana, disturbing the peace and obtaining a restaurant meal by fraud.

In the same period, said Adams, it took 16 months for welfare and hospital and other authorities to arrange and complete repairs to his artificial leg. He said he was unable to work but often could not get welfare-cheque advances when "I was broke."

"I have been in a mental hospital twice because of nervous breakdowns," Adams wrote. "My two family doctors and psychiatrist recommend certain medication for me because of a severe head injury and my nervous condition.

"It's only costing the taxpayer $1,200 a month to keep me in here and I am losing $1,500 a month in wages. Well, I'll be out of here Dec. 15, just in time for Christmas, although I won't be able to receive any help financially until Jan. 18, 1976.

"They don't give wages in jail. So just a few words of wisdom for the politicians, government officials, judges and policemen, the next time you arrest me, it won't be for disturbing the peace. It will be for trying to survive in your bureaucracy."

Hunt continues for fishboat

SEATTLE (AP) — A Coast Guard search continued Monday for a Korean fishing boat gutted by fire Friday 300 miles off the Oregon Coast.

A spokesman said the cutter Campbell from Port Angeles and a C130 aircraft were looking for the 170-foot Kwang Myung No. 96, last seen Friday as a smoking hulk.

Aboard the ship are 500 tons of fish, valued at about $500,000. The cargo's condition was not known.

Crew members of the fishing boat, rescued Friday by the British tanker Anco Templar and brought to Seattle Saturday, were staying in a hotel on temporary papers issued by the U.S. immigration and naturalization service, Spencer Kim, local representative for the owner, said.

He said that once physical examinations had been completed and arrangements were made, the 32 men would be flown to Korea. That was expected no later than today, Kim said.

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: You've often said that if a man and woman both work they should share the housework. I couldn't agree more.

Both my mother and father work and guess who does all the housework? Me!

I believe children should help around the house because they live there, too. But isn't it rotten to put it all on a daughter when there are two able-bodies boys in the family? My brothers don't lift a finger. You'd think they were royalty.

I dust-mop, vacuum, make beds, cook, do dishes, etc. This means I have to come straight home from school, do housework and start supper.

Please say something, Ann —Fair is Fair.

Dear Fair: I have said something, but I'll say it again.

Housework and cooking don't care who does 'em—male or female. Your parents are being unfair, not only to you but to your brothers. They will be severely handicapped later in life if they don't know how to cook and do housework.

I suggest a total reassessment of the situation and a division of chores—three ways. I hope your parents will see this column and call a Tribal Meeting tonight.

Dear Ann Landers: Harry and I are in our mid-60s. We both lost our mates a few years ago. We enjoy each other's company and want a life together.

Harry suggested that we live together without marriage. He says he can't afford the financial responsibilities of a wife. To be perfectly frank, the moral aspects of the arrangement wouldn't bother me, but I'm afraid to make this step because he could walk away whenever he felt like it and I'd feel used if he ever did it.

When I told Harry how I felt, he said he'd be perfectly willing to marry me but I'd have to agree to the old-fashioned marriage agreement where the wife hands over everything to her husband. What do you think about his proposition?—On The Fence.

Dear Fence: Not much. For openers I've never heard of that "old-fashioned marriage agreement" Harry is trying to sell you. Moreover, there are a few missing links in the chain. First: What do you have to "hand over"? Second: Would Harry be willing to hand over whatever he has? When you get the answers to these questions let me know.

Dear Ann Landers: Five months ago we bought a home in this very lovely suburb. I was afraid my new neighbors might not be friendly, and it bothered me. Well, I'm writing about the reverse problem. They have become too friendly and I don't know how to separate myself from them.

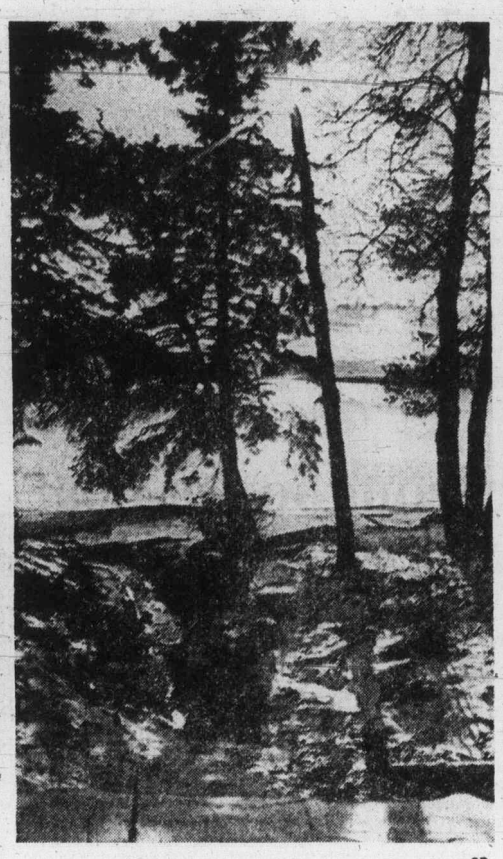

There are eight homes in this compound and the women kaffeeklatsch every morning after their children go off to school. Many of the girls get together in the afternoon for cards, or sewing, or more kaffeeklatsching. Before dinner they often meet for a cocktail in one of the homes. (They all have help.)

Then there's the garden club, the literary club, the bridge club, etc. I am clubbed to death. How do I escape from this maze?—Can't Take It Anymore.

Dear Can't: Get rid of one thing at a time. Start with the morning kaffeklatsch. Next a club or two. Then fall out of the p.m. social. Before you know it you'll be leading a normal life and you'll be able to call your soul your own.

CONFIDENTIAL to Repeat It Please: Gladly. "You are as young as your faith and as old as your doubts—as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fears. Age—it's only a number, Baby."

WRONG TURN

BOLOGNA, Italy — A prostitute who was stripped of her driver's licence after being caught plying her trade in her car, can have the licence back, a local judge has ruled.

The prostitute's attorney had objected to the reason given by a policeman for taking the licence away: "She is leading a scandalous life."

Defence lawyer Salvatore D'Errico argued that one could "drive a car carefully and at the same time lead a scandalous life."

The judge agreed.

erma bombeck

The English language has fallen victim to a series of questions that has become so commonplace that people don't even bother to listen to the answers anymore.

It first came to my attention while viewing Mary Coyle Chase's great Broadway play Harvey. People were forever saying to the hero, Elwood P. Dowd, "Gee, we've got to get together sometime for dinner," and as they walked away he would say brightly, "When?"

They would stop dead in their tracks, fumble for a date and finally get pinned down.

I should like to take up the banner of Elwood P. Dowd and help stamp out "filler" talk. Phrases like:

"How was your flight?" Just to prove that no one really cares about my flight, I have replied, "over Chicago in a blizzard the pregnant hostess slapped Heyen Hayes across the mouth, a loony shot a hole in the cabin for the insurance money, and Dean Martin had to bring us in with no landing gear," only to have my host smile and say, "Wonderful. You have luggage?"

"How are you" is probably the most inane, often-used bit of fluff in the English language. No one really wants to know. I could carry extra sets of x-rays in my handbag and still not get any attention. I once got on the elevator with a boss of mine who never really got around to remembering the names of people who worked for him. He said, "Well, Miss . . . Early Bird . . . how are you?"

I looked at him solemnly, said, "I have a 50-50 chance," and got off the elevator leaving him in shock.

Another of my favorites is when people call you on the phone and ask, "Are you busy?"

"Compared to what?" brings a silence as they try to remember what they asked.

Some people just don't know how to reply, so they resort to standardized reactions. In telling a group of women about the death of a prominent citizen, I got three standard replies, "Are you sure?" (Reasonably. He stopped breathing.) "You're kidding!" (These are the jokes?) And "I don't believe it!" (What would it take to convince you?)

The granddaddy of all routine questions has to be the one my husband poses every night — "What kind of a day did you have?" — and then leaves the room.

One of these days, I'm going to follow him and tell him. It would serve him right.

Not on voter list? 'Blame yourself'

Disenfranchised Saanich residents have no one to blame but themselves — and the povincial government, Saanich council decided Monday.

Still stinging from complaints made by residents who turned up at the municipal polls Saturday only to find their names were not on the voters list, Mayor Ed Lum defended municipal officials at Monday's council meeting.

Residents may have been confused by changes in voting legislation made by the provincial government last year, but the changes were well advertised, Lum said. Property owners are no longer automatically on the voters' list, and that seems to be the real complaint of most disenfranchised voters.

If a check showed that a voter was not on the master list and the person still insisted he was registered, he was allowed to swear an affidavit, "possibly perjuring himself," and permitted to vote, Hayward added.

Votes accompanied by affidavits were kept separate from other votes, and counted only after the voter's registration had been confirmed.

In the midst of all the complaints from unregistered voters, Hayward couldn't help but be reminded of a large file in his office, dating from the last enumeration, which holds registration cards that residents refused to sign.

Ald. Fred Severson said that although the problem may be the voters' own fault, some of the blame lies with the new provincial legislation. "It's ludicrous" for a property owner who has lived, voted, and paid taxes in Saanich for years to have to re-register, he said.

Severson proposed that Saanich suggest the Union of B.C. Municipalities seek changes to the legislation, and the rest of council approved his motion.

Final unofficial results of Saturday's Saanich election are: (x denotes incumbent)

Registration easy —Saanich clerk

For those Saanich voters who want to make sure they have their votes in next year's municipal election, registration is really very simple, municipal clerk Gordon Hayward said Monday.

Anyone who wants to register should call the clerk's office in municipal hall and ask that a registration card be mailed to him. As soon as the postal strike ends, cards will be mailed in return envelopes. All the voter has to do is fill out the card and return it to municipal hall.

Cards will also be mailed out with water bills, council was told.

Residents who send in their cards will be on next year's voter list, as well as any revised lists for referendums or byelections before next November, Hayward said.

Victoria Press plans layoffs

About 45 employees of Victoria Press will be laid off next month under terms of an agreement signed Monday by company and union representatives.

The contract, which extends the old agreement for another seven months without any general improvements in wages or fringe benefits, has been ratified by members of all five unions, which bargain jointly with the company. Victoria Press publishes both The Daily Colonist and the Victoria Times.

The continuation of both newspapers is guaranteed by the agreement.

The contract was worked out in several months of negotiations, assisted by provincial mediator Charles Stewart.

Company vice-president Stuart Underhill said in a prepared statement that the agreement "demonstrates what can be achieved when management and labor recognize the problems that endanger a business and work together to overcome them."

The company has lost money for the last 18 months, he said, and a merger of the two papers was planned if "substantial" savings could not be made.

The layoffs, affecting the two editorial departments, the library and production departments, result in a saving of about $900,000 a year.

Victoria Press employs about 400 people.

Included in the agreement is a provision allowing voluntary retirement with half the usual severance pay. Voluntary retirements will be subtracted from the total to be laid off."

The last agreement was settled at the end of a six month strike-lockout.

None of the unions involved took strike votes in the current round of negotiations.

Dick Gibbons, president of the Victoria Newspaper Guild, one of the joint council unions, said Monday night he is not happy about the agreement. "I can't be elated about it. There's nothing to be elated about," he said.

Gibbons said the next contract will have to contain monetary increases if it is to be acceptable to Guild members.

Strongboxes beat would-be thieves

Would-be thieves who attacked three strongboxes in Vicoria during the weekend managed to get one open und a second open in part — but nothing was taken, Victoria detectives said Monday.

The incidents occurred in the office of Saint Saviour's Anglican Church, Henry and Catherine; at Scott Lift Truck, 1055 Alston, only about a block from the church, and at Victoria Lawnmower Hospital, 834 Johnson.

Police said the strongbox at the church was peeled open by an unknown method but contained only documents. A small amount of coins was taken from a tin box elsewhere in the office.

Hand tools were used on the strongbox at the lawmower firm but only the bottom section was opened. Police were unsure what method of attack was used on the lift truck strongbox, which was not opened at all.

Strongboxes are floor-level metal containers, securely locked, rather than older-style stand-up safes. They look much like the bottom section of a filing cabinet.

Rent control explained

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's allowable rent increase of 10.6 per cent will be in effect until Dec. 31, and the government's two-month price freeze does not reduce rent controls to 8 per cent, the manager of the B.C. Rent Review Commission said Friday.

"There is considerable confusion over the whole matter," manager Jim Patterson said in an interview.

He said that until Dec. 31 the allowable rent increase is still 10.6 per cent although the commission is urging landlords to hold rent increases to 8 per cent.

Premier Barrett and Attorney-General Alex Macdonald have indicated the rent ceiling will be about 8 per cent in the new year with a rent calculation formula to be introduced later.

Although the commission can't do anything to a landlord who has increased rents 10.6 per cent, Patterson said landlords might want to observe the spirit of the government's intentions until January.

He said the commission has been advised by the attorney-general's department that rent controls will be changed to 8 per cent.

Since three months notice must be given for a rent increase, the government is asking that all notices issued after Oct. 24 be limited to 8 per cent, Patterson said.

"We see no reason why it (the ceiling) won't be changed no matter what happens," he said, referring to the outcome of the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Library planning free film shows

A series of four free Wednesday night film showings in the Greater Victoria central library reference room, Yates Street, begins Wednesday.

Titled Preview Showcase, the program begins at 8 p.m. and is presented by the library's audio-visual department.

The first program will include a 15-minute film on surfing in Hawaii and southern California, a 14-minute film on contemporary Australia, and a 30-minute film on springtime in Holland.

Also to be shown is Up the Organization, a film based on the best-selling book by Robert Townsend, showing his unorthodox but successful methods of running a business.

Provinces to pay more

RCMP price going up

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Monday the federal government is ready to contract RCMP services to eight provinces for a five-year term beginning April 1, 1976, the day the current 10-year contracts expire.

He said a new federal formula, under which the provinces would pay 52 per cent of the cost compared with this year's 50 per cent, is a more realistic cost-sharing ratio than the present formula.

However, because of a "direct-costing" method that would reflect actual policing costs in each province, next year's costs for most provinces would be about the same as this year's.

Provincial policing cost the eight provinces — all but Ontario and Quebec which have their own forces — about $53 million this year, up $4.3 million from the previous year.

The provinces had complained that the cost is growing too heavy and asked for federal relief.

The current contract began 10 years ago with Ottawa paying 60 per cent of RCMP provincial policing costs and the provinces paying 40 per cent.

The provincial contribution increased by one percentage point each year of the contract, reaching 50 per cent this year. It was based on a per-capita formula.

Allmand said original federal proposals for the forthcoming contract were that Ottawa pay 40 per cent. By paying 48 per cent in the initial year, Ottawa would save the provinces $9 million. The federal contribution would decline by one percentage point a year during the five-year contract.

He said the shorter contract period is necessary because a thorough examination of the federal role in law enforcement and policing is under way.

"The time is right for an in-depth examination of the federal role in policing in Canada of the late 1970's," he said.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HARROP—In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Florence Nellie Harrup (nee Ratcliffe) who passed away November 18, 1972, at London, Ontario.

In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name,
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death
just the same.

—Mother, Beth, May, Roy and families.

SMITH—John (M.M.)—In memory of our beloved husband and father, John, who passed away one year ago today, November 18, 1974, and also his brother, Robert, deceased July 24, 1968.

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
"Eternal rest grant unto him, O, Lord, and may perpetual light shine upon him."

—Always remembered by his loving wife Dolly, his son and daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

What seemed like a big news-wire story landed on my desk the other day, reporting the important fact that the Canadian and U.S. governments will have quiet talks soon in hopes of solving the border dispute between U.S. TV stations and Canadian cable companies.

Then I noticed it wasn't a news-wire story at all, but a press release from the three network stations in Buffalo which have done as much as anyone to fuel the dispute. So I only have their word that talks are ahead, if this semi-controversy interests you.

By the way, a Vancouver newswriter said recently the dispute could mean the death of Bellingham's Channel 12. Don't you believe it; Channel 12 is run by a bunch of sharp gentlemen and the station may be reduced in size but a TV licence remains a near-priceless commodity.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — You're a trivia semi-pro if you knew Hedy Lamarr portrayed Tondelayo in that venerable MGM turkey White Cargo. You're a trivia genius if you knew the name of the Perle Mesta character played by Ethel Merman in Call Me Madam was Sally Adams.

Today's question — Four famous movie characters were Norman Bates, Richard Hannay, Lonesome Rhodes and C. W. Moss. Name the four actors and four movies, and five of eight is passing. All eight answers appear Wednesday.

By Bil Keane

Tuesday highlights

7:00 p.m. — Fund drive time continues on KCTS with the mime rerun Out of Thin Air, followed by regulars — 9.

● 8:00 — Ignore everything and watch the three grand hours of That's Entertainment with much of the best of the MGM musicals. The names include Garland, Astaire, Kelly, Rooney and scores more but the best by far is Donald O'Connor in Make 'em Laugh — 7.

10:00 — Henry Blake, er, McLean Stevenson tests his proposed NBC variety series. Raquel Welch is the main guest — 2, 6.

11:30 — ABC's suspenser is Dial a Deadly Number with Gary Collins, the guy who was always falling down on Sixth Sense — 4.

Tuesday movies

12:45 noon — Work Is a Four-Letter Word (self-indulgent 1968 phoney), David Warner, Cilla Black. If that's too fancy, make it flat and dull — 8.

1:00 p.m. — Silk Stockings (quite good 1957 Ninotchka musical), Astaire, Charisse, Lorre and stereophonic Janis Paige. Look at 7 p.m. below and how about that for coincidence? — 11.

3:30 — It Started with a Kiss (endlessly boring 1959 romanticomedy), Glenn Ford, Debbie Reynolds. Nah — 5.

● 7:00 — Ninotchka (absolutely smashing 1939 Garbo comedy). With Melvyn Douglas and fine support; on TV all too seldom — 12.

9:00 — Elmer Gantry (1960 evangelism drama, good but not great). An Oscar winner for Burt Lancaster and Shirley Jones, thanks to help from Jean Simmons and many more — 11.

● 11:30 — Seven Brides for Seven Brothers (simply superb 1954 musical), Howard Keel, Jane Powell. One of the half-dozen best musicals ever — 12.

12:00 — Thief of Baghdad (1961 Italian crime). It's a crime because nobody should be allowed to befoul the memory of Conrad Veidt, Sabu and Rex Ingram — 2.

12:00 — In Enemy Country (tame 1968 Tony Franciosa war actioner). An ideal title for Dave Barrett in Oak Bay, Bill Bennett in Vancouver East or Pierre Trudeau west of the Lakehead — 6.

12:00 — I Want to Live (popular 1958 Susan Hayward Oscar-winner). Not a movie to joke about — 8.

12:30 a.m. — Escape to Mindanao (missable 1968 George Maharis war actioner). I'll bet some B.C. candidates who felt a month ago they couldn't lose would like to escape now, to anywhere — 7.

2:15 — Crosswinds (1951 Rhonda Fleming breather). If Rhonda ran for election, I'd second her motion — 6.

2:25 — Sullivan's Empire (mostly tedious 1968 search suspense), Martin Milner. I like Adam-12 but he's not a big name — 7.

2:40 — Dreams of Glass (1970 young-love, a no-names nothing). I don't know about dreams of glass but some candidates will fulfil their dreams only in a glass — 8.

Tuesday radio

5:00 p.m. — NHL hockey, Vancouver in Atlanta — CJVI (900).

8:00 — CBC Tuesday Night includes a Robin Wood recital — CBU (690).

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford bring the desired results do so you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call:

"Canadians are cautious . . .

Happy Robertson Davies grows better with years

By ALEK de MARCH
Colonist Staff

When I first met Robertson Davies 15 years ago, he was known as a humorist of the first rank, a familiar essayist, and "an old-fashioned novelist who was more advanced than many new-fashioned novelists."

He was then 47 years old and had three novels, which received mixed reviews, to his credit.

At that time he was also described as the enfant terrible of Canadian letters behind whose puckered mask of the satirist lived a serious writer of romance.

. . . but only on the surface"

Bad boy role

In 1960, when I joined the Peterborough Examiner news staff, a family paper he edited for 20 years, Davies was also cast in a role as Peterborough's Bad Boy. His unfailing wit displayed in the columns of a number of Ontario papers under the name of Samuel Marchbanks, was often too much for the rather stuffy Peterborough.

The Robertson Davies who was in Victoria Monday is now described as one of Canada's best novelists, and his latest book is claimed by some reviewers as the Great Canadian Novel.

Davies' stop in Victoria marks the publishing of that novel, World of Wonders, the last in an exceptionally successful trilogy which began with Fifth Business and was followed by The Manticore.

Universal appeal

The books deal with the lives of a group of people in a small Ontario town, but their appeal is universal and they have earned the author international acclaim.

Davies started his visit with a lecture at the University of Victoria where, to a full house, he read a passage from World of Wonders.

Introducing his work, Davies said the content of his three books represented a record of the "bizarre and passionate life of the Canadian people.

"Canadians are one of the most concealed and covered races in the world," he said. "The curious Canadian character is so passionate and yet so quiet and unimposing on the surface. But reports in Monday morning papers reveal the contradiction."

Davies said the severe Canadian climate had much to do with it. "It has made Canadians cautious, reserved and created a particular kind of character."

Fit for stage

Reading from his book, the author held everybody spellbound, using his well trained voice of Master of Massey College and his early experience as an actor to give a performance fit for any stage.

Later in the afternoon I met Davies in the quiet of a fourth-floor room at The Empress. The many years which separated our meeting did not show any aging. As in his writing, his maturity reflects an enviable zest for life.

Davies has said he would like to think of himself as a writer in a country which demonstrably and undeniably had a serious concern with serious things.

Good life possible

Defining the "serious things" he said they were conditions of the country, the way of life "including concern with democracy, education and justice.

"A country in which the government has to be concerned that a good life can be made available to as many people as possible."

Davies said this was possible under the socialized democracy in Canada. He cited Canada Council and National Research Council as good examples.

"In the United States they find our socialized democracy astonishing."

He said Canada Council has often been subjected to abuse and was criticized for failure. "But the successes are not widely publicized "Even if the rate of success is 50 to one I think it's well worth it."

Asked if there was room at Massey College for such people as Indian arist and writer George Clutesi of Port Alberni, or Dennis T. Patrick Sears, author of the successful first novel The Lark in Clear Air, Davies said: "Of course we would have them—if only we could get them."

Not just hobby

He also said he would like to think of himself as a writer in a country where a writer is recognized as a man with a vocation and not merely as a man with a hobby.

During his whole career, which started with writing plays and writing for newspapers in 1939, Davies has always held a full-time job.

He has never become a full-time writer — in the physical sense — because "of the kind of person I am. I need constant refreshment and replenishment. I must be in contact with people. This contact is essential for a writer. If you get wrapped up in yourself you're dead."

Davies said the success of his latest work has not changed his life. He admits it has not been easy to gain recognition in Canada. "It would have taken much longer had Fifth Business not received the recognition it did receive first in the United States.

"It's rather sad. Canadians hate to dramatize themselves. They think there is something fake about dramatizing."

The long climb to recognition as an author began for Davies in 1951, when his first novel, Tempest-Tost was published. It was a jibe at the parochialism of Canadian Little Theatre, and it was followed by Leaven of Malice (1954), a satirical romance.

Not until his third book was published, A Mixture of Frailties, did Davies attract some more favorable reviews. Critics claimed that with the third book Davies finally took a step which made him a novelist as distinct from a playwright.

They also claimed that in A Mixture of Frailties Davies' symbolic theme — the struggle of the Canadian imagination to free itself from second - rateness, parochialism and dullness — emerged more powerfully.

Recalling those reviews Monday, Davies said it will take time for his earlier works to be recognized for what they are.

University theme

Meanwhile, there will be more books. The next one will have university life for its theme.

Right now, Davies is working on a play to be produced in Toronto. "Can't say too much about it as yet. However, although it will be set in Greece it will be applicable to Canada."

And there must always be enough time to cultivate his successful marriage. He has three daughters and two grandchildren. He said he was fortunate to have a partner with whom he can share almost everything. "Brenda and I have so much in common. We never stop talking. This is important. I expect to go into the grave talking. A happy private life can make a great contribution to one's success."

Davies also organizes his life so that there is time for hobbies. "I read a lot, always read the papers — it helps you to keep in touch with the people. The Davies are also regular theatre-goers, and he enjoys gardening, particularly tree-planting.

"Tree-planting is very rewarding and lasting."

Robertson Davies shows one thing — a happy man who proved that living does not have to end once you hit the sixties.

Highway closing times changed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Changes in daily closure times of the trans-Canada Highway during construction at Hunter Creek, eight miles west of Hope, went into effect Monday. Under the new schedule the highway is closed from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays and from 8 a.m. to noon Wednesdays and Thursdays.

'Campaign of fear can't be tolerated'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Hyndman, Social Credit party president, said Sunday that a telephone scare campaign against the Social Credit party has sprung up in several provincial constituencies.

Hyndman said in an interview that unidentified callers have been telephoning people claiming that if the Social Credit party forms the next government following the Dec. 11 provincial election, it will do away with Mincome, Pharmacare and rent controls.

"This is a deliberate campaign of fear and it can't be tolerated," Hyndman said. He added that there have been numerous reports of the calls in the constituencies of Nanaimo, Prince George, Prince Rupert, as well in Greater Vancouver-area ridings.

BC75 X

Hyndman could not estimate how many calls had been made. He said it must be a planned campaign because the callers said exactly the same thing with each telephone call.

Yvonne Cocke, New Democratic Party president, said Sunday the NDP had nothing to do with the alleged campaign, as did spokesmen for the Liberal and Conservative parties.

Hyndman said that it is Social Credit policy to continue Mincome and Pharmacare if elected Dec. 11. He said that because rent controls represent part of the federal wage and price control guidelines, they too would remain.

Oak Bay Liberals will choose their candidate for the Dec. 11 provincial election Wednesday night.

A nominating meeting called Friday night was postponed until Wednesday to give candidates more time to line up support. The meeting will be held at Windsor Park pavilion starting at 8:30.

One declared candidate is lawyer Michael O'Connor.

The Oak Bay seat is currently held by Conservative Dr. G. Scott Wallace.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Fred House, nominated in Prince George to contest the Fort George riding for the Liberals, Monday announced his resignation as president of the British Columbia Association of Non-Statu Indians.

He told a news conference his resignation was best for the association and only fair to the electors of Fort George.

House said a special association board meeting with local representatives will be held Nov. 24 in Kamloops to lect a new president.

He said he has appointed board member Jim Lanigan as interim president.

Officers chosen by Tories

Pat Crofton was elected the new president of the Esquimalt-Saanich Progressive Conservative Association Saturday.

Around 50 members of the federal constituency also elected Robert Peden first vice-president Other vice-presidents elected were Irene Block, organization; Mark Shaw, youth programs; and Dr. Arnold Lang, finance.

Libby Mowat was elected secretary, Larry Brooks treasurer and Edith Bibby, membership secretary.

Before the vote, Esquimalt-Saanich MP Donald Munro, told the audience that the Liberals administration in Ottawa was refusing to give any credit to the Conservatives for the federal government's recently-introduced wage and price restraints.

"If it succeeds they'll take all the credit," he said. "If it fails they'll try to take us down with them."

Munro pointed out that the wage and price restraint program was still not law. "It is still being debated in the house," he said. "It's true that the Prime Minister said the rules would be effective at midnight on the day he introduced them. But they still aren't law until they are through the house. And when it is, there is no provision ofr it to be retroactive.

Pregnancy law struck down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In another victory for women's rights, the Supreme Court Monday struck down a Utah law that presumes a woman is incapable of working the last 12 weeks of her pregnancy and the first six weeks after giving birth.

Author's lecture

Author, journalist and editor of Maclean's magazine, Peter Newman will be speaking Monday, Nov. 24, at 12:30 p.m. in the Student Union building lounge, University of Victoria, on The Canadian Establishment, title of his most recent book. The lecture is open to the public.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Next CRTC critic 'gets a punch'

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Harry Boyle, acting chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, has defended the CRTC's attempt to control U.S. advertising on Canadian cable-television systems.

"The next person who tells me it's immoral to stop an American commercial coming into Canada from an unlicensed in-Canada station is going to get hit between the eyes," Boyle told the annual meeting Saturday of the Canadian Booksellers Association and the Canadian Book Publishers Council.

He said the Toronto-Hamilton area is possibly one of the richest television markets in North (America, outside of New York.

"American programs on the Buffalo stations are bought and paid for by advertising for American circulation. Then, we turn around in this country and we spend 20-odd millions of dolars buying the rights to put them on our television.

"There are more American programs on Canadian cable than ever before," he said.

"We have tried to make Canadian broadcasters aware that they are that, Canadian broadcasters, not licensed broadcasters of American programming."

Some Toronto-area cable-television systems have been deleting U.S. commercials from programs picked up from the three major Buffalo, N.Y., stations before offering the programs to Canadian audiences.

Vandalism closes school

PINE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — Vandalism that caused $330,000 damage to the junior-senior high school forced officials Monday to suspend classes at the $3-million facility. Police said the vandals "systematically entered every classroom in the building," wrecking office machines, telephone and audiovisual equipment, musical instruments, even the stove in the home economics room.

Special, because the single whiskies are not shocked by being dumped together at once. We let them rest quietly awhile, so that the blend will have greater uniformity and more dependable consistency.

In this Scottish city, on the banks of the River Tay, nothing much has changed. The castle is still there, and every year, from January to December, when the air is chill and pure and the water is cold, the people of Perth make Dewar's Scotch Whisky.

Son Tommy Dewar looked for new markets at the 1885 Brewer's Show and used a bagpipe to entertain. (The first commercial use of music?)

Sir Thomas Dewar became famous for such terse comments as, "Do right and fear no man; don't write and fear no woman".

M. V. Chesnut's Garden notes

I used to feel quite proud of myself when one of my fruit trees would retain its leaves long after the neighbors' treed had dropped theirs, for I had an idea this indicated superior culture on my part.

I found out to my sorrow, though, this isn't something to congratulate oneself for; it isn't the result of loving care or extraordinary culture at all, but a pretty good indication of trouble somewhere.

This doesn't always hold, of course. In some years, due to a peculiar quirk in the weather pattern, the dead brown leaves hang on and on, protracting interminably the job of raking them up.

In such general cases, the whole tree behaves in this way; it is when individual branches show this tendency to retain their leaves that trouble should be suspected.

In apples, crabapples, pears and the mountain ash, this symptom COULD indicate an attack of the dreaded fireblight disease.

This is a bacterial infection found only in members of the rose family and with a special affinity for pears, mountain ash and apple trees, somewhat less commonly on cotoneaster and roses.

It has been known to kill a tree in only two seasons when left untreated.

Failure of the leaves to fall is not a sure sign by any means, for you can have fireblight without the leaves staying on, and conversely the leaves may be retained even though no infection is present.

But when single branches act in this way, it is just sheer shiftlessness not to get out there and investigate further.

Look over the small twigs and fruit spurs on such branches, especially the ones which carried blossoms this past season, for the disease is spread from infected to healthy trees most frequently by pollinating insects at blossoming tine.

If any twigs have a scorched appearance, as if they had been seared with a blow torch, you have a case of fireblight on your hands. If the affected twigs drip an evil, dark-colored sap, you have it in its most virulent form.

There is no cure for the affected portions of the tree and, at this season of the year, there is no treatment to keep the disease from spreading except drastic surgery. All the scorched wood must come out, making your cuts well below the visibly affected portions.

Never forget, when working with fireblight, that you are dealing with living organisms — bacteria — and unless the operation is carried out under conditions of surgical cleanliness, you stand a good chance of spreading the germs and infecting the healthy portions of the tree.

Keep a bucket of strong household disinfectant handy as you work — a bleach such as Javex or Perfex will do, or even chloride of lime — and dip your pruning tools between cuts.

Whether you use pruning shears, lopping shears, knife or hand saw, they should be disinfected after each separate cut, or the blade could carry the germs back on to clean wood.

All prunings should be gathered up and burnt immediately.

In the human body, your doctor combats invading bacteria by pumping you full of penicillin or some other antibiotic.

This technique is also giving fair results in horticulture, using an agricultural form of streptomycyin marketed under the name AgriStrep.

It is applied as a spray during the blossom period, and seems to give very good protection against infection.

It must be remembered, though, that it is no substitute for surgery, and all affected wood should come out immediately.

WASHINGTON — My colleague Jack Anderson has been running a slogan contest for the U.S. bicentennial. He is offering all sorts of prizes to the person who will come up with the words that will describe the United States the best.

I was thinking of entering the contest, but I knew I couldn't win because people would think it was a put-up job. Since I hate to see my slogan go to waste I have decided to use my column to publicize it.

I believe the slogan that describes the U.S. the best is "the cheque is in the mail."

My reason for selecting it as the best one is that it is easy to remember, it fits on automobile bumper stickers and millions of people have been using it for years.

I must admit the slogan isn't original with me. I first heard my father use it 30 years ago. In fact, every time the phone rang at our house he would say it to the caller on the other end.

One time I asked him after a call from the electric company if the cheque was really in the mail and he said, "Don't ask such dumb questions. If the cheque was in the mail you wouldn't be eating meatballs and spaghetti tonight."

My father must have told other people about it because in no time at all I kept hearing the phrase being repeated wherever I went.

Most companies would blow their minds when they were told by a customer that "the cheque was in the mail." But there was little they could do about it.

Then one day a comptroller of a large corporation got a brainstorm. Why couldn't his company tell another company the same thing? In that way his company could slow up payments on its bills and use the money itself. He tried it and improved the cash position of his company by 100 per cent.

Pretty soon everyone doing business was assuring everyone else that "the cheque was in the mail," and it took weeks, even months before anyone was paid.

The practice might have been stopped except that the people telling the tale got help from an unexpected source — the U.S. post office.

As time went on postal service got so bad that no one could tell if the person who said the cheque was in the mail was lying or not. Today it's impossible for anyone to know if the debtor is telling an untruth or if the cheque is really lost somewhere in a mailbag between St. Louis, Mo., and Butte, Mont.

This has encouraged almost everyone in the country to blame the mails for the lack of payment of a bill.

For a long time only individuals and private enterprise used the ploy. But recently the government has gotten into the act.

Now, whether you're waiting for a social security cheque or payment for a highway contract, there is someone in Washington who will tell you in a friendly voice that "the cheque is in the mail." It wouldn't be so bad if it was a real person, but most government departments are now using taped recordings.

A recent Gallup Poll showed that more people in the United States say "the cheque is in the mail" than "Have a nice day."

It has become so much a part of our culture that it should become the national slogan replacing "In God We Trust." The American people have discovered that putting their trust in God is no assurance that anyone is going to get paid.

I want no prize for my slogan. But if adopted officially I hope my father will get the credit in history books as being the first person never to sue it. Little did he know in those dark days of the Depression that someday his words would be on the lips of every man, woman and college student.

Thoughts at Large:

If a young person like Patty Hearst hadn't been brought up exclusively to believe that this is the best of all possible worlds, she wouldn't have been so shocked to have forcibly learned otherwise — and thus might not have recoiled so excessively into the opposite error of assuming it is the worst of all possible worlds.

It is one of the great lies of all nations that they never "meddle" in the affairs of other sovereign countries, whereas in fact they meddle all the time, wherever they have the strength or subtlety to insinuate their views.

Only now, after years of futile struggle, is the orthodox medical profession reluctantly admitting that, while there is no scientific evidence in favor of the effectiveness of chiropracty, there is no real evidence against it either; until now, we had always been told that its claims had been "scientifically disproved."

There is little hope of communication between them so long as the perfectionist persists in thinking of himself as merely "orderly," and the slob continues to regard himself as merely "casual."

An author retains the singular distinction of being the only person who can remain a bore long after he is dead.

stars

Why do most people who confess they "can't remember a joke" then proceed to prove it by trying to tell one?

The high military officer who piously proclaims, "I hate war," shouldn't then have entered a profession where the only swift and sure route to promotion is by means of war.

We tend conveniently to forget the exceptions to Aristotle's "golden mean" — for certain virtues cannot be held in moderation or they fall, as a bicycle cannot be ridden below its proper speed; it is impossible, for instance, to be "moderately loyal" or "moderately chaste."

There is a tenacious logic, even in lunacy; for instance, the miser feels poor because he is poor, precisely because he chooses to live that way, and is possessed by his hoard, rather than possessing it.

A large transnational corporation gave a foreign police chief "an expression of gratitude"; a tavern-keeper gives a police sergeant a "payoff"; but a motorist offers a traffic cop a "bribe."

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

DUNCAN — It was standing room only for Premier Barrett in Ladysmith and Duncan Monday.

Moving into country which has been NDP since 1952, he pulled standing-room-only crowds in excess of 700 in Duncan and 250 in the smaller centre of Ladysmith.

Staying basically with a theme made familiar during the past month of touring the province, Barrett again taunted Social Credit to "show the people their program."

He warned that if Social Credit leader William Bennett made good his threat to wipe out the B.C. Land Commission and Bill 42, the land-freeze legislation, "he will destroy what the people of this province demand be preserved, our farm land."

In Surrey Friday, Bennett said that if the Socreds formed the next government of B.C. he would "strip the powers of the land commission" but he did not say that would eliminate it.

In both Island centres the crowds were enthusiastic, with the Duncan audience, jammed into Eagles Hall, giving the premier two standing ovations and constant applause.

In Duncan Barrett issued a personal challenge to whoever wins the Social Credit nomination in Victoria tonight.

"I challenge them to say within the next few days that they will sell the Princess Marguerite and abandon the crown corporation that runs her," he said. "They won't. They dare not."

In recent days Bennett has said that a Socred government would eliminate some crown corporations but has not mentioned the corporation operating the Marguerite.

Barrett also told the Duncan audience that he was still looking at the performance of the Canadian Pacific Railway on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway. And he warned again that "what the crown has given, the crown can take away."

As in the past, he declined to qualify the statement.

He also took a brief slap at Agnes Kripps, an old-time Socred who failed to win the nomination for Vancouver South Sunday night.

After losing, she said she was now wondering if it was true that big business had

Serious fighting flares between Laos, Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Communist gunners from Laos sank a Thai gunboat on the Mekong River border Monday, touching off the most serious fighting between the two countries in recent years.

A fierce exchange of fire across the sensitive river line continued after dark, involving tanks, artillery and helicopters.

Mackasey stand firm

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-general, Bryce Mackasey Monday night rejected appointment of a special mediator in the national postal strike, telling strikers they were "dreaming in technicolor" if they expected the government to change its final wage offer.

"The trouble with this (union negotiating) team is that they don't know when they've got a good bargain," he said during a special Commons debate on the month-long nation-wide strike.

Negotiators for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, headed by union vice-president Jean-Claude Parrot, watched intently from a Commons gallery as the minister spoke.

Under no circumstances would the government change its final wage offer of a $1.70-an-hour increase with a 40-hour work week over a 30-month contract, Mackasey said.

"If they think they can get more . . . they're dreaming in technicolor . . . if the strike lasts a day, a week, a month or a year."

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Pary leader, called earlier in the debate for a special mediator with a three-day mandate to attempt to break the impasse between the government and the union.

Mackasey said it would be ridiculous to "introduce a mediator at this stage." a better idea would be to ask rank-and-file members whether they supported the union negotiating committee.

Snow dusts hills

Snow pellets drifted down on parts of southern Vancouver Island early Monday, sprinkling about half an inch in some areas while temperatures plunged to 1 Celsius. Seen here, in telephoto shot taken from Gonzales Hill, are Beacon Hill Park and James Bay apartment blocks in foreground with snow-dusted Sooke Hills in distance. Soft hail came from random cold clouds, said weatherman, who added today and Wednesday should be warmer.

Time bill given second reading

OTTAWA (CP) — As debate in the Commons headed towards an abrupt end by government-imposed closure Monday, Time Canada Ltd. appealed "in fairness and justice" for a delay in enacting tax legislation affecting the magazine's future in the country.

In a telegram to all MPs, Time Canada president Stephen S. LaRue of Toronto said the Jan. 1 implementation date comes only nine weeks after Revenue Minister Bud Cullen's announcement that the Canadian edition of magazine must be 80 per cent different in content from foreign editions to qualify as Canadian for tax purposes.

The telegrams arrived as House leaders from all parties agreed to ring the division bells at 9:30 p.m. for a vote to end second reading vote and to send the legislation to the Commons broadcasting committee for detailed study.

The Liberal majority in the Commons pushed through a closure motion last week that gave the MPs until shortly after 6 p.m. Monday to complete a prolonged second reading debate.

The Commons voted 123 to 80 to give the bill second reading—approval in principle—and send it to the broadcasting committee for further study.

The Liberals, supported by the New Democratic Party, outnumbered opposition from the Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit party.

Five MPs broke party ranks on the vote. Liberals Jacques Trudel Montreal Bourassa) and Joe Flynn (Kitchener) voted against the bill while Progressive Conservatives Flora MacDonald (Kingston and the Islands) and David MacDonald (Egmont) and Social Credit MP Leonel (Beaudoin Richmond) voted for it.

LaRue said that prior to this announcement Time was given to understand from discussions with revenue department officials that at least half, or 51 per cent, content difference would be sufficient.

If the measure is not delayed it will effectively destroy Time Canada's attempts to qualify as a Canadian publication, the telegram said.

Besides the telegrams to all MPs, LaRue also sent a strongly-worded eight-page letter to Faulkner charging that his chief interest was in "kicking us out" of Canada.

During the final stages of second-reading debate in the

Britain, Iceland angrily halt fishing talks

REYKJAVIK, (UPI) — Britain and Iceland angrily broke off talks on fishing rights Monday.

As Iceland vowed to enforce its new 200-mile fishing limit "by all possible methods," Britain warned it would protect its fishing trawlers "if protection is necessary."

The breakdown in negotiations raised fears of another full-scale "cod war" reminiscent of the 1972 dispute in which Icelandic gunboats rammed the sides of British vessels.

"There was too much of a gap between us and the British delegation," Iceland Foreign Minister Einar Augustsson said after a 40-minute session with British minister of state Roy Hattersley.

Hattersley said the British proposed to decrease fishing inside the 200-mile limit, "but the Icelandic government did not agree to our offer. Our trawlers will certainly be protected if protection is necessary."

Augustsson said his country "will protect our fishing limits by all possible methods. I am not forecasting a war, but the future will show what will happen."

The offer from Britain was to fish 110,000 tons a year in the newly-proclaimed Icelandic waters, a reduction of 20,000 tons a year from an agreement which just expired. Iceland's offer was to allow the British 65,000 tons a year.

In September, 1972, Iceland extended its fishing limits from 12 to 50 miles, and last summer increased that to 200 miles effective Oct. 15. It did not impose the restrictions until last week, however, when all fishing agreements with foreign nations expired.

New storm erupts on prison releases

OTTAWA (CP) — At least six men imprisoned as "dangerous sexual offenders" are being released by prison officials for varying lengths of time in violation of federal prison regulations, John Reynolds (PC-Burnaby-Delta-Richmond) said Monday.

Reynolds said the information was contained in the Canadian Penitentiaries Service's monthly bulletin to police on prisoners given temporary absences by prison officials or day parole by parole officials.

"It's about six inches thick," Reynolds said. "So far I've found six dangerous sexual offenders getting temporary absences and I've only got through about an inch."

Earlier in the Commons, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand reaffirmed that prison officials were not supposed to give such prisoners temporary absences — usually a few days of freedom for a specific reason — and told Reynolds his office was checking on one name given him by the B.C. member.

Reynolds said West Coast police had given him the bulletin after Allmand said Nov. 7 that dangerous sexual offenders were not getting such leaves.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Reynolds said in an interview.

He suggested that disciplinary action be taken against officials who gave temporary leaves to dangerous sexual offenders imprisoned on indefinite sentence.

He also asked whether the director and senior security director of Pittsburgh prison, about 90 miles south of Ottawa in the Kingston area, were suspended "for allowing people out on temporary absences who should not be out."

Allmand replied that two officials had been suspended, but not for giving passes to dangerous sexual offenders. The two are appealing.

An earlier report said the two were suspended for giving prisoners lengthy passes that enabled several to run a body rub shop in Toronto.

Public servants stiffen resolve

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiators for three unions representing Quebec public service employees Monday requested all 187,000 workers involved to take part in a province-wide strike by February.

Other pressure tactics approved at a weekend meeting ranged from work slowdowns to unannounced one-day work stoppages. The common front is seeking an increase in minimum weekly salary for public servants to $165 from $114.

Cargo of lifeboats of no use to crew

BORDEAUX, France (Reuter) — The body of a crew member from the abandoned West German cargo ship Rudolf S was found in a storm-tossed dinghy about 180 miles off the French coast Monday night, maritime authorities said.

Two of the 12 crew of the 999-ton vessel were rescued earlier in the day in the same area in the Bay of Biscay. The ship was abandoned Sunday.

The survivors told rescuers aboard the cargo ship Amsterdam that seven of the nine crew members still missing were in one lifeboat presumed to be in the vicinity.

Strong winds and heavy seas have been hampering rescue attempts since the Rudolph S was abandoned early Thursday after her cargo shifted in a violent storm.

A French naval aircraft earlier spotted two empty lifeboats, but coast guard officials said the ship had been carrying a cargo of lifeboats and those spotted were probably not the two used by the crew.

Troops, dogs scour Queen E2 for arms

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 has been used for years to run arms and explosives to Irish Republican Army (IRA) members in Southampton from sympathizers in New York, police said Monday as troops and dogs scoured the ship for the evidence.

"We are not looking for a bomb," a police spokesman said. "The search is part of antiterrorist investigations."

A search of the 65,863-ton liner began after the announcement Sunday that 400 pounds of explosives had been found in an Irish family's apartment overlooking the docks. It was the second cache of explosives found in the city in 11 months. Forty two persons — 30 of them Irish — were detained for interrogation.

Ashore, police searched all

Pollen's candidacy starts controversy

No sooner did Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen declare himself in the race Monday, for the Social Credit nomination, than he found himself embroiled in a controversy.

Accusations of broken promises and political opportunism were hurled at Pollen just hours after he announced that he will seek the Socred nomination tonight for one of the two Victoria seats in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The most bitter attack came from Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace who claimed that both Pollen and Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf, also seeking the Socred nomination in Victoria, had given him a positive commitment to seek election on the Conservative ticket.

"They gave me that solemn

500 Fund

Up until about two years ago, Joe was a happy man.

He had a job — not a great professional job, by any means. He worked hard at an unskilled job, but the pay was adequate, and he was young and strong.

He also had a family. There was his wife Liz, and baby daughter Tammy, and another baby on the way.

Life was good for Joe, and as he was also a man with a conscience, you would find his name well up on the list of donors to various community funds.

Then came the accident.

In the split second of an automobile accident he lost an arm as well as suffering other injuries which kept him in hospital for months.

After hospital came rehabilitation, but an unskilled man with one arm does not have employers lining up for his services, especially in times of high unemployment.

Now the family subsists below the poverty line, and any Christmas joy for the youngsters will have to come from others in the community who have their health, their strength, and jobs.

National lacrosse coach visits Victoria

National lacrosse coach Ron Pither of Oshawa visited Victoria on Monday to meet with junior players and executives. He discussed objectives of national program with junior players Norm Baker, rear, Steve Hepburn, Mike Hardy, Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool. Sponsored by the O'Keefe Foundation, Pither has been touring Canada to meet with provincial organizations and get views on what they feel is need to improve the coaching and playing standards. He will be initiating national and provincial coaching clinics and hopes to organize intensive training camps for players in five areas of Canada.

Lack of pass defence leaves O. J. in arrears

A team with O. J. Simpson and no pass defence is exciting, but it makes every game a tossup.

And that's the way it is for Buffalo Bills, who were exciting enough in the Monday night National Football League show but wound up at 5-4 for the season when Cincinnati Bengals outscored them, 33-24.

Simpson was great. He broke loose for 58 and 44-yard runs in the first half, started the third quarter with 154 yards in nine carries, and then got little chance to set another National Football League record because the Bills were behind and fighting the clock — a combination which called for Joe Ferguson to do a lot of passing.

The reason Bills were trailers was the lack of a pass defence. Seldom having to hurry, Cincinnati-quarterback Ken Anderson set a personal high in completing 30 of 46 passes for 447 yards.

Two of Anderson's throws, one each to Lenvil Elliott and Charlie Joiner, were for touchdowns, and he set up two short touchdown bursts by rookie Stan Fritts.

Simpson, who moved closer to an NFL record by rushing for both Buffalo touchdowns, wound up with 197 yards for 17 carries. Needing only three yards to become the first NFL player with five 200-yard games, Simpson didn't get the ball except for a pass in the Bills' last sequence. He now has 1425 yards for the season, and five games remaining in which to surpass the pre-season high of 2003 yards he set in 1973.

Also within reach this season is Lenny Moore's record of rushing for touchdowns in 11 consecutive games. Simpson has now scored at least one touchdown on the ground in nine consecutive games.

Defeat almost certainly knocked the Bills out of the playoffs. At 5-4 with a tough schedule remaining, they are two games behind Miami Dolphins in their division and tied with the amazingly-improved Baltimore Colts for second place. And with the Bengals and Pittsburgh Steelers both 8-1 and Houston Oilers 7-2 in the American Conference's Central Division, the wild-card playoff spot also seems out of reach.

Play Sunday was featured by four last-seconds victories, and the feature of features was the 20-17 win pulled out against Washington Redskins by St. Louis Cardinals.

The game was decided in overtime, but the tying points came in the last 25 seconds on a play which will bring argument for years each time it is brought up.

Only 25 seconds remained and the Cardinals were in close on a fourth-and-goal situation. Jim Hart passed into the end zone and Mel Gray made a leaping catch. But he lost control of the ball before his feet came down, and it took a huddle by game officials before it was decided that he had, in the official view, had control of the ball long enough to count.

Jim Bakken, who has had a tremendous season with his clutch kicking, then tied the score by converting — and seven minutes into the overtime won it with a 37-yard field goal. The Cards won the toss and the Redskins didn't get to scrimmage the ball in the sudden-death extra period.

In Sunday's other frantic finishes, Philadelphia Eagles, who have lost three times in the last seconds, got a 30-yard field goal from Horst Muhlmann with 28 seconds left to nip New York Gaints, 13-10; Errol Mann kicked a 23-yard field goal with 23 seconds left to give Detroit Lions a 13-10 win over Green Bay Packers, and Ronnie Coleman made a tackle-busting seven-yard touchdown run with 71 seconds left to bring Houston Oilers a 20-19 win over the Dolphins.

Wild Royal City hockey now under investigation

By STAN COOPER

Several Western Canada Hockey League governors are concerned with the violent nature of most games at Queen's Park Arena in New Westminster this season and they're attempting to do something about it.

League-president Ed Chynoweth was polling governors Monday to request a meeting later this week in Saskatoon, probably on Thursday.

The latest brawl in the Royal City took place Sunday, when Victoria Cougars dropped a 5-3 decision to the Bruins in a wild affair marked by 34 penalties, totalling 192 minutes. Both teams drew seven majors and Victoria had one misconduct. Five Cougars, two of them getting two, were tagged with game misconducts, and the Bruins drew two game misconducts.

While there were no injuries reported, similar incidents in New Westminster have resulted in injuries to visiting players.

Lethbridge Broncos had four players injured in a recent series with the Bruins and defenceman Darcy Regier suffered a broken jaw. Bronco-manager Bill Burton reportedly has refused to bring his team back to New Westminster until the situation is improved.

And Saskatoon manager Jackie McLeod, who watched his team drop two decisions to the Bruins recently, complained bitterly that his top scoring line was beaten up early in the first game by Bruin players.

Cougar-coach Pat Ginnell said Monday he was in favor of a meeting but didn't know what action the governors could take against the Bruins.

"We're not scared of the Bruins but I understand some of the Eastern Division clubs find it hard to play in New Westminster, particularly the teams with a lot of rookies" Ginnell said.

Cougars levelled 48 shots at Bruin netminder Carey Walker on Sunday but Danny Lucas was the only successful shooter, scoring all three goals.

It was the second loss in as many nights to the Western Division leaders and Cougars are seven points behind the third - place Medicine Hat Tigers.

Puck writers demand disciplinary action

NEW YORK (AP) — The Professional Hockey Writers Association has formally protested the alleged Sunday attack on reporter Walter MacPeek with a telegram to National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell Monday.

The telegram, signed by Dan Stoneking, sports editor of the Minneapolis Star and president of the writers' group, said the association was "appalled, disgusted and angered over the incident."

The writers demanded a public apology from Doug Barkley, coach of the Detroit Red Wings, and asked that the NHL take disciplinary action against Barkley in the form of a fine and possible suspension.

Meanwhile, MacPeek, who works for the Newark Star-Ledger, said he would pursue legal action against the Detroit coach. He already has filed formal assault charges with the New York police department.

"I'm going to do whatever needs to be done to emphasize that this kind of behavior has to be stopped," the writer said. "I do my job and the coach does his. There's no need for anybody to be punched."

The incident occurred outside the Detroit dressing room after New York Rangers had blanked the Red Winds, 3-0. MacPeek said he sought to enter the dressing room and get some quotes for his story and to deliver some television tapes to ex-Ranger Ed Giacomin.

League rules permit reporters into dressing rooms 10 minutes after the completion of games.

Barkley asked MacPeek to wait for the club's bags to be cleared out of the small Madison Square Garden dressing room. When the writer asked to enter the room again a few minutes later, the two men exchanged angry words. MacPeek cited the media rule and Barkley was reported to have said "You can shove the rule. Do you want to settle this outside?"

MacPeek replied that he would settle it with the NHL office, and said that Barkley then hit him. The writer suffered a small bruise over one eye.

After writing his story, MacPeek entered a formal complaint with police. When police attempted to find Barkley Sunday night, they discovered that although the team stayed overnight, the coach already had left the city.

The Red Wings are not scheduled to play again in New York City this season, although they will return to the metropolitan are Jan. 13 to play New York Islanders at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y. The complaint could be served on Barkley at that time.

Don Ruck, vice-president of the NHL, said the league would "continue to enforce to the best of our ability the rules governing access to the dressing rooms."

"But there are a lot of rules in this country and from time to time some of them will be broken."

Ruck said he believed Campbell would be in touch with Barkley "if the matter falls within his jurisdiction."

If it is a matter of litigation, however, it would be out of our hands."

Barkley refused comment on the affair.

Sunday's victory boosted Rangers ahead of Atlanta Flames and into third place in the Patrick Division.

In other Sunday games, Philadelphia Flyers spotted Montreal Canadiens the lead and came back to score a 3-1 decision, Boston Bruins continued their drive by knocking off Kansas City Scouts, 4-2, and Baffalo Sabres stretched their lead by handling California Seals 4-1.

Dodgers trade Wynn to Braves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers announced Monday a National League baseball trade sending centrefielders Jimmy Wynn and Tom Paciorek plus infielders Lee Lacy and Jerry Royster to Atlanta Braves for centrefielder Dusty Baker and infielder Ed Goodson.

Wynn, 33, a 13-year major league veteran, had provided power for the Dodgers in his first season with them after coming from Houston before the 1974 season. But after a bad elbow hampered him in 1975 and the Dodgers finished 20 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West, Los Angeles went looking for a long-ball hitter again.

Last season the 26-year-old Baker batted .262 with 19 home runs and 72 runs batted in to lead the Braves in both categories. His best season among eight in the majors was 1973 when he had 21 homers, drove in 99 runs and stole 24 bases.

Wynn had 18 homers and hit .248 last season after hitting 32 the year before, when he drove in 108 runs for the Dodgers. But hampered by an elbow that bothered him after surgery during the off-season, he fell to 58 runs batted in during 1975.

Maloney in court

TORONTO (CP) — Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings will appear in court in Toronto Dec. 1 charged with assault causing bodily harm, Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Monday.

McMurtry said outside the legislature that the attorney-general's department has decided to proceed against the hockey player by indictment.

The attorney-general said Maloney was served with a summons when he voluntarily visited Windsor last Tuesday.

Defenceman Brian Glennie of Toronto Maple Leafs and Maloney were involved in an incident during a game Nov. 5 in Toronto.

The maximum penalty on the assault charge under indictment is five years in jail. The attorney-general's department might also have proceeded under summary conviction in which the maximum penalty is two years in jail.

Schools share crown

Richmond and Fairburn played to a scoreless draw Monday at Windsor Park in the elementary school girls' field hockey championship so the schools will share the title.

Also on Monday, three schools including Richmond and Fairburn were presented with Zone championship awards. Richmond won Zone 1, Fairburn won Zone 2 and Vic West finished first in league play in Zone 3.

Juniors ambush unbeaten elders

London Boxing Club Juniors pulled the biggest upset of the Victoria senior "B" men's basketball season Monday.

The Juniors played a strong ball-control game and scored a 60-59 win over previously unbeaten Oak Bay in one of two games played at Royal Oak Junior High School.

In the other game, unbeaten London Boxing Club Seniors pulled four points ahead of Oak Bay and the Juniors by thumping Independents, 95-55.

Oak Bay got to wihtin one point of the Juniors with 11 seconds remaining on a basket by Ken Christensen, but Gary Worth restored the three-point lead with four seconds remaining. Christensen connected at the final buzzer to cut the margin of victory to one point.

Tom Hatcher and Corky Jossul led the Bays with 14 points each while Thad Newman scored 12 points for the Juniors. The Seniors were led by Dave Wirtanen, with 22 points, and Jim McKay, with 20. Lance Shannon scored 20 points for Independents.

In a Victoria Women's League game, Leslie Cross scored 12 points and Gail Gummer 10 as First United Unitys downed Senior B II, 51-24, at Vic High. Marilyn Cooper scored six points for the losers.

In Sunday women's games, Victoria Home Lumber trounced London Boxing Club, 93-25, and UVic Jayvees downed Senior B I, 52-26.

Jenkins sent to Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox general manager Dick O'Connell confirmed early today that the American League baseball team has received seven-time 20-game winner Ferguson Jenkins from Texas Rangers.

A statement issued by O'Connell said the Red Sox received Jenkins in a trade for outfielder Juan Beniquez, pitcher Steve Barr, an undisclosed sum of money, plus an minor league prospect to be named later.

The Rangers had been trying to unload the Chatham, Ont., native and his $195,000 salary for several months.

Smith tries luck In L.A. Times 500

Roy Smith has had a tremendous auto-racing season and he isn't finished yet.

The racing season is over in this area so the Victoria driver, who dominated the Northwest modified circuit this season, is heading for warmer climes to try his hand on the NASCAR circuit.

Smith left Monday for California where he hopes to qualify for the second annual $120,000 Los Angeles Times 500, which is scheduled for Sunday at Ontario Speedway near Los Angeles.

Smith, who has been driving the open-wheeled modifieds exclusively for the past three years, will be driving a 1975 Chevelle owned by Dick Midgley of Victoria.

Although Smith has little NASCAR experience Midgley's cars have been competing on the circuit for several years and usually with Hershal McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore. behind the wheel.

McGriff drove Midgley's car in the 500 last year but blew an engine in the early going.

Smith's last try at NASCAR Competition was three years ago when he drove a Midgley Chevelle in several closed-wheel races including the Riverside 500.

This year in modified competition, Smith won the Washington Racing Association points championship, the International Drivers Challenge series, the Billy Foster Memorial 100 and the Daffodil Cup.

At Ontario he'll be going against North Americas' best, including NASCAR champion Richard Petty, last year's LA 500 winner Bobby Allison and top NASCAR drivers Dave Pearson and Cale Yarborough.

Qualifying for the 40 positions begins Friday with the 10 fastest qualifier over the 2½-mile course earning berths. The final 30 positions will be filled Saturday.

Lancaster, Reed remain undecided

Eskimos earn berth in Grey Cup

JUBILANT Edmonton players, led by Dave Cutler (26) hoist coach Ray Jauch high after winning Western Football Conference championship Sunday.

EDMONTON (CP) — Veterans George Reed and Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders have refused to confirm that their illustrious careers ended in Saskatchewan's 30-18 loss to Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Football Conference fina

Reed said Sunday he would take some time before making any statement about his future and Lancaster, rushing to congratulate the Eskimos and wish them well in the Grey Cup final against Montreal Alouettes, said his options are still open.

"In past years, when I was asked about retirement, I said something would have to happen to make me retire," said Lancaster. "Now I feel something would have to happen to make me play."

Lancaster emphasized that he is not unhappy over his position with the Roughriders — "It's not my contract or my salary or the conditions or anything."

He conceded the door is still open for his return next season, "but it's not open far."

Lancaster, who has passed for more yardage than any quarterback in history, completed 17 of 38 attempts for 212 yards in the sudden-death final. He said simply he had a bad day, but Reed had a different view.

"We had about five passes dropped that could have meant first downs to keep us marching," said Reed. "We weren't sharp. Sometimes it happens that way, but you can't take anything away from the Edmonton defence. They played well against us."

Reed scored one touchdown and rushed for 46 yards, tops in the game, on 18 carries, far below the 100-yard-a-game average that many consider normal for him.

"I've got some things to say," Reed conceded, "but this isn't the time or the place.

Two players who spent much of the season on the sidelines sparked the second-half Edmonton surge which won the right to represent the WFC in the Grey Cup for the third successive year.

Eskimos, who have lost two years in a row in the Canadian Football League final, overcame an 8-18 third-quarter deficit on the passing of Bruce Lemmerman and a 72-yard interception return by Wayne Matherne for the final touchdown.

Edmonton fans — a sell-out crowd of 25,671 — yelled "We're number one" in the final seconds. Their joy was based on a fourth-quarter burst that netted 22 points, including a 13-yard touchdown pass from Lemmerman to George McGowan, and a two-yard plunge by Roy Bell.

Starting-quarterback Tom Wilkinson threw six yards to John Konihowski for the opening touchwon. Dave Cutler kicked four converts and a single and Garry Lefebvre got the final point on a punt.

Ted Dushinski returned a Wilkinson pass 35 yards for the other Saskatchewan touchdown.

Jack Abendschan completed the scoring with a 37-yard field goal, two converts and a single.

Although Lemmerman was instrumental in several Edmonton victories, he has been a second-stringer most of the season behind Wilkinson. Matherne has been on the injured list much of the season. He was cut early in the year when he failed as a cornerback but head coach Ray Jauch made no secret he hoped to use Matherne at a deep inside spot or as a safety.

Wilkinson suggested that he come out at halftime to see if Lemmerman could get the offence running smoothly. The

Braggins out

MONTREAL (CP) — Offensive guard Dave Braggins was placed on the injury reserve list by Montreal Alouettes Monday and the Canadian Football League club replaced him on their 32-man roster with Frank Pomarico.

Braggins, voted the top offensive lineman in the East this season, suffered a broken jaw in Montreal's 20-10 win over Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Conference final last Saturday.

Pomarico has been on the Montreal injury list with a bruised chest. He has not played since Aug. 27 when Montreal downed Toronto Argonauts 33-17.

The Alouettes are due to leave today for Calgary where they meet Edmonton Eskimos in the Grey Cup championship game Sunday afternoon.

Players withdraw racist charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence back Al Marcelin of Ottawa Rough Riders says a lack of communication with the team management and coaches caused an outburst about racism, head coach George Brancato said Monday.

Marcelin, who said in the dressing room after Ottawa's 20-10 loss to Montreal Alouettes Saturday that the coaches were inattentive to black players, was to make a statement later, Brancato said.

Marcelin singled out offensive coach George Dimitroff as creating a hostile attitude towards the black players.

Brancato said that Marcelin met with Riders' owner David Loeb and general-manager Frank Clair.

"They talked it over and Marcelin said there was a lack of communication but no racism."

Marcelin was upset by the release of receiver Rhome Nixon late in the season, Brancato said. It was an outburst caused by the frustration of the loss to the Alouettes who advanced to the Grey Cup Sunday in Calgary.

Brancato said Marcelin, who signed a contract late in the season after dropping plans to play out his option and retire, will be back next season.

Marcelin's charges came after defensive end Wayne Smith said for the second straight day that he wanted to be traded because he was not getting the attention he deserved.

Smith, who surprised Ottawa fans Friday with his announcement, said after the game, Saturday that the Riders take black players for granted.

Brancato said the Nixon cut was especially hard on Marcelin because they had played together in California. The release, one week before the end of the season, had ruined Nixon's chandes of being picked up by another team, Marcelin said.

Dimitroff denied he was racist and said he treated white and black players the same to win.

You can go economy first-class. Dodge proves it.

Economy class used to be pretty dull. No frills. No extras. No fun. True, unless you were talking about Dodge Dart, Coronet and Charger.

Dart is the compact Dodge. Coronet and Charger are the mid-size Dodge cars. And all three can be very classy, even though they're very good at minding the budget.

For instance, they give you a choice of either a 318 CID V8 or the famous 225 CID Slant Six as standard economical power

They also give you a handsome model choice. Dart is available in coupes, hardtops and sedans; Coronet offers 4-door sedans and wagons; and Charger comes in a sleek 2-door hardtop.

For the sake of class, you can order your Dart sport coupe or Charger hardtop with a sunroof. And for a real touch of class and comfort, ask about the cool air conditioning option.

For the sake of economy, Dodge Dart models equipped with either of the standard engines can be yours with the new overdrive-4 transmission option. When you're cruising on the highway, the overdrive reduces engine speed by 27% while maintaining highway speed, so understandably you get better fuel economy. There's also the optional Electric Fuel Pacer which helps you drive with optimum economy.

And inside these fine Dodge cars, there are first-class accommodations. Deep, comfortable bench seats. Wood grain instrument panels. Smart interior appointments.

If you're the kind of person who wants to add a few extras, Dart, Coronet and Charger let you have your way with things.

Things like Torqueflite automatic, speed control, vinyl roof, special interior and exterior trim packages—are some of the options you'll like to consider. So, you can be just as classy as you like.

But underneath it all, they still maintain their economy personalities.

The body is welded into a solid, rigid unit. We call it Unibody construction. It'll stay tight and strong for years.

Every Dodge car gets a special seven-stage rustproofing treatment to help keep it looking new.

Campbell River vandalism: $1000 reward offer

CAMPBELL RIVER — The municipality of Campbell River has posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals who drove a car on three playing fields and the Foreshore Park.

Mayor Kenneth Forde said damage is extensive as the grass is dormant now and it will be spring before the playing fields can be reseeded.

The car was driven over the park and playing fields at Cedar elementary, Pinecrest elementary and Campbell River junior schools.

An unidentified man has told police he saw five people in a half-ton truck spin "do-nuts" on the Foreshore grass in the early hours of the morning.

The $1,000 reward was posted on the instruction of Mayor Forde.

Similar incidents occurred in Comox earlier this year when vandals drove a car over the Village Park football and soccer pitches, ruining the field completely.

Power and water

Port Alice evacuees back but other problems persist

PORT ALICE — Evacuees returned to Port Alice and regular water service resumed at Tofino on the weekend but residents of waterlogged northern Vancouver Island continue to face problems caused by days of heavy rain.

At Port Alice, power was knocked out for the second time and townspeople returning to their homes had to make do with power supplied by an emergency generator.

And in Tofino, citizens were relieved of having to boil swamp water before drinking but were warned that an emergency water line will require constant attention to ensure a continuing supply.

The return of about 1,100 residents evacuated from Port Alice on Wednesday was completed Sunday after more rain and high winds interrupted the operation begun two days before.

"We've taken every available person back to Port Alice," said rescue co-ordinator Fred Purchase of Port Hardy.

Purchase said the return went smoothly despite the washout of the road between Port Alice and Port Hardy and two bridges over the Marble River.

He said the residents were ferried back to their homes by boat and a bridge should be operating over the river in two or three days.

The residents were evacuated to Port Hardy and Port McNeill after the torrential rains threatened to bring a huge mudslide down on the town.

At least eight Port Alice homes were damaged by flooding.

A power outage, caused when a transmission line support collapsed, blacked out Port Alice, Port Hardy, Port McNeill, Alert Bay and smaller communities Thursday just as residents were beginning to return to their homes.

A power station south of Port Hardy returned power 17 hours later, but a second blackout his the towns on the weekend.

Tofino's 500 residents lost their regular water supply late Thursday when a slide knocked out a settling tank, a water intake and 400 feet of pipe at the municipal reservoir.

Residents were forced to boil swamp water until an emergency line was installed Sunday at the site of the water intake.

"But since it is in the bottom of the creek bed, it will take constant attention to keep it from fouling," said Ald. Ken Gibson.

He estimated damage to the water system at about $10,000.

While the water line was out, he added, the town was virtually without fire protection because most fire hoses were in use drawing water from the swamp.

Liberals pick Gabriola man

NANAIMO — A well-known resident of Gabriola Island, William Matthews, has been nominated to carry the Liberal party banner in the forthcoming provincial election.

Matthews was named as candidate in a nominations convention held here Sunday night.

His entry into the race brings to five the number of hopefuls in the Nanaimo riding for the Dec. 11 vote. Others include incumbent NDP member Dave Stupich, Graemie Roberts of the Social Credit party, Progressive Conservative Marjorie Moore and Communist party candidate Ray Holmgren.

Matthews is well known across Canada for leading the Cententennial Voyageur canoe trip from Rocky Mountain House, Alta., to Expo 67 in Montreal, and for a brilliant military career.

He also headed a significant canoe trip from Nanaimo to Victoria, which marked the first time since the early history of the province that mail was carried between the two cities by canoe.

Matthews said he was looking forward to a hotly-contested but clean fight in the days leading up to the Dec. 11 vote.

Dead man identified

QUALICUM BEACH — Joseph Michael McAldin, 43, of Courtenay, has been identified as the man killed when his car was in head-on collision with a bus on the Island Highway near Qualicum Beach.

Island crashes claim 5 lives

Five persons died in Vancouver Island traffic accidents during the weekend — one of the worst Island tolls in recent months.

The victims were two youngsters from the Nanaimo area; mother and daughter from Port Hardy, and another Port Hardy motorist who is still to be identified.

The Nanaimo collision occurred late Saturday and left Michael Curtis Dubak, seven, of Coombs, dead. His five-year-old brother Darren died Sunday in Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Nanaimo RCMP said the boys were passengers in a car driven by their mother Karen Dubak. The Dubak car was said to be making a left turn at the intersection of Bowen Road and Island Highway when it was in collision with a southbound vehicle driven by Cecil Roland Mercer, 31, of Parksville.

The two vehicles were forced by the impact through the intersection and were in collision with another vehicle, this one operated by Paul Schmidt of 3321 Smuggler's Hill Road, Nanaimo. Police said Michael Dubak died shortly after the accident. An inquest has been ordered but no date has been set.

The mother and daughter were killed in what police said were the first deaths attributed to a week of heavy rains and flooding on northern Island.

The deaths occurred at Port McNeill when the car the two were riding in drove past two barricades and fell into a creekbed at a washed-out section of Highway 19.

The bodies of Elizabeth Irene George, 23, and her three-year-old daughter Nadine were discovered Sunday morning after a third person in the car, Frederick Stebbings, 21, staggered from the creekbed to a nearby wrecking yard where he was found by a watchman, police said.

An RCMP spokesman in Port Hardy said police didn't know why the car drove past the barricades. He said officers haven't been able to determine exactly when the accident occurred.

Meanwhile, a 60-year-old Port Hardy resident drowned when his car went out of control on the Island Highway Sunday morning near Port Hardy and plunged into the Keogh River. His name was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Duncan disappearance

Couple's bodies unearthed

A 28-year-old child care worker charged with being an accessory to non-capital murder was remanded in custody in Duncan Monday.

He will appear again Thursday.

Louis Pena, a landed immigrant of Shepard Road, Mill Bay, appeared briefly before Judge Patrick Bowen-Colthurst charged with being an accessory in the deaths of James Frederic Oldfield, 29, and his 22-year-old girlfriend, Pamela Jones, both of Duncan.

A warrant has also been issued for the arrest of Jim Rodriguez, a 25-year-old Puerto Rican, in the same case.

The bodies of Oldfield and Mrs. Jones were found Sunday in a badly-decomposed state, after a 19-day intensive search involving RCMP, dogs and helicopters.

The bodies were found Sunday morning, three miles from the couple's Richards Trail home, over a steep wooded embankment on Mays Road near the North Cowichan municipal dump.

A police spokesman said one body was wrapped in a quilt and blanket, while the other was in a sleeping bag. A carpet had been placed over both bodies and they were covered with debris.

The bodies were taken to Victoria where a pathology report is being prepared.

It was also disclosed that both the victims had been shot a number of times with a small-calibre rifle.

Further investigation on Sunday resulted in the recovery of a .22-calibre single-shot rifle, a .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle, and a pellet gun. The weapons were found in two residences in the Fairfield-Fernwood area of Victoria and one at Pena's home in Mill Bay.

The police spokesman, who wouldn't give the Victoria addresses, said the guns had been dismantled or cut into pieces. One part was so new it still bore the price tag.

Pena, who is of Puerto Rican extraction, is employed as a child care worker at the Cedar Lodge residential centre for neurologically handicapped boys at Cobble Hill.

A friend of Pena's told the Colonist that Rodriguez had been staying at Pena's home [illegible] days around the time of the couple's disappearance Oct. 24.

Rodriguez had previously lived with Oldfield and Mrs. Jones at their Richards Trail home but the couple had removed his belongings to a nearby shed while he was on a six-week holiday in Europe.

Rodriguez, who disappeared the day after Oldfield and Mrs. Jones were last seen, is believed to have left the country.

Duncan RCMP Cpl. Ted Jones hinted police know where Rodriguez is, and said extradition proceedings will begin as soon as he is definitely located.

Nanaimo lawyer Jim Taylor is representing Pena.

Alderman a winner in Cowichan recount

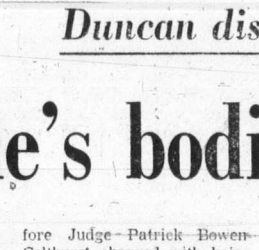

Due to the lateness of results from a number of Vancouver Island municipalities, some of the final tallies in Saturday's municipal elections were not available for Sunday's paper.

The final tallies for those not reported in Sunday's pages are included below.

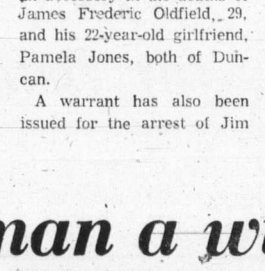

In another development, a Monday recount confirmed incumbent North Cowichan Ald. Margaret Robertson as re-elected, with 1,572 votes. Her challenger Judith Vardy had 1,531 votes after the recount. Election-night results had Robertson with 1,572 and Vardy with 1,571.

In addition, Margaret Robertson was re-elected as North Cowichan's representative on the Cowichan Regional Board.

In the neighboring city of Duncan, final tabulation showed that Duncan residents want nothing to do with fluoridation—a proposal that water be fluoridated was defeated 537-306.

'Show program'

Barrett taunts Social Credit

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

DUNCAN — It was standing room only for Premier Barrett in Ladysmith and Duncan Monday.

Moving into country which has been NDP since 1952, he pulled standing-room-only crowds in excess of 700 in Duncan and 250 in the smaller centre of Ladysmith.

Staying basically with a theme made familiar during the past month of touring the province, Barrett again taunted Social Credit to "show the people their program."

He warned that if Social Credit leader William Bennett made good his threat to wipe out the B.C. Land Commission and Bill 42, the land-freeze legislation, "he will destroy what the people of this province demand be preserved, our farm land."

In Surrey Friday, Bennett said that if the Socreds formed the next government of B.C. he would "strip the powers of the land commission" but he did not say that he would eliminate it.

In both Island centres the crowds were enthusiastic, with the Duncan audience, jammed into Eagles Hall, giving the premier two standing ovations and constant applause.

In Duncan Barrett issued a personal challenge to whoever wins the Social Credit nomination in Victoria tonight.

"I challenge them to say within the next few days that they will sell the Princess Marguerite and abandon the crown corporation that runs her," he said. "They won't. They dare not."

In recent days Bennett has said that a Socred government would eliminate some crown corporations but has not mentioned the corporation operating the Marguerite.

Barrett also told the Duncan audience that he was still looking at the performance of the Canadian Pacific Railway on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway. And he warned again that "what the crown has given, the crown can take away."

As in the past, he declined to qualify the statement.

He also took a brief slap at Agnes Kripps, an old-time Socred who failed to win the nomination for Vancouver South Sunday night.

After losing, she said she was now wondering if it was true that big business had

Serious fighting flares between Laos, Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Communist gunners from Laos sank a Thai gunboat on the Mekong River border Monday, touching off the most serious fighting between the two countries in recent years.

A fierce exchange of fire across the sensitive river line continued after dark, involving tanks, artillery and helicopters.

Mackasey stays firm

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-general Bryce Mackasey Monday night rejected appointment of a special mediator in the national postal strike, telling strikers they were "dreaming in technicolor" if they expected the government to change its final wage offer.

"The trouble with this (union negotiating) team is that they don't know when they've got a good bargain," he said during a special Commons debate on the month-long nation-wide strike.

Negotiators for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, headed by union vice-president Jean-Claude Parrot, watched intently from a Commons gallery as the minister spoke.

Under no circumstances would the government change its final wage offer of a $1.70-an-hour increase with a 40-hour work week over a 30-month contract, Mackasey said.

"If they think they can get more . . . they're dreaming in technicolor . . . if the strike lasts a day, a week, a month or a year."

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Pary leader, called earlier in the debate for a special mediator with a three-day mandate to attempt to break the impasse between the government and the union.

Mackasey said it would be ridiculous to "introduce a mediator at this stage." A better idea would be to ask rank-and-file members whether they supported the union negotiating committee.

Snow dusts hills

Snow pellets drifted down on parts of southern Vancouver Island early Monday, sprinkling about half an inch in some areas while temperatures plunged to -1 Celsius. Seen here, in telephoto shot taken from Gonzales Hill, are Beacon Hill Park and James Bay apartment blocks in foreground with snow-dusted Sooke Hills in distance. Soft hail came from random cold clouds, said weatherman, who added today and Wednesday should be warmer.

Time bill given second reading

OTTAWA (CP) — As debate in the Commons headed towards an abrupt end by government-imposed closure Monday, Time Canada Ltd. appealed "in fairness and justice" for a delay in enacting tax legislation affecting the magazine's future in the country.

In a telegram to all MPs, Time Canada president Stephen S. LaRue of Toronto said the Jan. 1 implementation date comes only nine weeks after Revenue Minister Bud Cullen's announcement that the Canadian edition of the magazine must be 80 per cent different in content from foreign editions to qualify as Canadian for tax purposes.

The telegrams arrived as House leaders from all parties agreed to ring the division bells at 9:30 p.m. for a vote to end second reading and to send the legislation to the Commons broadcasting committee for detailed study.

The Liberal majority in the Commons pushed through a closure motion last week that gave the MPs until shortly after 6 p.m. Monday to complete a prolonged second reading debate.

The Commons voted 123 to 80 to give the bill second reading—approval in principle—and send it to the broadcasting committee for further study.

The Liberals, supported by the New Democratic Party, outnumbered opposition from the Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit party.

Five MPs broke party ranks on the vote. Liberals Jacques Trudel (Montreal Bourassa) and Joe Flynn (Kitchener) voted against the bill while Progressive Conservatives Flora MacDonald (Kingston and the Islands) and David MacDonald (Egmont) and Social Credit MP Leonel (Beaudoin Richmond) voted for it.

LaRue said that prior to this announcement Time was given to understand from discussions with revenue department officials that at least half, or 51 per cent, content difference would be sufficient.

If the measure is not delayed it will effectively destroy Time Canada's attempts to qualify as a Canadian publication, the telegram said.

Besides the telegrams to all MPs, LaRue also sent a strongly-worded eight-page letter to Faulkner charging that his chief interest was in "kicking us out" of Canada.

During the final stages of second-reading debate in the

Britain, Iceland angrily halt fishing talks

REYKJAVIK, (UPI) — Britain and Iceland angrily broke off talks on fishing rights Monday.

As Iceland vowed to enforce its new 200-mile fishing limit "by all possible methods," Britain warned it would protect its fishing trawlers "if protection is necessary."

The breakdown in negotiations raised fears of another full-scale "cod war" reminiscent of the 1972 dispute in which Icelandic gunboats rammed the sides of British vessels.

"There was too much of a gap between us and the British delegation," Iceland Foreign Minister Einar Augustsson said after a 40-minute session with British minister of state Roy Hattersley.

Hattersley said the British proposed to decrease fishing inside the 200-mile limit, "but the Icelandic government did not agree to our offer. Our trawlers will certainly be protected if protection is necessary."

Augustsson said his country "will protect our fishing limits by all possible methods. I am not forecasting a war, but the future will show what will happen."

The offer from Britain was to fish 110,000 tons a year in the newly-proclaimed Icelandic waters, a reduction of 20,000 tons a year from an agreement which just expired. Iceland's offer was to allow the British 65,000 tons a year.

In September, 1972, Iceland extended its fishing limits from 12 to 50 miles, and last summer increased that to 200 miles effective Oct. 15. It did not impose the restrictions until last week, however, when all fishing agreements with foreign nations expired.

New storm erupts on prison releases

OTTAWA (CP) — At least six men imprisoned as "dangerous sexual offenders" are being released by prison officials for varying lengths of time in violation of federal prison regulations, John Reynolds (PC-Burnaby-Delta-Richmond) said Monday.

Reynolds said the information was contained in the Canadian Penitentiaries Service's monthly bulletin to police on prisoners given temporary absences by prison officials or day parole by parole officials.

"It's about six inches thick," Reynolds said. "So far I've found six dangerous sexual offenders getting temporary absences and I've only got through about an inch."

Earlier in the Commons, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand reaffirmed that prison officials were not supposed to give such prisoners temporary absences — usually a few days of freedom for a specific reason — and told Reynolds his office was checking on one name given him by the B.C. member.

Reynolds said West Coast police had given him the bulletin after Allmand said Nov. 7 that dangerous sexual offenders were not getting such leaves.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Reynolds said in an interview.

He suggested that disciplinary action be taken against officials who gave temporary leaves to dangerous sexual offenders imprisoned on indefinite sentence.

He also asked whether the director and senior security director of Pittsburgh prison, about 90 miles south of Ottawa in the Kingston area, were suspended "for allowing people out on temporary absences who should not be out."

Allmand replied that two officials had been suspended, but not for giving passes to dangerous sexual offenders. The two are appealing.

An earlier report said the two were suspended for giving prisoners lengthy passes that enabled several to run a body rub shop in Toronto.

Public servants stiffen resolve

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiators for three unions representing Quebec public service employees Monday requested all 187,000 workers involved to take part in a province-wide strike by February.

Other pressure tactics approved at a weekend meeting ranged from work slowdowns to unannounced one-day work stoppages. The common front is seeking an increase in minimum weekly salary for public servants to $165 from $114.

Troops, dogs scour Queen E2 for arms

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 has been used for years to run arms and explosives to Irish Republican Army (IRA) members in Southampton from sympathizers in New York, police said Monday as troops and dogs scoured the ship for the evidence.

"We are not looking for a bomb," a police spokesman said. "The search is part of antiterrorist investigations."

A search of the 65,863-ton liner began after the announcement Sunday that 400 pounds of explosives had been found in an Irish family's apartment overlooking the docks. It was the second cache of explosives found in the city in 11 months. Forty-two persons — 30 of them Irish — were detained for interrogation.

Ashore, police searched all

Cargo of lifeboats of no use to crew

BORDEAUX, France (Reuter) — The body of a crew member from the abandoned West German cargo ship Rudolf S was found in a storm-tossed dinghy about 180 miles off the French coast Monday night, maritime authorities said.

Two of the 12 crew of the 999-ton vessel were rescued earlier in the day in the same area in the Bay of Biscay.

The survivors told rescuers aboard the cargo ship Amsterdam that seven of the nine crew members still missing were in one lifeboat presumed to be in the vicinity.

Strong winds and heavy seas have been hampering rescue attempts since the Rudolph S was abandoned early Thursday after her cargo shifted in a violent storm.

A French naval aircraft earlier spotted two empty lifeboats, but coast guard officials said the ship had been carrying a cargo of lifeboats and those spotted were probably not the two used by the crew.

Pollen's candidacy starts controversy

No sooner did Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen declare himself in the race Monday for the Social Credit nomination, than he found himself embroiled in a controversy.

Accusations of broken promises and political opportunism were hurled at Pollen just hours after he announced that he will seek the Socred nomination tonight for one of the two Victoria seats in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The most bitter attack came from Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace who claimed that both Pollen and Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf, also seeking the Socred nomination in Victoria, had given him a positive commitment to seek election on the Conservative ticket.

"They gave me that solemn

Up until about two years ago, Joe was a happy man.

He had a job — not a great professional job, by any means. He worked hard at an unskilled job, but the pay was adequate, and he was young and strong.

He also had a family. There was his wife Liz, and baby daughter Tammy, and another baby on the way.

Life was good for Joe, and as he was also a man with a conscience, you would find his name well up on the list of donors to various community funds.

Then came the accident.

In the split second of an automobile accident he lost an arm as well as suffering other injuries which kept him in hospital for months.

After hospital came rehabilitation, but an unskilled man with one arm does not have employers lining up for his services, especially in times of high unemployment.

Now the family subsists below the poverty line, and any Christmas joy for the youngsters will have to come from others in the community who have their health, their strength, and jobs.

The Quiet Man

But Victorians will have a strong determined mayor

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Any assessment of Victoria's mayor-elect Michael Young must be prefaced by the observation that he is a man with a low profile.

Two things must be quickly added: First, Young couldn't care less about his profile; second, he makes up for a lack of charisma with methodic determination.

Young appears to be rather glad that he isn't blessed with Mayor Peter Pollen's explosive nature. His quiet approach to problems might keep him out of unnecessary trouble and give him more time to get things done.

After interviewing Young for the better part of an hour, one comes away with the strong impression that he's going to be more than a caretaker mayor — much more.

He's had good training. During the first year as an alderman, Young was the instrument used by Pollen to turn new zoning policy statements into hard bylaws.

"That year just about killed me," Young says.

So, what about the future? What's Mike Young going to do for the city that hasn't already been done?

He wants to make it clear that any statements in the interview aren't to be taken as ultimate policy decisions.

"I'm just thinking out loud which I normally don't do," he says.

Typical of his approach to problems is his conviction that individual aldermen must be given more responsibility.

Finance and labor relations have been portfolios that were at all times under the strict control of Pollen.

Young says he wants to "achieve a greater measure of responsibility" on those committees. He wants to make them "more meaningful," which is to say that he won't bear down on those committees with his own views.

More emphasis will be placed on intermunicipal and intergovernment relations, aspects that were also dominated by Pollen.

"We can no longer afford to indulge in the lack of co-ordination of those relations," Young says.

The provisional budget, now being prepared, will be looked over very carefully, Young says.

"We'll be taking two looks instead of one," he says. Padding of budgets will be caught long before the budget is a fait accompli.

He also feels that a lot of fat can be trimmed off city hall operations.

"We are finding a lot of skeletons in the cupboards. Some things are being done at great expense in a certain way long after the reason for them has disappeared," he says.

The traffic congestions, described by Young as "this octopus," will be dealt with in this manner:

"We'll have to make it an expensive privilege to park 20 feet of steel downtown all day and we'll have to reroute traffic that doesn't have a downtown destination."

An additional 1,100 covered parking spaces now under construction at three downtown sites, Young says, will help ease traffic congestion.

Surface parking, he believes, must be abolished. "It's an under-utilization of space."

One of his aspirations is the creation of a downtown residential core.

"It won't be for family living, but there is a need for residential accommodation in the downtown area," he says.

Young gave a carefully-worded hint of what might be in store as far as social amenities are concerned.

Saanich voters rejected a recreation bylaw and Young says he is "trying to read that decision very carefully."

When it comes down to a tight-money situation, he says, people are willing to do without the frills.

That analysis may spell doom for the rehabilitation of the old Crystal Garden.

"If we can find a formula that won't be a burden on the taxpayers, fine, but if the city has to finance it out of tax money, we may have to submit the matter to a referendum," he says.

Regarding the increasing demand for social and recreation centres, Young says:

"We must make sure that the people who shout are also the people who vote."

Young expects to have good relations with the provincial government, regardless of what party forms the government after Dec. 11.

"I'll strive to co-operate with any provincial government we may have. I will do so on a non-partisan basis."

Firing a little shot at aldermen Sam Bawlf and Robert Ellis, both of whom are seeking the Social Credit nomination in Victoria, Young notes that "some of the aldermen have chosen not to stay non-partisan."

Despite some confrontations between Pollen and provincial government departments in the past, Young says the city has had good relations with the province.

The only issue that had to be countered with "great concern" on the city's part, Young says, was the danger of a provincial Capital Commission that would have taken over the planning function for the entire city.

"We had to say, no thanks, and I think that danger was averted," Young says.

He'll take office Jan. 1, but Pollen is already slowly handing over the leadership of the city to Young.

Young has planned numerous meetings with the new aldermen. He's already working on the new committee structure. Aldermen-elect Ronald McKenzie and Helen Beirnes, says Young, have expressed an interest to serve on the Group A committee which includes finance and labor relations.

That would leave alderman-elect Robert Wright for Group B committee which is oriented toward housing, zoning and land-use matters.

One thing is not likely to happen with Young steering the ship — the elected representatives won't see their control over city business eroded by the administrative personnel.

Young, despite his low profile, is too strong a man to let that happen, and he has too strong a council at his side.

His views, one suspects, will be every bit as radical and controversial as those of his predecessor but he'll phrase them more carefully, avoiding the rough-and-tumble politics and confrontations that marked the Pollen years.

Mike Young: no explosions

Bankrupt alcoholism centre

Gillain house may be convention site

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

North Saanich council might look kindly at an application to change a bankrupt privately-run alcoholism treatment centre into a "low-key kind of convention centre," Mayor Paul Grieve said Monday night.

However, such an approach would have to include an undertaking that the 100 acres of land housing Gillain Manor would remain intact without further buildings, he said.

Grieve told aldermen it appeared that information he gave them about the creditors of Jay George Holdings Ltd., the company involved in the building, was no longer correct.

He said he had met with representatives of Farmer Construction Ltd. and Saanich Peninsula Savings Credit Union, which had proposed taking over the building and applying for a land-use contract to complete it as a convention centre.

That move, he said, had been designed to close out Jay George Holdings Ltd.

However, the trustee, Terence McMullen, had put a stop to that move by calling for tenders for the property. Tenders close at 4 p.m. Dec. 20, said Grieve.

"In the meantime," he said, "we are owed $30,000 in taxes and the tax sale comes up next year, so we might be owners yet."

Grieve said he had had a visit from "an unpleasant gentleman from Alberta."

The "unpleasant gentleman" claimed to have an interest in the land but it turned out that he did not have an interest.

The man, he said, had told him that the question of rezoning the land so that subdivision could take place depended on the result of the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Grieve said later that he has been approached by four people, three of them landowners, who have told him that if the "right" party is elected next month, the power of the B.C. Land Commission would be restricted, and there would be changes in the municipal act to make rezoning for building easier.

He would not name any of the people concerned.

Grieve said the credit union holds a first mortgage on Gillain of about $500,000, while Farmer Construction has a lien of about $1.2 million. The credit union also has a second mortgage, he said.

He said council has taken the attitude to date that there will be no change in the rural zoning of the 100 acres.

He said under Central Saanich zoning, the building of an "institution" is allowed in a rural zone, although a definition of an institution might be hard to arrive at.

"I think we have reached the point in council where there is some sympathy for a position under which the land would be withheld permanently from subdivision, but the partially-constructed building could be finished for use as a low-profile convention centre or something similar."

Man held in murders

Accessory charge in couple's death

A 28-year-old child care worker charged with being an accessory to non-capital murder was remanded in custody in Duncan Monday.

He will appear again Thursday.

Louis Pena, a landed immigrant of Shepard Road, Mill Bay, appeared briefly before Judge Patrick Bowen-Colthurst charged with being an accessory in the deaths of James Frederic Oldfield, 29, and his 22-year-old girlfriend, Pamela Jones, both of Duncan.

A warrant has also been issued for the arrest of Jim Rodriguez, a 25-year-old Puerto Rican, in the same case.

The bodies of Oldfield and Mrs. Jones were found Sunday in a badly-decomposed state, after a 19-day intensive search involving RCMP, dogs and helicopters.

The bodies were found Sunday morning, three miles from the couple's Richards Trail home, over a steep wooded embankment on Mays Road near the North Cowichan municipal dump.

A police spokesman said one body was wrapped in a quilt and blanket, while the other was in a sleeping bag. A carpet had been placed over both bodies and they were covered with debris.

The bodies were taken to Victoria where a pathology report is being prepared.

It was also disclosed that both the victims had been shot a number of times with a small-calibre rifle.

Further investigation on Sunday resulted in the recovery of a .22-calibre single-shot rifle, a .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle, and a pellet gun. The weapons were found in two residences in the Fairfield-Fernwood area of Victoria and one at Pena's home in Mill Bay.

The police spokesman, who wouldn't give the Victoria addresses, said the guns had been dismantled or cut into pieces. One part was so new it still bore the price tag.

Pena, who is of Puerto Rican extraction, is employed as a child care worker at the Cedar Lodge residential centre for neurologically handicapped boys at Cobble Hill.

A friend of Pena's told the Colonist that Rodriguez had been staying at Pena's home for a few days around the time of the couple's disappearance Oct. 24.

Rodriguez had previously lived with Oldfield and Mrs. Jones at their Richards Trail home but the couple had removed his belongings to a nearby shed while he was on a six-week holiday in Europe.

Rodriguez, who disappeared the day after Oldfield and Mrs. Jones were last seen, is believed to have left the country.

Duncan RCMP Cpl. Ted Jones hinted police know where Rodriguez is, and said extradition proceedings will begin as soon as he is definitely located.

Nanaimo lawyer Jim Taylor is representing Pena.

Gas leak cause of Madrid blast

MADRID (AP) — An explosion at the Chrysler Espana automobile plant on the outskirts of Madrid Monday killed at least three workers and injured 11 others, fire brigade sources said. Plant sources said the blast may have been caused by a gas leak.

Fat fire leaves six homeless

A fire badly damaged a small single-storey house at 1739 Bay late Monday, leaving a woman and five children homeless after a pot of fat boiled over on an electric stove.

One of Mrs. Rosemary Laframbroise's children, 12-year-old Michael, was the only person in the house when the fire broke out at 8:20 p.m. as his mother had left for a moment, a fire department spokesman said.

Michael, who was removed by friends of his mother's, had to be taken to hospital for a sedative after the fire.

By the time firemen arrived, flames were "boiling out of the front windows and door." Friends of Mrs. Laframbroise attempted to douse the flames on the stove with baking soda but were too late, the spokesman said.

Firemen were able to save little of the contents. Damage was estimated at $10,000 to the house and more than $5,000 to its contents, both were insured.

The spokesman said "The living room furniture was completely burned up and the rest (of the house) was badly smoke-damaged."

Mrs. Laframbroise and her children spent the night with friends.

B.C. suing mortgage companies

B.C. is instituting a class action lawsuit against two mortgage companies in the Vancouver area, alleging they have been overcharging on interest rates.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday the suit claims that Modern Mortgage and Loan Ltd. and Safeco Mortgage and Loan Ltd. have been calculating interest on the basis of 360 days in a year, not 365.

Mcdonald said the suit is being brought by the province on behalf of 52 mortgagers, seeking a full accounting, return of any money overcharged and unspecified damages.

Shelved again

Oak Bay council once again postponed reconsideration of a controversial land-swap bylaw at Monday's meeting while it waits for a full report from the municipal solicitor, who is still seeking legal advice on the matter.

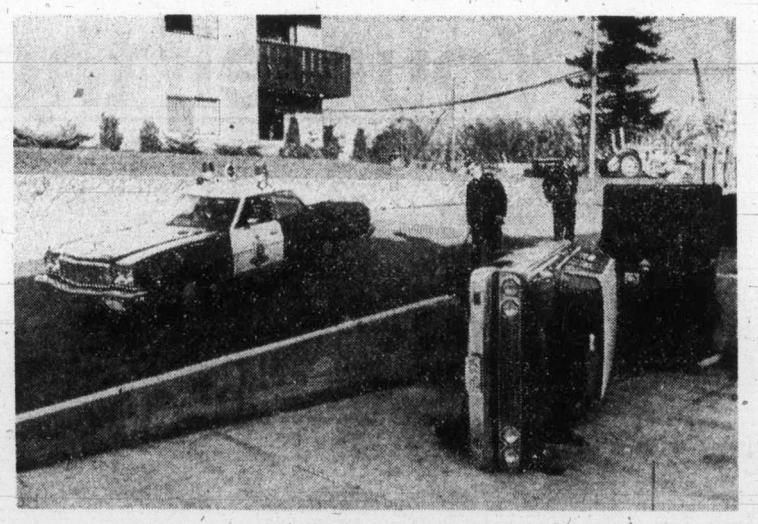

The bylaw's, legality had been questioned Nov. 3 by a Vancouver lawyer acting for two women who used to own what is now Anderson Hill Park.

Council's intention is to close part of Calvert Crescent and give it to Dr. E. H. W. Elkington, who donated four lots to the municipality last spring which became part of the park.

The Vancouver lawyer argued that council does not have the power to transact land-trade deals.

Nuclear test number 14

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — The U.S. will conduct its 14th major nuclear test this year when a device with as explosive force of up to a million tons of TNT is detonated 2,680 feet below this remote volcanic plateau at 7:30 a.m. P.S.T. today. U.S. scientists have stepped up tests of high-yield weapons recently because of a proposed limiting treaty with the Soviets.

Up and over

Over ramp and onto its side went this auto in mishap Monday afternoon near Bay and Catherine in Victoria. Driver and sole occupant, Carrol Anton Olson of Victoria, was taken to hospital with minor abrasions, police said. Damage to car was estimated at $300.

Branson changes law firm

The conduct of many federal drug prosecutions in Victoria will move to a new law firm Feb. 1, with senior Victoria lawyer Cecil Branson, a member of the new B.C. Legal Services Commission.

Branson confirmed Monday he will leave the firm of Sullivan, Smith and Bigelow and join the younger law firm of George Jones, Alan Emery and James Carfra, which will be renamed Jones, Branson, Emery and Carfra.

Other comment was declined by Branson but it was learned his contract with Ottawa to conduct federal drug prosecutions will make the move with him.

Gordon Macdonald, a former regular prosecutor at Victoria provincial court and RCMP member before he became a lawyer, has been retained to assist Branson in the handling of drug cases in courts at 633 Fisgard.

Branson is one of two Victorians named earlier this year by the provincial government to a new Legal Services Commission to supervise delivery of all legal services in B.C., including Legal Aid.

The other is UVic political science chairman Walter Young while other members are chairman Donald Jabour, a Kelowna laywer; Peter Manson, a Vancouver lawyer, and Mrs. Helen Jones, a Vancouver area social worker who was on the Berger juvenile-law commission.

Branson is also vice-president of the Victoria Bar Association and a national council member of the Canadian Bar Association.

Mrs. Dawson
. . . contests Esquimalt

Thelma Dawson, a housewife entering politics for the first time, was nominated by acclamation Sunday as Progressive Conservative candidate in Esquimalt in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The selection of Mrs. Dawson leaves only the Cowichan-Malahat riding without a Conservative candidate on Vancouver Island. Already named are party leader Dr. Scott Wallace (Oak Bay), Peter Stanley and Lloyd Burdon (Victoria), Mrs. Dawson (Esquimalt), Irene Block (Saanich and the Islands), Marjorie Moore (Nanaimo), Vic Stephens (Comox) and Bud Schroeder (Alberni).

Spokesmen for the Conservatives in Cowichan-Malahat said Monday no date has been set for a nominating meeting and the likelihood is that there will be no Conservative candidate in that riding.

Mrs. Dawson, who was in Victoria between 1952 and 1954 and returned again in 1971, joined the Esquimalt PCs when an association was formed two years ago and takes over from John Williams, who ran provincially in Esquimalt in 1972 but is returning officer in the riding this year.

More independent candidates have emerged in Victoria.

Richard Owen Kavanagh, 25, of 249 Government Street, and Victoria's lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott, 77, will be entering the contest as independents.

A nurse at Victoria General Hospital and former human resources and construction worker, businessman and university researcher, Kavanagh sees his main platform as the need for adequate hospital facilities.

"When we are sick we have the right to immediate care for quicker, more complete recovery," Kavanagh said. "Our aged deserve full attention when incapacitated to help them retain dignity, security and comfort."

Other issues, he said, were raw sewage disposal, overburdened city taxpayers, traffic-jammed downtown streets and polarized politicians.

Kavanagh came to Victoria in 1970 from Montreal, his birthplace.

Scott, who described himself as "Victoria's outstanding veteran in stupidity," claimed that all parties had abandoned their original codes of moral ethics; "they started out as ego-altruists and ended up as ego-maniacs."

The ego-maniacs were dominating all parties, he said, and this was shown in the case of Agnes Kripps, former Social Credit MLA who charged Monday that the party executive tampered with a nominating convention Sunday which rejected her bid to run again as a Socred in Vancouver South.

"Agnes Kripps is an ego-altruist, one who helps those who cannot help themselves," Scott said "She is an outstanding ego-altruist, and the Socred ego-maniacs have disowned and repudiated her."

Scott said he was campaigning to show that a civilization is no better than its teachers and students. "In my opinion the NDP at present, of which I am a member, is headed by the most wrong-thinking teachers in Canadian history."

Scott, who has previously run twice in provincial elections as an independent, also said that when he asked for nomination papers Monday, the office could give him only two — "they'd run out of them."
